Changes in Animal Quarantine Rules

Several new clauses appear in the amended regulations just issued relating to the quarantine and health of animals, operated by the Health of Animals Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture. Concerning the importation into Canada of cattle from the United States, clause (d) of section 39 states: "Cattle six months old or over, excluding steers and those for immediate slaughter, must be accompanied by a certificate signed or endorsed by a veterinarian of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry showing that the animals were subjected to a blood test for Bang's disease (infectious abortion) with negative results within sixty days of the date of exportation. When not so accompanied, such cattle may be detained in quarantine for such period as may be deemed necessary for the conduct of a test for Bang's disease. Reactors shall be permanently marked, slaughtered under inspection forthwith without compensation, or returned to the country of origin.

With reference to regulations of quarantine, section 54 states: "Quarantine stations shall be under the care and subject to the orders of the veterinary inspector in charge, who shall have the general superintendence and control of the employees and attendants, and all other matters in connectio therewith. Entry on to the quarantine premises by other persons is prohibited unless written authority has first been obtained from the Veterinary Director General."

On the same subject, section 56 directs that "Cattle unaccompanied by a satisfactory certificate of blood test for Bang's disease shall not be discharged from quarantine until they have been submitted to a blood test by an authorized official. Cattle reacting to the said blood test shall be permanently marked, slaughtered under inspection forthwith without compensation, or returned to country of origin."

Section 90, which prohibits anyone defacing, concealing or taking out wholly or in part any permanent mark applied under direction of the Veterinary Director General to cattle reacting to the tuberculin test, hasbee n enlarged to include the test for Bang's disease. In like manner secion 91 orders that "No person shall remove official identification ear tags affixed to an animal by an inspector except under the authority of the Veterinary Director General."

In regard to the feeding of swine, vegetable refuse has been included in section 93 which states: "The feeding of swine upon garbage or swill, meat scraps and offal, and vegetable refuse, either raw or cooked, obtained elsewhere than on premises where fed, is prohibited, unless special permission in writing is first obtained from the Veterinary Director General."

Further information concerning the regulations may be obtained by writing to the Veterinary Director General, Health of Animals Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

GARDEN-FRESH VEGETABLES

ARE HEALTHIEST — 10 FOOT SQUARE IS LARGE ENOUGH

Growing vegetables in your own back yard is a healthful practice from more than one point of view. We think of garden-fresh vegetables harvested an hour before mealtime, as wholesome because they contain in full amount the vitamins and mineral salts which nature put in them. But there is another angle to consider.

The physical exertion of gardening is healthful. It is a physical culture course in its own right, and although it won't give you a massage and a rubdown after the exercises are over, the open air and sunlight will compensate for this little oversight.

The vegetable garden is a good family doctor, faithful, reliable and always at hand. Bending and stretching over the rows of radishes and lettuce are excellent for reducing as well as muscle b uilding. Active gardening will shrink a too obtrusive midriff in the course of a few weeks, and the green vegetables produced are not fattening, but may be consumed without fear of putting on extra poundage.

Green vegetables in the spring are the true spring tonic. The old-fashioned spring tonic was designed to correct deficiencies of diet during the winter months. Today, instead of a tonic, green vegetables are prescribed the year around for general upbuilding. Not until science discovered these mysterious substances, the vitamins, was the need for tonics scientifically explained. It is now known that a lack of vigor in winter was often akin to scurvy and due to lack of vitamins in the diet.

The vegetable gardener will not be caught short on his vitamin needs, because there is no greater supply to be found than in fresh vegetables taken from the garden just before eaten.

BRITISH HOUSE DISCUSSES DEFENCE PLANS

Admiralty Invites Retired Pensioners To Rejoin Navy For Three-Year Service.

By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer
(By Guardian's Special Wire)

LONDON, Feb. 14.—The House of Commons devoted itself today to a discussion of British defence questions and heard Sir Austen Chamberlain, a former Foreign Secretary, suggest that "under existing circumstances" it was impossible for the Prime Minister also to be head of the committee for Imperial defence.

The discussions developed over a motion for second reading of a bill introduced by Rear Admiral Sir Murray Sueter which would create a ministry of defence with control over the navy, the army and the air force.

The bill was withdrawn when Lord Eustace Percy, minister without portfolio, assured the House the government was giving close attention to matters of national defence.

