COLD MARBLE.

A prophet's voice from out the tomb,
Cries "Harken, O my people!"
It came seven miles o'er field and foam
Till up by yon high church it climbed,
And moaned around the steeple:
"What monument, O brethren mine,
Will ye erect my name to enshrine?"

"The Jews their prophets' tombs white-washed,
From Beer Sheba to Paniel,
The prophets' creed they from them dashed,
But raised His tablet unabashed
Now friends ye have your Daniel,
Will ye a slab of marble garnish
And shine it o'er with flattery's varnish?"

"What monument, when I am gone,
Can best ensrine my name?
Will ye just carve it in cold stone
And straightway my beliefs disown?
Remove that slab for shame!
Up with His tomb down with His creed,
O here's the Pharisee indeed?"

"I asked for bread—God's word alone,
Obeyed among the humble—
I asked for bread; ye gave a stone
Cold, polished, hard, as love has grown
Well chosen was your symbol,
Then graces plies their grace notes warble
And praise your dead on dead cold marble."

"My true Memorial I call
Those loving what I've taught
Those living stones declared by Paul,
Not dead ones roosting on the wall.
Let such memorials rot!
Now hear me, O my churches seven,
Unvail no other stone 'neath Heaven!"

Programme for Labor Day Sports

The Driving Club met last night and re-arranged the classes for Labor Day adding some new horses and cutting out some that had been injured or drawn from the lists. The battle line up in the various classes is now a real good one each race being arranged to give the closest possible finishes. Additional interest will be taken in the fast class in the entry of Colonel Walt 2:16-4. Many are anxious to see this much talked of horse perform against Kentucky Marque 2:13-4 and Albert J. 2:21. This race will certainly be a good one with some heats shading 2:16 if track and weather is favorable. The following are entries.

CLASS A TROT AND PACE.

Kentucky Marque, Albert J., Colonel Walt

CLASS B PACE

Commodore K, Chief Aubrey, Ginger Boy, Winnifred W.

CLASS C TROT

Betty, Commodore, David S, Mac Todd, Mickey B, R. G. A.

Northen Lady
In connection with Labor Day one of the outstanding features will be the events performed by the athletes. Bicycle events will be keenly contested, there will be at least five starters, McPherson, Moran, Gordon Francis, will fight for supremacy to represent the city in the Maritime Championships at St. John. In the sprints close finishes are looked for. Doyle has been hard at work and will give McEachern keen competition. Lou Campbell may surprise the fans in view of his excellent performance at the Caledonian games. In the hurdles stirring finishes will be in order. Phil McDonald shows great style and will give the older athletes a royal battle. His jump is a great one in all the events there will be exciting results and the spectators will witness high class efforts.

INTENTIONS GOOD, METHODS POOR

The Pullman porter's intentions were good, but his methods poor. Two sisters, near the sixty mark, were en route from Kansas to Indiana. The younger, weighing about 80 pounds, was convalescing from a long illness and needed assistance in moving about. The porter frequently was called for help. One morning he met the older sister, who weighed near the 150 mark and remarked:
"Why, your mother just walked down the aisle. She must be much better."
And when the porter was told of the "social error" he made, he spent the greater part of the remainder of the journey pleading with the older sister not to tell of his mistake.

UNION COMMERCIAL COLLEGE NOTES

Everything ready for opening, Tuesday Sept. 6th.

A full equipment of new typewriters, adding machines, mimeographs, filing cabinets, etc., all ready for the students.

Old times methods are passing, new ones are taking their place. The courses at the U. C. C. are right up to the minute. No expense spared in keeping them so.

Touch Typewriting taught on the newest machines. This is the only way to learn. You cannot learn on old machines. You are only wasting your time.

When school teachers come all the way from Western Canada to take a course at the Union Commercial College, there's a reason.

Every year we award gold medals to the students doing the best work. We will do the same this year. They deserve them.

Prin. Moran will be pleased to show all interested persons through the College rooms and explain the different courses.

Parents should look to the comfort of their boys and girls and safeguard their health by sending them to a school where everything is sanitary. The U. C. C. has all modern conveniences. This is worth remembering when selecting a school.

