

Woman's Realm Social and Personal Fashions Literature

The YOUNGER the leaves the tastier the tea

Call for

and you get the little TOP leaves

At your grocer's in 7- and 12-oz. packages—also in the new FILTER-type tea balls.

Your Individual HOROSCOPE

By Frances Drake

For Tuesday, Jan. 28th

MARCH 21 to APRIL 20 (Aries) - Between 7 a.m. and 7 p.m. and again after 9:30 p.m. until tomorrow morning (3:45 a.m.) are very favorable aspects for worthy, useful activities. Be cautious during other periods of the day against impulsive action.

sons. You are more magnetic and efficient when you are cheerful. NOVEMBER 23 to DECEMBER 22 (Sagittarius) - You should find today easier for study, improving work and general interests, making corrections and paving the way for later gains. New ventures should be previously well planned.

UNDER PRESSURE

By GEORGE AGNEW CHAMBERLAIN

© George Agnew Chamberlain WNU Service

CHAPTER XV

Joyce sprang from bed, ran to a great rosewood wardrobe and snatched up her bonnet. As she slipped into it there came a knock on the door. Dirk opened. Don came in, looking pale and anxious.

"You don't have to tell me what it was, Maxie," said Joyce. "Let's ask the roof." "Be the Tie that Binds" a lot of us were engaged. And we used to go out in the kitchen and make fudge and Welsh rabbit or those marshmallows over the fire. Or we would play two-handed games of cards or dominoes or checkers.

"I hesitate to offer such a simple program of amusement to any modern girl for the entertainment of her young man, but do you know, Alice, I have an idea that it would thrill work, and that your particular boy friend, who has enough intelligence and manhood a-

Dorothy Dix Says

OLD METHODS STILL GOOD FOR HOLDING BOY FRIENDS

Girls Can Get Their Men If They Do Not Insist Upon A Lot Of Expensive Entertainment

Dear Miss Dix—I have dates with a very nice boy who does not have much money on me because he is taking a study course along with his work. Can you suggest some way of spending the evening without going to a show or dance, because these cost more than he can afford? Is there anything interesting that one can do at home without having a crowd? He is no petting type. ALICE

THE ART OF CONVERSATION

Is the art of conversation a lost art among the young? Have boys and girls nothing to talk about? Is the fireside companion indeed a bird that is as extinct as the Dodo? In those pre-war times, when your mother and I were girls, there was never any difficulty about entertaining a boy at home. Perhaps it doesn't sound very peppy to the flaming youth of today who put in long evenings not agreeing about anything but about their hopes and plans and ambitions, and I don't seem to recall that any one of them ever got bored talking about himself as long as we lent him our ears.

Idea Still Good

"Mr. Van Suttart and I will start for Mexico City as soon as it's light enough to see. I had a letter from Adan Arnaldo, who had scarcely listened and was sitting with head hanging despondently, suddenly straightened and rose to his feet. "Me, too!" he cried fervently. "But how?"

THE COOK'S CORNER

ORANGE NUT BREAD

1 cup pecans, walnuts or hickory nuts
1-2 cup orange marmalade
2 1-2 cups sifted flour
1 tbsop baking powder
1 1-4 teps salt
1 cup milk
2 eggs
2 tbsops melted butter

BAKED STUFFED FISH

2 2-lb. fishes
2 cups water
4 tbsops salt
8 strips bacon or fat pork
4 tbsops melted fat or salad oil
2 1-2 cups water
5 minutes in hot water and salted
3 or 4 washes through skin on each side of fish and stuff with poultry dressing, cream opening with toothpicks or string or with needle and thread. Brush skin thoroughly with melted fat or oil and lay four strips of bacon in shallow greased pan, putting fish on bacon. Lay 2 more bacon strips on each fish and bake in hot oven (425 degrees F.) for 10 minutes. Reduce heat to 375 degrees and bake 10 to 15 minutes longer, or until fish is easily pierced with fork. Lift fish carefully from pan to a hot platter, garnish with sliced lemons. Serves six.

EGGLESS FRUIT CAKE

Two cups brown sugar, 2 cups buttermilk, 2 level teaspoons soda, 3/4 cup shortening (or butter, if you have it), 2 pounds puffed seeded raisins, 1 p-und chopped dates, 1 teaspoon salt, 3 1-4 cups flour, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon nutmeg, 1 tablespoon vanilla, 1 ten-cent package citron peel, 1 pound Australian raisins, Juice of 1 orange.

