British Premier Says Every Nation Must Join In

(Special to The Guardian)

LONDON, Dec. 27.—Premier David Lloyd-George, presiding at a luncheon given today in the House of Commons for the British Dominion delegates to the recent League of Nations assembly in Geneva, declared the league would never achieve real progress until all the nations were represented. He said he looked forward hopefully to the United States coming into the league. This, he asserted, was essential. There could be no real peace, declared the Premier, until competition in armaments ceased and before disarmament was possible, all nations must be in league for all must march together.

Best Train Service for Holiday Travel

CANADIAN NATIONAL ROUTE AFFORDS FINEST OF FACILITIES FOR MOST COMFORTABLE JOURNEY

From all Maritime Province points to Quebec, Ontario or the West, the Canadian National Railway provides the finest of travel conveniences.

Service to all parts of Canada is now the best that can be provided and those who wish to travel during the holiday season will do well to study the train schedules, consider the real excellence of the service provided, and then consult the nearest ticket agent of the Canadian National. The two through trains between Montreal and Maritime Provinces points, viz the Ocean Limited and the Maritime Express, are equal in regard to modern equipment to the best trains on the continent. They are solid steel trains, with the newest type of standard sleepers and standard diners.

The Ocean Limited is the daily train between Halifax and Montreal. Arriving at Montreal at 9.20 a. m. this train affords immediate connection with the G. T. R. International Limited for Toronto and Chicago. Connection is also established with the "Continental Limited", the train de Luxe of the Canadian National Railway, which leaves Bonaventure station at 5.00 p. m. daily for Ottawa, North Bay, Port Arthur, Fort William, Saskatoon, Edmonton and Vancouver.

The Maritime Express leaving Halifax at 3.10 p. m. (except Sundays) affords connection at Quebec with the Transcontinental train leaving Palais station at 4.30 p. m. (daily) for Winnipeg. Connection is also established at Montreal with the G. T. R. night trains for Toronto and with G. T. R. train for Ottawa.

Enquiry at the Canadian National Railway ticket offices will produce further information regarding these services, and concerning fares reservations. The finest of service is afforded by Canadian National lines.

THE WOMAN HE MARRIED

BY JANE PHELPS

NAN THINKS MRS. WILLIAMS DISAGREEABLE

Chapter 43.

"I saw Mr. Ogden eyeing you closely," Mother Williams said when we reached home.

"He has an eye for beauty," Dick broke in laughingly.

"I don't think it was that," she replied disagreeably. "I should be inclined to think he was wondering how you could afford to dress Nan as she was dressed."

"Now Mother!" Dick said in a warning voice, but I left the room knew if I remained I would quarrel with her, I was trembling all over with anger. The meddlesome old woman, I said to myself as I threw my hat on the bed and started to undress. Usually after we had spent the evening at the theatre or a movie I fixed a little supper for Dick. But if he had any thing to eat he'd have to get it himself this night.

"I'm sorry you felt annoyed with Mother," he said a few moments later. I had heard him bid her an affectionate goodnight. "She is old, and perhaps old-fashioned, but she means well."

"If it was anyone in the world but your mother, Dick, I wouldn't stand for it!"

"I know, dear. Now let's forget it. We had such a nice evening, I hate to think it has been spoiled."

I said no more, but it was hard to appear natural the next morning when Mother Williams came to breakfast. Dick noticed it, and talked and joked constantly. By the time we had finished I had my self in hand.

"Be a sport, Nan!" he whispered when he kissed me goodbye.

"I'll try," I replied, not at all sure I could control myself if his mother interfered again.

That day Mrs. Gray came in to call.

"I heard that your mother was here, and have been trying to get in, but I haven't been very well," I felt guilty. She had been so kind and neighborly that I was ashamed she could be ill and I not know it.

"Mr. William's mother," I said, introducing the two.

They seemed to take to each other at once. I was delighted when Mrs. Gray praised me, my housekeeping, my care of Junior.

"Your son is blessed in having so competent a wife," she said "So many girls nowadays know nothing of keeping house, or caring for a baby."

"Junior is like my son. He was always a healthy, husky boy."

I changed the subject by offering tea, and they soon were chatting about their younger days, the change in the times, etc. But I scarcely listened. Mother Williams would be gone in a few days. Dick must make more money. The butcher had only that morning intimated he could not wait much longer for his bill, and I wanted so many things for the house, for myself, and for Junior.

I had contrived to make Dick open an account for me in one of the department stores. But he had made me promise I would buy nothing except little things that were absolutely necessary, without consulting him.

