Interesting Letter

and why not, and wasn't it good eaching, and if so had they better begin to believe. When they found I was a believing person as they called it, they called to some man who was a Christian to come and talk with me. So I had the list of questions all over again, and was politely told I spoke Korean very well—a remark that is directed to every foreigner who talks at all, in Korean five times a day.

The first patient was waiting me at the station when I arrived, and all train time I was so busy I had no time to look over the bookkeeping at all. I saw a treatment new to me among the day's patients. A baby, four months old had diarrhoea, for three weeks. The father is a school teacher, and a graduate of the Academy, and should have known better, but anyway he took the child to a native old style practitioner, who took a knife and treated the diarrhoea by sitting up the muscles on the front of the (tiny) index fingers of each hand. One had no dressing, and one had a red rag on it, but the child had the dirty pussy dressing in its mouth, and both fingers were swollen and the wounds were full of pus. I have been regretting ever since that I did not give the father a proper laying out for being such a fool, but perhaps it was better to have told him the treatment could not help the condition, and to give him sound advice on infant feeding and some medicine that would at least be more suitable to the condition, than was the treatment of the Korean doctor.

On the train coming home, a happy little boy sang to the rest of the passengers, as he took of his little blouse and turning it inside out made a careful search for small companions along the seams. Such industry was not unrewarded, and it was a very complacent boy who sometime later resumed his raiment and continued his song.

They are having a bad time in China. It reminds one of the feuds and intertribal wars of the Middle Ages in Europe. Every leader who can muster the men is in the field on his own behalf, and no one can tell from one day to another, which side any man will be on. Lanchow (where I was the first year) is again under military law, but does not appear to be much disturbed in any way over it. It is not the first time that state of affairs has existed there. Japan is sending troops into China and it is not far yet that they will remain to be seen. Japanese citizens must be protected of course, but what would China and the world say if any other nation sent troops there? Certainly only the citizens of the Celestial Empire can understand the situation in China, but even the most intelligent, best educated Chinese, for instance, some of those I met at the Conference in Japan, and those who have been educated at Cambridge and Harvard, say that the time has fully come, when the foreigners must keep hands off China, give up extraterritorial rights, that all foreigners must be tried in Chinese courts, and that the Chinese must be given their confidence in their country and to us it seems they are more confident than the circumstances warrant, while foreigners are being driven from various places in the country, and there is no central government with whom to make treaties, or to carry out any laws. It must indeed be sad that those educated people to see the sad state of the country, and to know what the foreign friends think of it, and of their fellow countrymen.

A very pitiful letter came from Seoul about the sad state of many sufferers from the flood last summer. Several families in different places now living in holes in the ground with no roof for roof but an old straw mat, and in one village thirty children are stark naked in this cold weather. Many others are in almost as bad a state, and there is little prospect of relief for them till next harvest, almost a year away.

The foreign women's club in Seoul is doing what it can for the sufferers, and has sent out letters to the various stations. We sent a box of clothes from here, and are taking up a collection of the distribution of the things. We all sent everything that was shabby and past wear, and some things that could have been worn. The Koreans, the women anyway, are not fond of foreign clothing, but any one who is freezing would be glad to get anything. I got the Koreans here to make over some of the things I sent, so they would be more suitable to the Koreans. They always wear their skirts with the opening in front. Most of mine close at the side. One was fixed by simply turning it round so the opening would be in front, and was apparently nothing to the Koreans that one of the pockets was then in front, and the other at the back.

We had a meeting the day before yesterday to decide what the hospital employees should do to celebrate Christmas. Christmas is not such a great occasion to even the Christians as it is to us, and of course no one else observes it at all. Any celebration to the Koreans means a feast, and they find it difficult to think of any other way of celebrating it. We are trying to get them to understand the spirit of the day, and instead of getting up a feast for themselves, to do something for the patients, and for the children of their families, but I do not know how it is going to work out. If they had a program in which the Christmas story was given a prominent place, and some special music, and gave gifts of candy and fruit to the children and sick it would seem to be more fitting, but whether I can get them to look at it in that way, I do not yet know. If they do sort of celebrate to them, and if they do, it will take so much more money there will be little left for anything else. All best wishes for a Happy New Year.