BROWN SUGAR SAUCE

1-4 cup firmly-packed brown sugar, 1/2 cup water, 1/2 cup Dash of salt, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, 1 cup boiling water, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 teaspoon flavoring or brandy to taste.

LOVELY INDOOR GARDENS FUN AND EASY TO RAISE

Begonia Likes A Coolish Window

What a thrill to raise an exquisite, healthy begonia—a thrill you may have despaired of having! But, like other plants, the begonia will flourish with just a little of the right care.

Living & Leisure

The Woman's Realm

ANOTHER YEAR

"Another year with all its hopes and fears Has sunk into the deep abyss of time. And on the threshold of the new we stand. Like strangers gazing into a far, Hope, smiling, beckons us take courage. Faith points to Heaven, where God and angels dwell. Assuring us that all our untried future Is known to Him who doeth all things well."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Lumpy brown sugar should always be rolled to smooth consistency before measuring. The measuring cup should be packed solidly and the top leveled off.

To prevent fish from breaking when frying, put the pieces in hot fat with the skin side up and brown well before turning.

"Make-up" is just as vital to a house as it is to the average woman. Exterior house colors should be light, bright and gay to make for a happier, more sophisticated house.

If a roasting chicken has very little fat, rub the inside well before putting in the stuffing and then butter the breast well on the outside to make it brown nicely and evenly.

For the sickroom: Use an old clock with the hands set for the time medicine is next to be taken.

Before storing away the window screens buy a set of number printing stencils in duplicates at the hardware store. Take one set of numbers on the screen and the corresponding number on the window to which the screen belongs.

Post a bulletin in the kitchen made of linen to match your color scheme. On it you can post a recipe you want to try, a pretty picture to gaze at as you pause in your work, or a scrap of poetry you wish to memorize as you go about your duties.

To prevent the juice from soaking through fruit pies, brush the lower crust with unbeaten white of egg.

A little water added to an omelet prevents toughness.

When custard curdles beat up a raw egg and slowly beat the curdled curd. If you can't get a mixture will become smooth.

TO CLEAN CRYSTAL-SILVER When crystal is encrusted with silver which becomes a little tarnished, clean the silver motifs first with a good silver polish, then wash the entire piece in warm water and mild soap.

WHEN WE COME HOME Home is the ending of the road. The place where we lay down our load. We cross the threshold, and forget Life's work and worry, fuss and fret. We need no longer strive or strain in weary lonesome and busy brain. For here, when sunset paints the west. At close of day, we take our rest.

POSTURE ESSENTIAL TO CHIC Awkward poses spoil the appearance of even the most smartly dressed or prettily groomed individual.

It might be a very good idea for every movie-goer to make a bench or picture actress sit, stand, enter a room, gets in and out of a taxi. Or, the next time she goes to a play, to make mental notes on the way a great actress moves about.

SIT GRACEFULLY Once you start watching the movements of actresses you are portraying cultured women, it will be pretty evident that good seated posture does not permit crossing of legs at the ankles or sitting with knees apart. If you sit with feet on the floor, one should be slightly in front of the other and knees should be together, of course. When you cross your legs, cross them above the knee.

Always stand with weight evenly distributed on both feet. If you must stand with most of your weight on one foot, learn to lean the other leg in a straight line, instead of letting its hip jut out to the side.

DEAP BREATHS Don't enter a room hurriedly, breathlessly. Pause before going in, take a couple of deep breaths and a quick look around to see who is there and who you ought to speak to first.

Don't haul yourself up out of a chair by grasping both arms and fairly staggering to your feet, gracefully getting up and down hands on the arms of the chair, leaning too far forward as your body moves upward.

Sit back in the seat of a car, bus or taxi. The base of your spine should touch the back of the chair, and shoulders should be comfortably relaxed. Straight seated posture is necessarily good seated posture. If you force your shoulders against the back of the chair, yet sit near the front edge instead of well back you'll be no more graceful than one who slumps and teeters.

ance of even the most smartly dressed or prettily groomed individual. It might be a very good idea for every movie-goer to make a bench or picture actress sit, stand, enter a room, gets in and out of a taxi. Or, the next time she goes to a play, to make mental notes on the way a great actress moves about.

SIT GRACEFULLY Once you start watching the movements of actresses you are portraying cultured women, it will be pretty evident that good seated posture does not permit crossing of legs at the ankles or sitting with knees apart. If you sit with feet on the floor, one should be slightly in front of the other and knees should be together, of course. When you cross your legs, cross them above the knee.

