—A HELPING HAND — On Thursday last the usual supply of the people's popular paper did not arrive at Summerside, so to help out the difficulty some of the postoffice clerks made up a bundle of old issues which were lying about and sent them over to the local dealer. Not having time to read his copy of the paper just then, the dealer distributed several to his customers before it was discovered that some one had been showing backwicks the hand of time.

—LOOKS LIKE BROADWAY — Summerside during most of the summer months and even now in the shows of winter, has taken on the appearance of Broadway, with the principal streets in a constant state of upheaval and the principal streets barred to pedestrians covered with clay and other debris from the building operations that are seemingly under way all ways. Just as one builder or house owner has cleared away the accumulation of real estate from the front of his property, another enterprising individual starts in. When one man finishes making improvements to his roof, another starts in renovating his cellar. And there you are, 'y' know.

—WALTH IN SMALL PARCELS.—With several representatives of metropolitan fur buyers holding court in Summerside during the last few days, the western capital has taken on the appearance of western trading post. Fur ranchers have appeared in the town with fox pelts thrown over their shoulders, carried loosely at their sides, stuffed in paper packets, carried in paper boxes and even in debilitated flour barrels. Men with no other earmarks of affluence about them have been on the streets carrying in a disdainful or regardless manner furs that were worth as high as $5,000.00 in the bulk shown and according to the words of the chronicler of Bon-Akis, "not a hand was stretched out to take it."

—SUCCESSFUL ISLANDER — A recent issue of the Oakland (Cal.) Maple Leaf, has this to say about a native of Summerside now a successful business man in Calgary:—Although but a young man Harold D. Ferguson is already So. Alberta manager of the Canadian Life Assurance Co., with headquarters in Calgary and his many friends are conjecturing as to how long a time will elapse before he reaches the top of the ladder in his chosen business. His territory extends from the Montana boundary north to Lacombe and from Saskatchewan on the east to British Columbia on the west. Mr. Ferguson who was born in Summerside, P. E. Island, studied law for three years with J. H. Bell now premier of that province. He was also a clerk in a store in his native town at six dollars per week. In 1905 the western fever got him and he landed in Winnipeg financially stranded. From that city to Calgary he made his way as best he could being ejected several times from the train from Medicine Hat to Calgary but arriving at his destination just the same, and with only 35 cents in his pocket and yet to be met as it was then difficult to obtain comfortable lodging and good meals except at most prohibitive prices. His first position was that of book keeper for the Staples Lumber Co., and in a year and a half he was inspector of their nineteen yards in and north of Calgary. But his progressive spirit caused him to organize the Ferguson Lumber Co. with three yards and he bought a half interest in a lumber mill in Crows Nest, B. C., but in 1909 he sold out to the Revelstoke Sawmill Co., Minneapolis. After managing the business for six years he accepted

—DONATION — A couple of weeks ago Mr. R. E. Dennis gave the returns of moving picture show in O'Leary Hall to orphanage. As the night was very stormy the attendance was small but $19.00 was realized and forwarded to the home. A very good example; who next.

—WESTERN PERSONALS — Miss Ida Cushing of Boston, Mass., is visiting her mother, Mrs. Cushing, Summerside.

—Mr. J. J. Enman, formerly news editor of the Guardian and now a knight of the grip, has been in Summerside for the last few days on business.

—Canada because his wife was ill in the Dominion and had wanted to see him.

—The next day Haley crossed the border and surrendered at the nearest army post. He said he was Tomas C. Jones and produced the papers to prove it. It was his plan to serve Jones' sentence so that his buddy would be free to return to the United States.

—The program went without a hitch until a soldier who had known Jones came to Leavenworth. An investigation followed and comparison of finger prints proved that Haley was not Jones. Machinery was at once set in motion to secure his release.

—THE CARBORUNDUM DEGREE — Sambo: "Looky heah, big boy don' yo all mess wid me, 'cause Ah's hard. Las' week Ah falls on a buzz saw and Ah busts it complete." "Call dat hard? Listen man. Ah scratches the bathtub."

—WE DEMAND PROOFS! — "Has Jones any influence?" asked the party leader. "He must have," asserted his henchman. "If he hasn't I don't know how he manages to make every street car stop for him."

—Embryo Aviator (in the midst of a dizzy spiral): "Heavens, Wilbur, just look at the earth!" His Even Embroyer Associate: "Mercy, Oswald, it's lucky we got away when we did! It certainly is behaving strangely."

