American Explorer Praises His Wife

(Canadian Press)

VANCOUVER, B. C., Sept. 1.—"My wife can do everything that I can," said James L. Clark, assistant director of the American Museum of Natural History. He has twice been to East Africa and he has covered many parts of North America, but this is the first time he has visited British Columbia, where he is to collect specimens of the Osborn caribou. Mrs. Clark has been his companion on all these trips. One does the shooting while the other takes motion pictures. They are going to Wrangell and from there to Telegraph Creek, head of navigation on the Stikine River, where they will outfit for two months in the Cassiar. They will be nearly 40 days on horseback.

Long River Notes

Mr. Murdoch McLeod writes:—Would you please give me space in your valuable paper to refute several incorrect statements which reflect on the good people of Long River and vicinity. These statements were in your issue of the 25th. Inst. under the caption "Long River Notes" and were concerned with the church meeting called by the continuing Presbyterians.

First, this was a congregational meeting called for the purpose of appointing managers, sec'y., treasurer, etc., and not to call a minister as stated. With reference to this it was said that "suitable committees were appointed." Let me point out that of the eight appointees only two were church members, a direct violation of the laws of the Blue Book so rigidly adhered to during the rest of the meeting.

The statements that D. Johnson put out the lights and Mr. McLeod closed the meeting with prayer are both incorrect. Further it is giving a false impression to say that those who voted for union began a discussion on irrelevant matters. With the exception of one person who made a brief correction no one who had voted union took any part in the dispute whatever until after the meeting had adjourned.

It is also false to say that the questions I raised, "had already been settled by a vote of the congregation." When the business part of the meeting was over, as chairman of the trustees, a member and supporter of the church and one who voted that the church go out of the union I asked for permission to speak which was readily granted. But the questions I raised viz. why a padlock had been placed on the church door and why the churchyard gates had been wired were not subjects for pleasant discussion and the meeting was hastily adjourned in the lobby and yard of the church but not "ill a late hour" as stated.

It was in these discussions that those who had voted for union took part. It was then that Mr. Allan Campbell stated that he had put the padlock on the door and that he had done so with the sanction of the Moderator and Clerk of the Presbytery of the Presbyterian church. If such is the case we would like to know why the Rev. Gentleman commissioned Mr. Campbell to do so without consulting with session, trustees or managers of the church, although there were a number in each of these officers who had voted that the church go out of the union.

If the writer who laments the "Godless methods" of the unionists of the community would sign his name there is less likelihood of such misrepresentation and untruths being circulated.

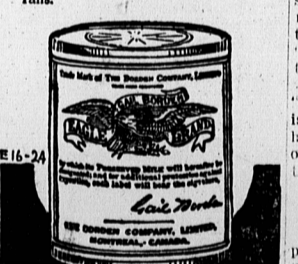

If there are only a few mustard plants, thistles, sowthistles or other weeds scattered through the grain it will be profitable business to find time to pull, spud or dig them out. By all means prevent them spreading by means of seed or underground root stalk.

PLACING THE BLAME.
"I wish to complain," said the bride, laughingly "about the tough flour you sold me."
"Tough flour, madam?"
"Yes, tough flour! I made a pie with it and my husband couldn't eat it."

London, of Moncton, was united in marriage to Frederick Cox of Charlottetown. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. J. A. Huntley, pastor of the First Baptist Church. The bride was attired in a navy blue suit trimmed with seal and carried a bouquet of sweetheart roses. She was given in marriage by her father and entered the drawing room to the strains of the Wedding March from Lohengrin, played by Professor George Ross. The ceremony was performed under a canopy of wedding and gold-leaf glow. The house was beautifully decorated with sweet peas, gladioli and ferns. Following the ceremony a recherche luncheon was served. Mrs. T. T. Goodwin and Mrs. Ernest Ayer poured and Mrs. George Ross and Mrs. Beveridge assisted in serving. The bridesmaids were the Misses Mary Dykeman, Nellie Wry, Jennie Hannah, Hazel Kennedy, Mrs. George Hawes and Mrs. Fred Kennedy. THE FORD CAR
Mr. W. R. Campbell, vice-president and treasurer of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, in a statement issued today following the announcement of the improved Ford bodies and chassis refinements emphasizes the fact that there are no new Ford models. "Bodies for Ford cars have been materially improved," he states, "but the model T chassis remains practically the same. There are several important changes in the chassis but they do not affect the basic design in any way detrimental to the servicing of the half million cars already produced by this Company and Overseas territory. The bodies in four types have been completely redesigned and built lower to contribute to better appearance, driving and riding comfort. All improvements and refinements are more pronounced than at any time since the adoption of the model T chassis, but they are entirely in accordance with the Company's policy of giving the public the benefit of every improvement found practical by preserving the model T chassis design. "The Company safeguards the continued good service to fifty per cent. of Canada's car owners and eighty per cent. of the trucks now in use throughout the Dominion."