Always stand with weight evenly distributed on both feet. If you must stand with most of your weight on one foot, learn to lean the other leg in a straight line, instead of letting its hip jut out to the side.

DEAP BREATHS Don't enter a room hurriedly, breathlessly. Pause before going in, take a couple of deep breaths and a quick look around to see who is there and who you ought to speak to first.

Don't haul yourself up out of a chair by grasping both arms and fairly staggering to your feet, gracefully getting up and down hands on the arms of the chair, leaning too far forward as your body moves upward.

Sit back in the seat of a car, bus or taxi. The base of your spine should touch the back of the chair, and shoulders should be comfortably relaxed. Straight seated posture is necessarily good seated posture. If you force your shoulders against the back of the chair, yet sit near the front edge instead of well back you'll be no more graceful than one who slumps and teeters.

WHEN WE COME HOME Home is the ending of the road. The place where we lay down our load. We cross the threshold, and forget Life's work and worry, fuss and fret. We need no longer strive or strain in weary lonesome and busy brain. For here, when sunset paints the west. At close of day, we take our rest.

POSTURE ESSENTIAL TO CHIC Awkward poses spoil the appearance of even the most smartly dressed or prettily groomed individual.

It might be a very good idea for every movie-goer to make a bench or picture actress sit, stand, enter a room, gets in and out of a taxi. Or, the next time she goes to a play, to make mental notes on the way a great actress moves about.

SIT GRACEFULLY Once you start watching the movements of actresses you are portraying cultured women, it will be pretty evident that good seated posture does not permit crossing of legs at the ankles or sitting with knees apart. If you sit with feet on the floor, one should be slightly in front of the other and knees should be together, of course. When you cross your legs, cross them above the knee.

Always stand with weight evenly distributed on both feet. If you must stand with most of your weight on one foot, learn to lean the other leg in a straight line, instead of letting its hip jut out to the side.

DEAP BREATHS Don't enter a room hurriedly, breathlessly. Pause before going in, take a couple of deep breaths and a quick look around to see who is there and who you ought to speak to first.

Don't haul yourself up out of a chair by grasping both arms and fairly staggering to your feet, gracefully getting up and down hands on the arms of the chair, leaning too far forward as your body moves upward.

Sit back in the seat of a car, bus or taxi. The base of your spine should touch the back of the chair, and shoulders should be comfortably relaxed. Straight seated posture is necessarily good seated posture. If you force your shoulders against the back of the chair, yet sit near the front edge instead of well back you'll be no more graceful than one who slumps and teeters.

WHEN WE COME HOME Home is the ending of the road. The place where we lay down our load. We cross the threshold, and forget Life's work and worry, fuss and fret. We need no longer strive or strain in weary lonesome and busy brain. For here, when sunset paints the west. At close of day, we take our rest.

POSTURE ESSENTIAL TO CHIC Awkward poses spoil the appearance of even the most smartly dressed or prettily groomed individual.

It might be a very good idea for every movie-goer to make a bench or picture actress sit, stand, enter a room, gets in and out of a taxi. Or, the next time she goes to a play, to make mental notes on the way a great actress moves about.

SIT GRACEFULLY Once you start watching the movements of actresses you are portraying cultured women, it will be pretty evident that good seated posture does not permit crossing of legs at the ankles or sitting with knees apart. If you sit with feet on the floor, one should be slightly in front of the other and knees should be together, of course. When you cross your legs, cross them above the knee.

Always stand with weight evenly distributed on both feet. If you must stand with most of your weight on one foot, learn to lean the other leg in a straight line, instead of letting its hip jut out to the side.

DEAP BREATHS Don't enter a room hurriedly, breathlessly. Pause before going in, take a couple of deep breaths and a quick look around to see who is there and who you ought to speak to first.

Don't haul yourself up out of a chair by grasping both arms and fairly staggering to your feet, gracefully getting up and down hands on the arms of the chair, leaning too far forward as your body moves upward.

Sit back in the seat of a car, bus or taxi. The base of your spine should touch the back of the chair, and shoulders should be comfortably relaxed. Straight seated posture is necessarily good seated posture. If you force your shoulders against the back of the chair, yet sit near the front edge instead of well back you'll be no more graceful than one who slumps and teeters.

