SOME FACTS NECESSITATING AN ANNUAL COLLECTION

This institution was entirely built and has been almost entirely maintained by the generous contributions of friends throughout the province. The funds necessary to carry on this good work must come from this annual collection for without it there is practically no other revenue.

The home has provided shelter and professional care to more than 1000 children during these difficult times than ever before in its history.

The strictest economy has been practised; expenditures have been carefully watched but the children have not been denied anything that was for their good.

The home does not make any charge for the children in its care; nowhere can funds be obtained except through an appeal to the generous public and this appeal is launched once and only once during the year.

The subscription lists will open on November 1st; donations will be acknowledged through the press; collectors will call.

It is the earnest hope that a generous public will be generous still and these unfortunate children will continue to improve under such suitable conditions as our help can provide.

The flickering radiance of 94 colored candles lit up the birthday tea-party in London recently of one of England's oldest titled twins - the Dowager Lady Loch.

Her twin sister, the Dowager Lady Lytton, who lives at Kenelworth, Hertfordshire, had no cake or candles, but both sisters spent their 94th birthday surrounded by members of their families.