Your loving daughter, FLORENCE.

OLD RESIDENTS GIVEN FAREWELL PURSE

Just recently Cornwall has become considerably enriched through the coming of a new family to the village in the person of Mr. and Mrs. Golding Smith. The event was very fittingly observed on the evening of January 13th, when a large number of friends from Kingston and vicinity called on them in their new home, and conveyed to them very kindly greetings. They brought along with them a goodly supply of refreshments, and when these were served, Mr. Wm. Crews was appointed chairman of the gathering to explain the object of their coming together and then called upon Mrs. Reta Crews, who read the address, while Mr. Elmer Younker presented the gift, which was a generously filled purse. Mr. and Mrs. Smith were deeply touched by this fine expression of appreciation and good will, and Mr. Smith in his usual happy manner thanked all for what they had done. The following is a copy of the address:—

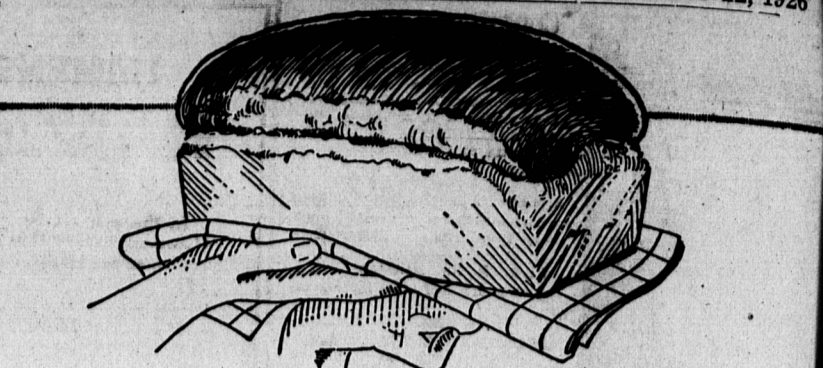

Jan. 13th, 1926 Mr. and Mrs. Golding Smith, near Brother and Sister, On leaving your old home at Kingston and taking up your residence in another place, we tried to persuade ourselves that your plans would not mature and that you would finally decide to remain with us. But like many other hopes that have been blighted, we have learned that you have now taken up your residence in the village of Cornwall.

Feeling as we do that we have lost one of the strong pillars of our church, words would fail us to convey to you the sorrow we feel at your departure from amongst us. On the death of our esteemed father you were elected a trustee in his place. We have also served as superintendent of the Sunday School, and in these capacities you have distinguished yourself in such a way as will bring honour to us in years to come. But where you will be more especially missed we think is in the choir. Being a member of that body ever since its inception in the church some twenty-five years ago, possessing as you do a sweet voice, and as your place in the choir was seldom vacant, we shall soon realize what a loss we have sustained. As for any enterprise in connection with the church, you were always ready with your time and means for its advancement and support.

We are glad to know that you have settled in such a nice little village as Cornwall, so near the church and that you will still be worshipping under the same ministerial charge as ourselves. We ask you to accept this small gift as a token of our confidence and esteem; and our wish for you and our estimable partner is that you will be able to spend the evening time of your life in comparative ease and enjoyment. Signed on behalf of Kingston United Church (Pastor: please copy)

Three Generations Of Women

More than 50 years ago there originated in Lynn, Mass., from a recipe of roots and herbs a medicine for the alleviation of women's ills, now known the world over as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The young women of this generation, their mothers and grandmothers, have found it to be the most dependable remedy for such ailments as indicated by backache, headaches, and nervous troubles. If you are suffering from anything of this nature, it will pay you to try it.

London Will Ban Drunken Drivers On All Streets

LONDON, Jan. 19.—The driver of a motor-vehicle convicted of drunkenness will, after July 1 next, have his license suspended for twelve months, in addition to a fine of £50 or four months' imprisonment, or both. This suspension of license had been incorporated in the Criminal Justice Bill by the House of Lords, and the Government, in the House of Commons, adopted the proposal with slight modifications, which Sir Thomas Inskip, the Solicitor-General, described as "filling in the gaps."

