EXTENDING TO ALL A VERY VERY HAPPY AND PROSPEROUS NEW YEAR.

Late Start.

Artificial ice in Halifax and the prevailing cold weather in other districts throughout New Brunswick and Nova Scotia has enabled the numerous hockey teams representing the different towns and cities to get a few weeks head start on the island puck chasers. However, the management of the Arena with the co-operation of their able caretaker, Mr. John McAlroy, are in hopes of having a splendid sheet of ice within the next few days. Needless to say the Abegweits and Victorias are anxious for the get-away. It is hoped that a few extra practice nights can be crowded into the usual schedule, which will no doubt be necessary in order to help the boys to catch up in the rounding out and conditioning process.

A member of the Stellarton team in the A. P. C. League who is at present visiting friends in the city, in the A. P. C. League who is at teammates are more than anxious to have a go with the Abegweits some time around the New Year. He furthermore stated that they would rather play the Abegweits in their inaugural tilt than any team in the Maritimes.

The above is typical of the many star aggregations both in New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. The courteous treatment extended to visiting teams and the splendid games of hockey given them by the Abegweits have made us more than famous among the hockeyists of the sister provinces.

The speedway at Victoria Park is beginning to look good. Speed and plenty of it will soon be seen in action. At any rate—"It won't be long now." That's the last time I'll use that phrase.

Curling.

Stones are being polished up, brooms shaped, mackinaws and reefers are already down from the hooks, and altogether hustle and bustle and general activity indicates that there's soon to be something doing at the local Curling Rink.

Sport enthusiasts and all lovers of the various winter pastimes who have not as yet visited the Curling Rink would be well advised to saunter along lower Grafton Street some of these days and drop in. Excellent quarters, courtesy a general atmosphere of good fellowship seems to be the idea of the surroundings. Three playing spaces or rinks, the finest in the Maritime Provinces are always well filled with excited curlers brooming and shouting intermingled with the click, click of the scores of stones as they glide toward the "circles." All in all Charlottetown can boast of one of the finest curling arenas in Eastern Canada—not forgetting to mention a goodly number of curlers who can hold their own with the best.

Referee "Sonny" Foley, the target for the attack which cost Manager "Newsey" Lalonde a fine of $100 and an indefinite suspension is a former Boston College player when that team was rated as the best college sextette in the Eastern States. In 1924 they swept everything before them including the Big Three—Princeton, Harvard and Yale. The sextette for the Jesuit Institute of learning for that year, was: Fitzgerald, goal; Mahoney and Mulhoney, defence; Foley, centre; Groden, right wing; Culhavy, left wing. The line-up read like an all-Ireland team.

This team barely nosed the famous 1924 Abegweits out in one of the most thrilling and exciting amateur games ever witnessed in the Boston Arena, which was packed to the rafters on the both nights the Abegweits performed.

Burt Hoxie, famous and internationally known sports writer who covered the games for the Guardian at that time thought the Abegweits were the better team, but seemed lost, apparently on the large ice space. Such an exhibition of fast skating Hoxie had never witnessed before. Foley said he

The lower photograph shows the death car, stolen from a fight, Hickman confessed that he Kansas City physician, in which had kidnapped the girl, but insisted Hickman is alleged to have abducted her. never knew there was so much speed in his team until the Abegweits arrived and cut loose with their "stuff."

Elmer Ferguson, writing in the Montreal Herald, says: "Some of the good have been putting Manager Cecil Hart, of the Canadiens, 'in the grease' as the boys say, because he traded young and aggressive Martin Burke, to the lowly Pirates, and took from them around Charley Langlois, a rather venerable and undoubtedly intelligent, defence man. On the face of it, the deal doesn't look like one that would place Hart's best David Harms, but until it develops that Mr. Langlois cannot move his surplus poundage, your correspondent is going to be inclined to favor the deal. He has seen deals executed by Manager Cecil Hart before, which did not look so good to the critics, but the deal afterwards looked very good for the team, in whom interests Mr. Hart made them, and not on good for the teams he traded with. There was the occasion on which Mr. Hart bought Reg Noble from Toronto for Montreal Maroons, and paid $6,000 for a player even then regarded something of a spent force. He did this without consulting anybody and the Maroons directors, on hearing of the price, promptly began placing the balance of the club's valuables in the safe, where Mr. Hart could not get at them. Other clubs rushed offers of talent at Mr. Hart. If he is paying $6,000 for Noble, then maybe I can sell him a whole forward line," Tommy Gorman, of Ottawa, is reported to have said, and promptly rushed a telegram, addressed to Manager Hart, offering to sell him all rights on Cyclone Taylor, Didier Pitre, and Alf Smith, for $5 cash. Percy Thompson, then piloting the Hamilton team, wired asking if Manager Hart could let him have two tens for a five. Other rude messages were received from all parts of the circuit, while the critics began and that hardened magnates like Charlie Querrie could play up on the simple innocence of a newcomer to the game. A cartoonist pictured Manager Hart standing in the lobby of the King Edward Hotel with the collar of his jacket turned up, wearing no overcoat, while Mr. Querrie was seen going out with two overcoats. Your correspondent cautiously enquired whether the price of Noble was $6,000 or $6, but as it later developed, all the wags and critics were very wrong. In new surroundings, Noble became a potent factor with the Maroons, and was the pivot of the big red club when it crashed through to a world's title in the second year of its existence. This was scant consolation to Manager Hart, who had come to the parting of the ways with that club, a parting for which the purchase of Noble was in no small part responsible, but it gave him some moral satisfaction. On this occasion your correspondent is going to string along with Manager Hart, who seems to know his hockey scallions."