Factors in Successful Fairs

C. E. McKenzie

In a recent article a number of hints were given to the management of exhibitions that would tend to success, but then the management alone are not always responsible for either the success or failure. The three important factors in any agricultural fair are management, exhibitors and the public, hence in this article I will endeavour to throw out a few hints to exhibitors.

Many excellent products exhibited at fairs frequently do not receive the consideration that their quality deserves simply because the exhibitor has not taken sufficient time and trouble to show them at their best. For instance a sheep may contain an excellent sample of grain, but if it is not made up in an attractive sample form, the good qualities of the exhibit will be lost upon those who attend the fair, even if the judges should discover them. The same thing holds true in the case of root crops, vegetables, fruits and also in live stock.

The preparation of exhibits is by far the most troublesome thing in connection with showing live stock, farm products or live stock, but that it pays if one is going to exhibit at all to prepare cannot be denied.

Exhibitors of grains, roots, etc., should endeavor to prepare their articles and study effect so that when placed for competition their goods will be there to attract the eye of not only the judge, but also of the visitors. To the enthusiastic farmer what would be more pleasing than a systematic array of grains either in sheaf or shell, each one true to name and shown in such an attractive way that visitors cannot help but take notice of them. Field roots such as mangels, sugar beets and turnips and vegetable roots as carrots, parsnips, etc., do not require as much care in their preparation as grain but care is necessary nevertheless. In this class of products uniformity and smoothness are just as essential as in every other class and great care should be taken that the specimens are true to type for the variety and not too large. The importance of size is too often overrated with the result that quality, the most important single characteristic of success, and it is hardly necessary to add that the larger the specimens one can secure, providing quality is not sacrificed the better.

As a guide to type one could do no better than to follow the illustrations of the seed catalogue of any of the exhibitors. The preparation and showing of live stock principally horses and cattle too much work cannot be done on the training and showing to advantage of your exhibit. Many breeders and exhibitors are good fitters in every way but if the training is neglected, very often the superior animals are out of the money.

The man who understands how to show often carries off honors over even a superior animal in the hands of one who is indifferent to how he shows his exhibit. In horses in particular always have your animal in attention so that he is standing squarely on his feet and in a position where he will show to advantage. The successful showman can tell at a glance when he enters the ring where the best position is and makes an effort to get his exhibit in that position. Again little details not only set off your animal but offend the cover some minor defects which may not escape the eye of a good judge but he is likely to give the attendant credit for being up to date. In exhibiting cattle especially those of the dairy type owners and attendants should make it a point to advertise their animals. All milk records of the individual should be shown in a conspicuous place as well as name of particular breed and records of ancestors. In this way you attract the attention of the public and sales are a sure outcome of this kind of advertising.

In selecting your stables it is well to have your animals so arranged that the exhibitor can get the best possible view of them. At the same time the work of the successful exhibitor is no play work but let me say that strict attention to details always pays and helps in making the show a success.

THE DEATH OF SUMMER

Carolyn M. Lewis in N. Y. Times

Lavender flowers and roses' breath,
And my heart breathes a sign for you,
Asters have heralded Summer's path
And the kind sky shrouded her all in blue—
Draped a cloud on her, fold on fold,
Goldenrod showered her with his gold,
And the breeze so sweet, in the strange still heat,
Dropped a kiss at his dead love's feet.

Murmur of bees and rustle of grass,
As it stoops to bend its head,
Letting the ghost of the Summer pass,
To land of the unseen dead,
Her eyes were blue your eyes are blue,
And oh, how my heart has longed for you,
While earth and sky so silently
Were waiting, waiting as even I.

STUDYING SMOKE.

Smoke is perhaps the chief enemy of fire-fighters. It chokes and may kill. The United States bureau of standards has newly built what it calls a "smoke house," for experiments which are expected to be of practical usefulness to the fire departments of our cities. It will be used to determine exactly what is required to make "smoke masks" a safe and sure protection for men engaged in subduing fires.

FORTUNES LEFT TO PETS. Sometimes cats fare well very well as beneficiaries under wills. It was a Parisian woman, a few years ago, who left $10,000 francs to her cat. On its death the money was to be spent on elementary schools. The will has since died and the money distributed according to directions. In numerous instances fortunes have been left to found homes for cats and dogs.

Sometimes these wills have been dictated by love of animals; while others, also, they have been written merely for the purpose of "getting even" with grasping relatives.