The Commons' modifications were subsequently accepted by the House of Lords, and the Royal Assent was given to the new act, which comes into force in July.

Lord Russell, the Socialist peer raised the matter on the Criminal Justice Bill, which contains a clause raising the penalty for this offence to four months' imprisonment or a £50 fine.

When the bill was discussed in the House of Commons some weeks ago it was stated that the whole subject of motoring legislation would be reviewed next session, but, in spite of this assurance, the Lords have forced the pace, on Lord Russell of the streets.

Lord Cave, the Chancellor, advanced the Home Office view that there should be no interference with the discretionary powers which magistrates already possessed to suspend licenses, and that if their hands were tied they might decline to convict.

"Yes, of course," said Lord Darling, in effect. "When prisoners were liable to hanging for petty theft, judges and juries connived to let them off."

Lord Carson was among those who rallied strongly to Lord Russell.

"It is not realized what a terrible weapon a motor car is in the hands of a drunken man," he said. "I have watched school-children in the country hugging the sides of the roads and motorists passing them at an indefensible pace. If one of those motorists had 'too much drink taken,' every child would be in danger."

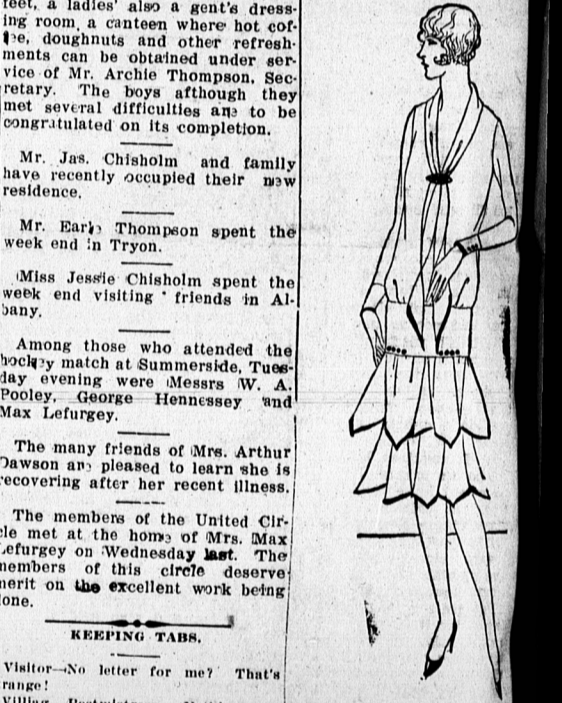

"The amendment does not go far enough. I would like to see every convicted drunken motorist sent to jail without the option of a fine and his license suspended indefinitely. What right have they to endanger life on the highway or to take drink when driving? Why should they have their licenses back again? The insistence for new legislation has not yet been brought home to us."

Gleanings From Tryon and Vicinity

The many friends of Miss Banche Thompson are pleased to see her home again after an extended visit. Mr. Albert Callbeck has returned from a business trip to Halifax. Mr. Lea Crossman, Carleton Place, has returned after an absence of five years and is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. G. Crossman.

A large number enjoyed a delightful skate Monday evening on North Tryon Rink. The ice was in excellent condition. The rink is situated in Mr. Wilfrid Inman's yard about one hundred and fifty yards from Chisholm's store. It has an ice space of 175 feet by 75 feet, a ladies' also a gent's dressing room, a canteen where hot coffee, doughnuts and other refreshments can be obtained under the supervision of Mr. Archie Thompson, Secretary. The boys although they met several difficulties are to be congratulated on its completion.

Mr. Jas. Chisholm and family have recently occupied their new residence. Mr. Earl's Thompson spent the week end in Tryon. Miss Jessie Chisholm spent the week end visiting friends in Albany.

Among those who attended the hockey match at Summerside, Tuesday evening were Messrs W. A. Pooley, George Hennessey and Max Lefurgy.

The many friends of Mrs. Arthur Dawson are pleased to learn she is recovering after her recent illness. The members of the United Circle met at the home of Mrs. Max Lefurgy on Wednesday last. The members of this circle deserve merit on the excellent work being done.