During the debate members of various political parties expressed dissatisfaction with the present administration of the fighting services. George Lambert, a former civil Lord of the Admiralty, advocated a two-power air standard for Great Britain. The air force should replace the navy as the country's first fighting service, he said.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—The Admiralty has invited retired pensioners to rejoin the navy for three years, it was learned in naval circles today.

The re-enlisted men, it was understood, will be utilized on retired ships recently put into service as replacements for the home fleet, a portion of which has been stationed in the Mediterranean during the international crisis of the Italo-Ethiopian war.

Men in their fifties have been invited to return to service at the home fleet base at Portland. They have been promised they will be able to retain their pensions while getting the standard rate of pay in addition.

The same orders have been issued at Portsmouth where replacement ships have been sorely undermanned recently.

Mating The Breeding Pen

(Experimental Farms Note)

The mating of the breeding pen should be a matter of serious study, and careful consideration, for the success of future operations depends more on this than on any other phase of poultry work. Not only does next season's success depend on it, but it may seriously affect the work of future years as well.

If trapnesting and pedigree breeding have been followed, full advantage should be taken of the progeny test, and males and females that have been proved to be breeders by the test should be used in future matings and the offspring, particularly the sons of those matings that have proven best retained.

For many years the endeavour in breeding has been largely along high egg production lines and in many cases not sufficient attention has been paid to bread type which is conductive to high table quality.

A drive has been inaugurated this year to try to improve the type of Canada's market poultry. (See publication 482, Farmer's Bulletin 2 Dominion Department of Agriculture). Stress should be laid on vigour, breed type and the qualities as outlined in the bulletin, without, however, losing sight of the egg-laying qualities of the flock.

The male is half the pen, and special care should be taken in his selection. He should be the son of a high-laying, large-egg hen, and should be well-grown, show good size and breed type, and above all he should be vigorous.

While vigour may be denoted in every section of the bird—the broad back, deep body, well set legs, and general action—nervous force, the paramount requirement in an egg breeding male, is indicated by a bright prominent eye set in a clean-cut face. This is the kind of a male that should give results when mated to equally carefully selected females.

It will pay those who have no such males, to purchase them from careful breeders who have them.

A safe plan to avoid all danger of the bringing in of disease, is to purchase pedigreed hatching eggs or day-old chicks, and select the breeders form among the males raised from them.

Next meeting roll call will be answered by "Favorite Author" and meeting will be held at home of Mrs. T. B. Gillespie.

Old Canadian Cheese For British Market

There are markets for all types of cheese in the United Kingdom, but the only market which should be catered to by Canadian cheesemakers is the market where quality counts more than anything else, states Joseph Burgess, Chief of the Division of Dairy Produce, Dairy and Cold Storage Branch, Dominion Department of Agriculture. For Canada to secure a greater hold on the British market than she has at present, it is not necessary to make any change in the best type of first grade Canadian cheese, he explains, but the average and liner type must be raised to the level of what is recognized as "Finest Belleville," "Finest Brockville," or "Finest" anything else. During his recent official visit to the British Isles, Mr. Burgess found that while the trade there referred to the B.B. type of cheese—cheese made in the Brockville-Belleville districts—the cheese sold under that brand was not confined to cheese made in those districts but might come from any part of Ontario so long as the quality complied with the recognized standard of the best Brockville or Belleville cheese.

It was repeatedly stated to Mr. Burgess in Great Britain that Canada must maintain a very high standard of quality and the suggestion was made that there is an excellent and growing market, particularly in the London area, for fine old cheese which can be supplied by the best Canadian. The general opinion in Britain was that the finest old Canadian was not quite equal to English Farm Cheddar cheese, but some of the largest British importers, wholesalers, and managers of high-class retail shops did not hesitate to state that the best Canadian first grade cheese was not only superior to any other imported cheese, but when twelve to eighteen months old was almost equal to the English Farm Cheddars. The reason for the superiority of the English farm Cheddar cheese is that it is made on individual farms from the milk of the farmer's herd. The quality of the cheese when one year old is exceptionally fine with a clean Cheddar flavour which is decidedly nippy to the taste.

The total production of Cheddar and Cheshire cheese in the United Kingdom has not decreased, but there is a marked decrease in farm cheese. As this is the highest priced cheese of the Cheddar type, it would appear that there is an opportunity for Canadian cheese to secure a greater portion of this market, as it is recognized that old Canadian cheese is the only cheese which can replace this quality without lowering the standard for high class trade. It is very important, therefore, that all Canadian first grade cheese should be of such quality that if necessary it can be substituted for the English Farm Cheddars which sell at the top price in all high class retail shops.