HAIRDRESSERS SAY Bob Is Doomed
(Canadian Press)
MONTREAL, Que., Sept. 1.—"Long hair will soon be in style again, though I cannot state even approximately the date at which it will begin to be a general fashion," said J. M. Perron, Toronto, secretary of the National Hairdressers' Association of Canada, speaking of proposed alterations in dressing of women's hair. "The change is taking place in England and France. It will be hard for the Canadian girls to grow used to the idea at first, and so they won't bother much about the kinds of ornament they will choose for their long locks, for some time yet. Among the wealthy people transformations will be very much worn. Having been abroad and having been in contact with people who know the profession thoroughly, I am safe in saying that in Canada we have as good hairdressers and workers as in any of the other countries. In Canadian hair-dressing parlors I have seen graduates from schools of England, Belgium, France and the United States."

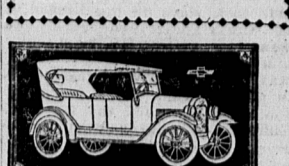

GOVERNMENT OPPOSES REMOVAL OF BODIES
OTTAWA, Aug. 31.—The fact that the body of Captain Durie, the first Canadian killed in France, was brought back to Canada, has not the official cognizance of the department of militia here, and discloses no new policy so far as the department or the government is concerned. "We have consistently set our face against the removal of bodies from the war zone," said G. J. Desbarats, deputy minister of defense, today. "The bodies of those who died in France and Belgium, are under the control of the Imperial Graves Commission, and under agreement with France and Belgium they are to remain in the country where they fell fighting together."

CHANGING GEARS FROM HIGH TO LOW

When ascending a steep grade it is sometimes necessary to change from high to second, and more remotely from second to low. Often much excitement and nervousness prevails when this is about to happen and it has been known to be the cause of accidents, through the car backing down hill. It is quite simple to change gears when ascending a grade. Just as simple in fact as an ordinary change from second to high. Do not wait until the last moment before changing. Just as soon as you become aware of the fact that the car will not take the hill on high, depress the clutch and almost simultaneously slide the lever into second.

Do not lose any time, but do not change violently. It is not necessary to alter the acceleration in the least, if the change is made quickly and instantly the foot depresses the clutch. Of course the clutch must be engaged with all speed. The operation should take about one second and certainly not more than two seconds. A little practice is necessary for changing from second to low, but the change is seldom made.

Double Capacity

Reg Trade Mark

take pleasure in announcing to the Fox Breeders of Prince Edward Island that they have doubled the capacity of their plant. This has been made necessary by the insistent demand for IMPERIAL FOX BISCUITS throughout Canada. In the United States the demand is satisfied by the Imperial Biscuit Co., Inc., of Sackets Harbor, N. Y.

IMPERIAL FOX BISCUITS have been the backbone of the feeding schedule of nearly all the successful ranches on Prince Edward Island. They represent the highest form of nutritional value. Their formula has been thoroughly tested and year after year proved most satisfactory. All ingredients used are the purest and best money can buy.

NOW is the time to start in feeding heavily with Imperials so as to give your foxes long, silky guard fur and good clear under fur. Foxes fed with IMPERIAL BISCUITS are noted for glossy and healthy appearance.

Practically all the prize-winning foxes at the Fox Shows and Exhibitions and almost all bringing the highest pelt values, including the highest pelt in the recent London Sale, were the result of feeding with IMPERIAL FOX BISCUITS.

Canadian Beer Has Lost Its Charm For U. S. Tourists
(Associated Press)
DETROIT, Sept. 2.—The tourist season is under full steam now and the ferries and bridges are crowded with Ontario-bound Americans, but the situation in the Promised Land for the thirsty is peculiarly drab for those who expected to get a quench out of the widely heralded "44 beer."
What has become of the emigrating thousands whose feet tramped hurriedly across the gang planks of Detroit-Windsor ferries and rushed the International bridge at Niagara in that grand but rather short-lived offensive extending along a great front from Port Huron and points north to the Georgian Bay region to Buffalo and along the St. Lawrence river?
It is a question that frequently confounds the callous border city citizen when the visitor whispers the inquiry. The answer, which is indirect but pertinent to the question, usually comes readily and with a tinge of scorn, though polite: "Oh, its on tap over there," indicating a hotel or inn. "We don't drink it, you know."

AUSTEN CHAMBERLAIN ON STYLE AND JEWELRY
LONDON, Sept. 3.—Mr. Austen Chamberlain, who, with a party of Birmingham M. P's, visited the British Empire Exhibition, and inspected the exhibit of Birmingham Jewellers and Silversmiths Association, said that jewellers were now suffering from the present fashion.
"Women's taste, or perhaps the taste which is imposed upon them," he added, "varies from time to time and the present tastes in dress and in coiffure do not conduce to that display of jewelry which our ancestors affected."
