portance to Canadian producers of certain foodstuffs which cannot be produced wholly or partly in Britain.

The correspondent can state, for instance that the Board of Trade has admitted its willingness to impose a duty on foreign canned salmon and admit the Canadian product free. It is understood there is a willingness also to add raw fruits such as apples, to the schedules, which already announced will apply to dried and preserved fruits.

There is some hope that Canadian hops might also be considered. These concessions could be obtained almost immediately.

The principal effect on Canada of the duties which the Premier proposes to place on manufactures bids fair to be an influx of American branch factories beside which the considerable transference already caused by the preference on motor cars sugar etc., will be as a trickle compared to a flood.

at Tyne Valley during the vacation.

A debate took place over the appointment of a committee of the Presbytery to further information in the matter of Church Union.

Some opposed the appointment of the committee lest it should introduce controversy in congregations where as yet the question has not been much discussed. On the other hand there were those who felt that in some congregations the controversy had already been started by the other side and that it would be necessary to answer questions raised. The Presbytery decided to appoint the committee but urged that care should be taken not to introduce divisions into congregations.

At 5 p. m. there was a discussion on the temperance situation. It was felt that much more could be done to enforce the prohibition law than at present and a resolution to this effect was passed. A committee was appointed to bring before the public more thoroughly the need of prohibition law enforcement.

At the meeting of the Charlottetown District Methodist Conference and the Presbytery a joint resolution was passed that in the new united church more use should be made of consecrated lay service.

CLAIMS POLICE PASSED OVER FIRE FGE

(United Press.)

NEW YORK, Nov 5 — Eulogia Lozada, the Filipino office man employed by Dr. George B. McAniff, of 26 West Eighty-seventh street, who killed Blossom Martin, reception clerk in the same office, by choking her while they were alone in the house on June 8, maintained his plea of self-defense when called to the witness stand yesterday, adding a tale of alleged brutal treatment by police following his arrest. Lozada's testimony was listened to without display of emotion by Mrs. Laura Martin, mother of the dead girl, and by her sister, Marjorie.

During the early afternoon Lozada was compelled partly to undress in order that he might display scars which he said were inflicted by police at West 147th Street, S. L. when he was being questioned in the station house on the night of his arrest. The witness said patrolmen and detectives pressed lighted cigars against his flesh, each burn leaving a scar, and passed "fire across his face."

It is claimed that the intersection of Fifth avenue and Forty-second street in New York city is the busiest four corners in America.

"But I am so unworthy of you, dear!" His intended: "Oh, Fred, if you and father only agreed on every other point as you do on that, how happy we should be!"

each individual to solve. If a congregation feels that it must cut itself off from union it may do so. The doors are wide open and they may go endowed with everything they can use in the way of property and means.

"In the new church we are going to have all the money we want; let us be generous! The church is generous, and is now preparing its plans to be more than generous, to meet the wishes of any who may not be able to see that it is the will of God that they should move with the church in a certain direction. That door is wide open and there will be no feeling on our part of dislike or criticism. We may feel that they are making a mistake, but that is their business and we will pray that God may bless them, either there or with us."

"My own hope is that we will succeed in doing what has not yet been done by the different denominations. We have failed seriously and gravely so far as Canada is concerned, and we have terrible difficulties confronting us overseas. Our only hope is that God may show us ways of doing His will and opening our hearts more widely so that His great spirit may flood into us and make us, like our forebears in the old days, conquerors of the world."

Rev. W. M. Ryan, presided at the Methodist Church in the evening.

The first speaker, Rev. Dr. Endicott described a great Christian conference held a year and a half ago in China, attended by over a thousand delegates, half of whom were native Chinese. The message of that conference to the leading home churches of the world was "Why are you dividing us up into so many different denominations?"

The Chinese contended that on religious and national grounds there was no good reason for this in their country. This same difficulty is being felt everywhere in the mission fields.

John Wesley and John Knox made their decisions in their own day and established their churches. They did not worry about doing something which their grand fathers never heard of. The dead past cannot be kept on its throne. Christianity is a growing thing and the cry of Christendom today is that people who can get together and reorganize to meet the new conditions must do so.

Church Union is not a new experiment, but merely a continuance of what was begun twenty or thirty years ago, when the Presbyterians of Canada united with such splendid success. It was a step towards the day when Christ's followers shall become one flock and one people, working together to win the whole world.