Garden Novelties

Now is the time when all good gardeners, looking forward to Spring with its garden opportunities, began to plan innovations and improvements. And how they revel in each new seed or nursery catalogue in their search for novelties are being announced by Canadian dealers.

There is, for instance, a new petunia, Dainty Lady; distinctly a novelty beacuse of its light golden-yellow coloring. The Rose Gem, deep rose in hue, and the blood-red Flaming Velvet are other new petunias. Shirley Temple is the intriguing name of a new early frilled and fluted sweet pea of rich pink. Of asters, two are outstanding this season: the pure white, globe-flowered Mammoth Snowden, and the glowing crimson El Monte, which is of super-giant strain.

The early Mammoth Heavenly Blue, sky-blue with white throat, is a new member of the morning glory family, and Double Orange Gleam a new-comer among nasturtiums. Dixie Sunshine is the appropriate name of a bright golden-yellow marigold. The Golden Bedder, a new Siberian wallflower, is another golden-yellow flower. And there is a salmon-orange godetia, Kelvedon Glory, of remarkable vividness. In the Aurora, citron-orange is added to the color range of the familiar ageratum—long a general favorite.

A perennial type of sacbiosa, rich violet-blue in color, is introduced under the name Fischeri, and a perennial dwarf gaillardia is presented in Goblin, bright red and yellow in coloring. And even those old-time favorites—larkspur, snapdragon, annual phlox and cosmos—are appearing this season in unique and very alluring variations.—Can-

Ballangrud Wins Third Speed Crown

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)

GARMISCH-PARTENKIRCHEN, Germany, Feb. 14—Ivar Ballangrud, the Norwegian meteor, won his third speed-skating crown today to round out the greatest individual performance at the fourth Winter Olympics, while England's team drubbed Czechoslovakia 5-0 and took a stranglehold on the hockey championship.

If the Old Country squad, built around six players who grew hockeywies in Canada, defeats the United States tomorrow, the title falls to it automatically. An American victory, however, would throw the fight open and Canada would have an opportunity of continuing a dominance in the sport stretching the length of winter Olympic history.

As was expected, Karl Schaefer of Austria captured the men's figure skating crown. Canada's champion, lithe Montgomery Wilson of Toronto, placed fourth and swelled tht Dominion's points in the unofficial rating of the nations to four. Previously, Louise Bertram and Stewart Reburn, Toronto pair, finished sixth in their division of the figure skating and won a point.

Smashes Record

Ballangrud scored his latest triumph in the strength-sapping 10,000 metre grind, skating the distance in 17 minutes 24.3 seconds to eclipse the Olympic record of 17:56.2 Alex Hurd of Canada set at the 1932 winter games. Previously he had won at 500 and 5,000 metres.

Tommy White of Saint John, Canada's only racing skater at the current games, again gave a courageous display in today's long race but he could not threaten the veteran Europeans. His time was 18:25.3.

In the two-man bob sled competition, United States entrants whirled down the 1600-metre chute at a record-breaking tempo and swept into first and third places at the halfway stage of the event. Leading the field of 23 teams after the first two heats of the four-heat competition was Keene Valley, N. Y. combination of Ivan Brown and Alan Washbond. They put together two record-cracking runs of 1:22.50 and 1:21.02 to gain a margin of more than three seconds over the Swiss sled driven by Fritz Feierabend.

Better Course Mark

The pilot of the second American team, Gilbert Colgate, Jr., of New York, arose from a sickbed to team with Dick Lawrence of Branchville, N. J. They likewise bettered the former course record twice and were in third place, trailing the Swiss stars by only 35-100ths of a second.

Schaefer, the world champion, won the figure skating title by a comfortable margin over Ernst Baier, the German titleholder. By his precision and rhythmical style in the free skating, coupled with his careful tracing in the earlier compulsory figures, he compiled 422.7 points against 400.0 for Baier.

Third was Felix Kaspar of Austria, with 400.1, then Canada's Wilson with 394.5. The veteran Toronto skater was precise in carrying out his difficult program but lacked the dash in execution that marked some of the other performances. Henry G. Sharp of England finished fifth with 394.1 points and J. E. P. Dunn, also of England, took the last point-scoring place with 387.7.

Largely on the strength of Ballangrud's popular skating victory, Norway's point total in the race for the unofficial team title was swelled to 118 points. Germany was next, six points back, with Finland third at 38.