An English inventor is experimenting with a railway on which single stream lined cars are planned to carry passengers at speeds of from 200 to 300 miles an hour.

Under the able leadership of Mrs. Howard Clark, the choir rendered some most Dec. appropriate and very excellent May NEWCASTLE, Dec. 28.—The newly erected Arena in the heart of the business section of Newcastle has been completed and is to be known as the "Dalton Arena." It is ideal in every respect, spacious well lighted, elevated promenade, comfortable hockey rooms for visiting and home teams with a beautiful surface, 185 by 85 feet, the largest ice sheet in Northern New Brunswick.

Newcastle has been successful in entertaining a team in the North Shore League with such players as James Fallon, Thomas Fallon, Keating, who need no introduction to the fans on the North Shore, James having played with Bathurst when they won the northern section of the N. B. H. L. Tommie is the outstanding player of the Moncton Atlantics in their play-off last year.

A new water circulating pump for small automobiles also can be used to pump oil or sound a horn when a pedal is pressed, power being supplied from the fan belt.

Christmas music. The two special numbers in the evening and the solo by Mrs. Edward Forsyth were greatly appreciated. Next Sabbath morning, January 1st, 1928, the theme will be A New Year message from Hebrews 1:12—"But Thou art the same, and thy years shall not fail. In the evening the choir will sing some of the grand old hymns—among them will be two of Canada's own hymns—What a Friend we have in Jesus by Joseph Scriven, and Work for the Night is Coming by Miss Anna L. Walker. The minister will give a brief review of the circumstances under which some of our hymns were written, among them are, Stille Nacht, Heilige Nacht—Holy Night, Peaceful Night by Joseph Mohr. Watchman Tell us of the Night by Sir John Bowring, Lead Kindly Light by Cardinal John Henry Newman, Crossing the Bar by Lord Alfred Tennyson, Home Sweet Home by John Howard Payne. A cordial invitation is extended to all—come and enjoy a delightful hour Sabbath evening January 1st, 1928. The annual Congregational Meeting of the Alberton Presbyterian Church will be held at the church, Tuesday, January 10th, 1928 at 3 p. m.

Peace In Our Time

(From the Bank of Nova Scotia Monthly Review.)

The fashion for slogans, each expressing the spirit of a period, has this at least to recommend it. By means of such slogans we can "date" the moods and ambitions of yesterday. To recall a series of them is to pass in review the policies which have successively captivated men's minds.

All of us can recall a time not long ago when "reconstruction" was the slogan of the moment. The nations, released from the nightmare of war, were nursing their wounds and contemplating meanwhile the widespread wreckage and havoc around them. The next few years, it was hoped, would see the clearing of the debris, followed by rebuilding on an extensive scale. The physical rebuilding of the devastated areas is already complete or not far from completion. As thousands of Canadians making their pilgrimage to the battlefields of Flanders have seen for themselves, the cities of Belgium and France are restored and have hidden successfully the scars of battle. But elsewhere in the world, where there was little physical destruction and not much actual building to be done, there are other "devastated areas" which challenge us, and challenge no less sternly because the devastation is not at first sight visible.

There are industrial districts in more than one country which though far removed from the war zone, suffered the lasting effects of warfare. These districts are still faced with demoralized markets and burdened with idle workers and machinery.

Instead of achieving an all-round restoration in the nine years that have passed since November, 1918, we have patched up the best we could of the framework of civilization. Meanwhile, we can claim that most of us have realized the problem to be solved; and can see clearly that at bottom it is one of social relationships. The old order has been altered, and altered permanently by the War.

Canada could not but feel the influence of changes which have spared none of the nations. No cause it is prior to the fulfillment longer the destination of immigrants in hundreds of thousands in our time. With peace assured, annually, no longer engaged in vast schemes of railroad construction, she has shed the mood of fine