WHEN WE COME HOME Home is the ending of the road. The place where we lay down our load. We cross the threshold, and forget Life's work and worry, fuss and fret. We need no longer strive or strain in weary lonesome and busy brain. For here, when sunset paints the west. At close of day, we take our rest.

POSTURE ESSENTIAL TO CHIC Awkward poses spoil the appearance of even the most smartly dressed or prettily groomed individual.

It might be a very good idea for every movie-goer to make a bench or picture actress sit, stand, enter a room, gets in and out of a taxi. Or, the next time she goes to a play, to make mental notes on the way a great actress moves about.

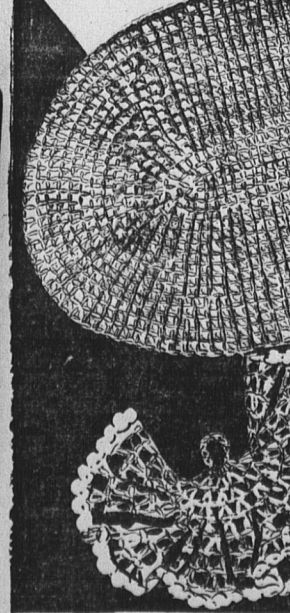

SIT GRACEFULLY Once you start watching the movements of actresses you are portraying cultured women, it will be pretty evident that good seated posture does not permit crossing of legs at the ankles or sitting with knees apart. If you sit with feet on the floor, one should be slightly in front of the other and knees should be together, of course. When you cross your legs, cross them above the knee.

Always stand with weight evenly distributed on both feet. If you must stand with most of your weight on one foot, learn to lean the other leg in a straight line, instead of letting its hip jut out to the side.

DEAP BREATHS Don't enter a room hurriedly, breathlessly. Pause before going in, take a couple of deep breaths and a quick look around to see who is there and who you ought to speak to first.

Nervous Restless Girls! Cranky? Restless? Can't sleep? Tired easily? Because of female "disorders" causing monthly distress? Then try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Pinkham's Compound is well known for helping such weak, nervous, nervous conditions. Made in Canada. WORKS TRYING! Any drugstore.

COLORFUL CROCHET FOR THE KITCHEN

DESIGN NO. 883 contains list of materials needed, illustration of stitches used and complete instructions for making the hot plate mats in three sizes and a most unusual dish cloth.

To order this pattern, send 15 cents in coin or stamps to Needwark Bureau, Charlottetown Guardian, 21 Charlotte Street, Charlottetown, P.E.I.

Name _____ Street Address _____ City _____ Province _____

NEW YORK Jan. 27 (CP) - Neither your friends nor strangers like to hear you complain about the dollar you are giving to Mrs. Smith's benefit or other war affairs, says a writer on Common Cause.

"No, is the party meant to be an open forum for your soliloquies on how dark the future seems. You don't have to repeat the day's headlines and re-harsh the latest horrors of the war to me. I've heard enough of the funny incident mentioned in the letter from home.

"You're crazy!" cried Dirk. "How are we going to cross the barranca—ly?" "We'll ride around it—ten miles down and ten back." "If you can't help, keep your mouth shut, Dirk, darling. I'm sorry, but our horses are faster—so much faster. Doesn't that make a difference? Doesn't it? There must be a way—there must!" "Sweetheart, I was nearly a rat! But don't worry. I'm cured. Take a bath, eat, change into your riding togs. I'm off to sock a feed of oats into the horses."

These household gadgets require little time to crochet. Pattern No. 883 contains list of materials needed, illustration of stitches used and complete instructions for making the hot plate mats in three sizes and a most unusual dish cloth.

Name _____ Street Address _____ City _____ Province _____

"You know, I've never met a girl so young to have been in the war," said Don Jorge, comforted. "It's 'Finsburg,'" murmured Dirk.

"He was interrupted by a carbine volley resulting in a splatter of bullets against the wall beneath them. They retreated in haste, all but Leonardo who hurried to the southern bastion to direct a corner offensive. Said below, Joyce drew Dirk aside.

"I feel so sure, my dear Joyce, 'now I feel helpless and a fool.' Suddenly she lifted her eyes to his face. 'By the way, Joyce, I've heard that you're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How do you like that?' 'How do you know?' 'I guess you're no fool after all,' said Dirk, smiling at Joyce. 'He looked out the ambassador's letter and handed it to her. 'Read that, Joyce, and it's bad news for me. You're going to be a battery of howitzers. How