Rev. Dr. Gordon in his address said he had always looked upon the Church Union movement as a religious one. The tremendous indictment of denominationalism, which came from China was he believed absolutely unanswerable, and it lays upon the men who claim that denominationalism is the best way of bringing about Christ's kingdom the responsibility of proving that what is right for China is wrong for Canada. The speaker was proud of the splendid traditions of the Presbyterian Church, but he shrank from carrying this responsibility further in the face of such an indictment.

There was no question of coercion in the decision of the Presbyterian General Assembly to unite with the Methodist and Congregational churches, he declares. The measure was adopted step by step, and the decision was reached by a vote of the Assembly as all other issues are decided. If that was coercion then every act in the history of the Assembly is coercion over the men voting in the minority. Generous arrangements have been made to provide for those congregations not wishing to enter the union and the prayers and sincere good wishes of the United Church will follow them.

The Union would not mean losing to the Presbyterian church its glorious traditions, but the acquisition of other fine traditions of Methodism and Congregationalism. Denominationalism had failed to do the work of Christ in Canada and for this reason alone he urged the support of unionism and the prayers of Christian people.

Both speakers received a cordial hearing and a standing vote of thanks was tendered them at the conclusion of the meeting.

Supreme Court

The Michelmas term of the Supreme Court was held yesterday in this city, with the Chief Justice and his associate judges on the bench.

It was a short session lasting only twenty-five minutes, the Court adjourning sine die.

The Chief Justice delivered judgment in the case of Albert J. Fraser, appellant, and Alexander A. McFean, respondent. This was an appeal from a conviction made by two Justices of the Peace for Kings County, and Magistrate for the town of Montague, against Dr. Fraser, on a charge of disturbing the public school of Montague. Dr. Fraser had been fined $10.60 costs or thirty days in jail. He appealed the case, and the appeal was heard last July term when judgment was reserved.

The evidence was to the effect that Dr. Fraser's eleven-year-old daughter, a pupil at the school had been sent home by the teacher on the ground that she was not studying. The Doctor called at the school to get an explanation. Some words passed between him and the teacher, the latter saying he pounded the window sill with his fist and spoke in a loud rough voice. The Doctor in his evidence said that his daughter was a delicate girl and could not keep up with her studies. His Worship in his judgment found that even accepting the prosecutor's statement as correct, Dr. Fraser was not guilty of an offence under the Criminal Code of Canada. The teacher had exceeded his authority in sending the child home and while in accord with the strict letter of the law Dr. Fraser should have applied to the trustees for remedy this process is somewhat slow and the end would be best served by a personal interview with the teacher. This interview however should have been so timed and conducted as not to interfere with or disturb the school work. It is a criminal offence to disturb religious services or meetings called for a social, moral or benevolent purpose, but schools are not specifically mentioned, and do not come under the classes specified in the criminal code. In other provinces provision is made for such cases and whether similar provision is to be made here is a matter for the Legislature.

His Lordship gave judgment in favor of the appellant (Dr. Fraser) allowing the appeal with costs.

On motion of Mr. A. C. Saunders, K. C., Mr. Charles St. Clair Trahear, B. A., of Albany, a graduate of St. Dunstan's University, was admitted as a student of Law in the office of Mr. Mark R. McGuigan, Charlottetown.

In the case of the Canadian Bank of Commerce versus J. Stantley Wedlock in which there had been a verdict for the defendant, the application for a new trial was also dismissed.

Waif Who Saved 317 Lives

(Dominion News Service)

LONDON, Nov. 6—One of the "old boys" of the Church of England Waifs and Strays Society in London, has been thanked and decorated by the Chinese Government for his part in saving the lives of 317 native soldiers.

The society, for obvious reasons, does not wish to disclose the identity of this gallant "old boy" who left the institution during the war and joined the Navy.

When he left the Service, at the close of the war, he secured a position with the Chinese Customs, and it was while serving at sea that he won the honour now bestowed on him. He is a native of Cambridge and is 27 years of age.

It is possible—though this cannot be confirmed—that the incident in which the decoration was won had some connection with the wreck of the steamer Hong Moh, of Singapore, with about 1,100 Chinese passengers, in October 1921.

At the time it was reported that when H. M. S. Carlisle arrived on the scene there were 350 persons aboard, and rescue work was carried on all day.

In Denmark eggs are sold by the pound or the score; not by the dozen.