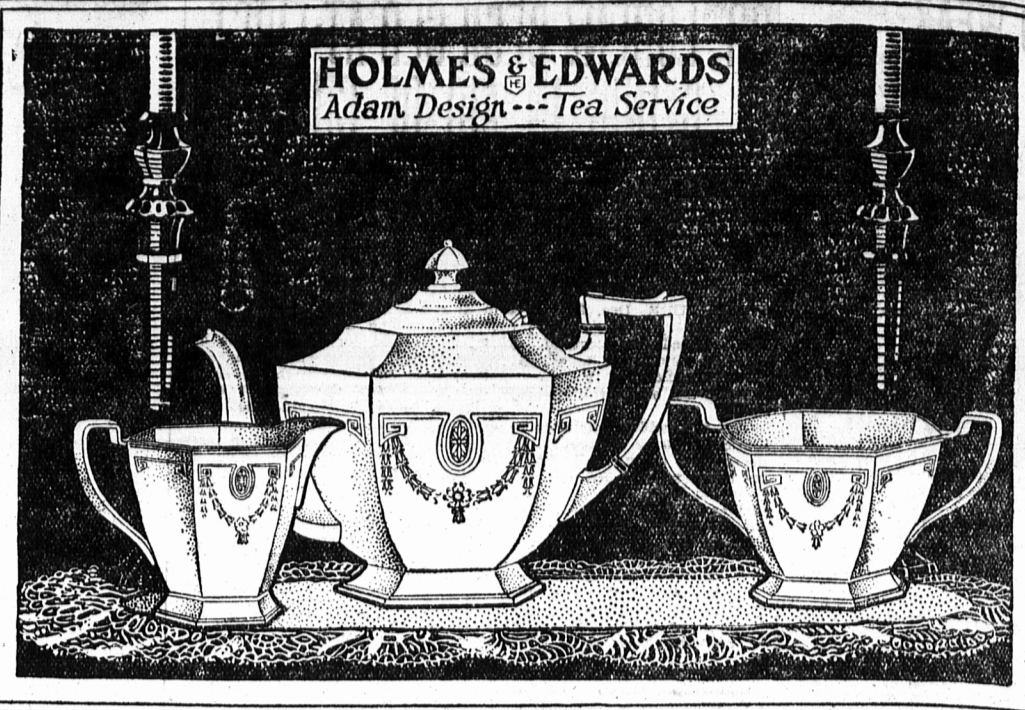

—NOTICE — Notice is hereby given that the annual meeting of the Premier S. B. Fox Co., will be held in the Hall at Bedeque on Tuesday, Dec. 6th, 1921 at 2 p. m. THOM. MOYSSE, Secy.

—MUTT AND JEFF— Jeff Knows he Can't Get a Return Trip Ticket.

—VETERAN OF BRITISH ARMY PERSONATES U. S. BUDDY WHO SAVED HIS LIFE. — At Fort Leavenworth, Kansas, Harry W. Haley who served with the British army in France, walked out of the government prison recently a free man, released on the special order of the war department after he had served part of a six months' sentence for desertion imposed, so the Court Martial at Fort Stocum, N. Y. thought upon Thomas G. Jones. But Haley, because Jones had saved his life in France, had taken Jones' name, impersonated Jones at the trial and had been sent to the Leavenworth prison as Jones. Haley and Jones, were in the British army before the United States entered the war. They were in the same company and were close friends. One night while the unit was under fire at an advanced post, Haley was then wounded in the leg and disabled. Under heavy artillery and machine fire Jones carried his comrade back to safety, and escaping un wounded himself.

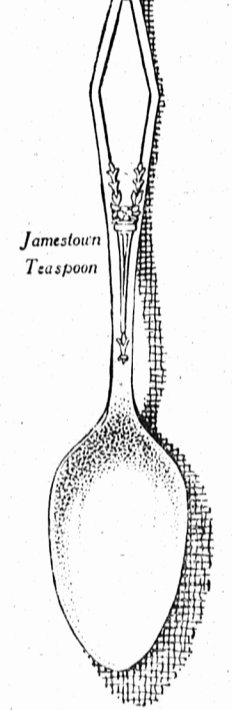

—The two never met again during the war. Jones, a native of the United States, was transferred to his own forces, when the United States declared war. A few months ago the two men met in Canada, by the merest chance and then Jones confessed to his former comrade that he had deserted from the United States army and was "wanted." He said he had deserted at Fort Stocum and come