Unfortunately, Mother Williams had heard us talking and had delivered quite a lecture on the evils of charge accounts.

"People always spend more, and for things they do not need. It is so easy to say 'charge it' and the goods are so temptingly displayed. It is done purposely to tempt those who haven't stamina to buy only what they need and what they can pay for. If there was no such thing as credit, there would be fewer divorces."

Dick and I both pretended to laugh at her extreme notions but I was terribly annoyed. It seemed that since she had arrived I had been criticised for everything I did or wanted to do, although Dick tried to laugh it off and pretend it had no effect upon him.

Clara and Mother Williams did not hit it off at all. Mother objected to all Clara said and did.

"I don't think she is a proper companion for you, Nan. She seems lacking in character, moral responsibility. Now, Mrs. Gray is a lovely woman and—"

"Old enough to be my mother! You will have to let me choose my own friends, I am afraid."

"You'd better be with older people of the right sort than with younger ones who influence you to do wrong." I let her have the last word. What use to argue?

Hints for the Motorist

BY ALBERT L. CLOUGH

ENGINE MISSES AFTER SHORT RUN

E. A. writes: After having adjusted the carburetor of my car, so that the engine runs smoothly enough when idling, it will run only a quarter of a mile or so, under load, before it begins to start to jerk and all the power is gone. I think that this is the fault of the carburetor. What is your opinion?

Answer: You are probably right in laying this trouble to the carburetor. It seems likely that the adjustment is incorrect for open throttle operation, probably being over rich to the extent that the spark plugs soon foul and short-circuit, causing missed explosions and the jerking of which you speak. If the plugs are found to be black when examined after the engine has been run to run irregularly, you may be sure that this is the case. If the plugs do not show evidence of gasoline fouling, we should suspect that your fuel feed was obstructed, so that the engine did not get enough gasoline instead of getting too much. In the case of most carburetors there is a separate adjustment for idling and for working conditions and it is the latter that is wrong, if it is an adjustment difficulty.

CHARGING BATTERY FROM FARM LIGHTING PLANT

J. D. M. asks: How can I charge my six-volt battery from my farm lighting outfit? What is the best way to determine the positive wire of a generator?

Answer: Mount a number of lamp receptacles on a board and wire them so that they are connected in multiple. This will leave two free wire ends, one of which should be connected to one side of the lighting circuit, through a switch and the other to one terminal of your battery. The other battery terminal should be connected to the other side of the lighting circuit. Before connecting the wires to the battery, test their polarity by immersing their ends in a tumbler of salted water, when the current is on. The one that gives off the fewer bubbles is the positive and should be connected to the positive terminal of the battery. The current can be regulated by the number and size of the lamps used. With a 32-volt system, the current will be about 3 amperes for each 100 watts of lamp capacity used and with a 110-volt system it will be about one third as much.

PLEASANTLY SURPRISED

Mr. and Mrs. Neil McKinnon, Earnscliffe, had a very pleasant surprise on the evening of Nov. 5th, when a number of their friends and neighbors gathered at their home to express regret that they were soon to leave that section of the country. An address was read by Mr. Seymour Young and a well filled purse was presented by Mr. J. J. McInnis. Although taken by surprise, Mr. McKinnon heartily thanked the good friends for their kindness. Lunch was then served after which the evening was pleasantly spent. In the early hours of the morning they left for their homes many good wishes being exchanged.

Following is the address:

To Mr. and Mrs. McKinnon
Earnscliffe.

Dear Friends:—We your neighbors and friends have assembled here this evening, on this the eve of your departure from Earnscliffe, to express to you how deeply the people of this locality regret the fact that you are going to leave us, and this because you have always been so courteous, obliging and kind to everyone with whom you came in contact always ready and willing at all times to do a favor to anyone to whom it was in your power to do so, and always ready to give a helping hand to a neighbor in his hour of difficulty.

So dear friends, because of your unfailing kindness and willingness to oblige, we regret your departure from our midst, which means a distinct loss to the people of this community who will greatly miss you when you are no longer with them. In pay this merited tribute to your many excellent qualities and noble traits of character for which you are so well known, we ask you to accept this gift as a token of our esteem and goodwill, and may you take with you the best wishes of everyone in this community, that you will have in your new home that peace, prosperity and happiness that such a worthy couple so richly deserve.

Signed on behalf of the residents of Earnscliffe and vicinity.

If Back Hurts Use Salt For Kidneys

EAT LESS MEAT IF KIDNEYS FEEL LIKE LEAD OR BLADDER BOTHERS.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kindney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a teaspoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.
