BALDWIN IS OPTIMISTIC OVER FUTURE

British Premier Says Foreign Affairs Most Satisfactory Since War - Lord Mayor's Banquet Held in Historic Guild Hall.

LONDON, Nov. 10.—London's annual outdoor pageant of the Lord Mayor's show, with its popular procession through the streets of the city today, displaying all the old-time features, and as a special attraction for the younger generation, a peep into the past. This was the theme of an exhibit of locomotion from bygone days to the present, ranging from the wheel-barrow and sedan chair through the stage coach, horse and omnibus to the first unlovely motor-car and the lordly limousine and space-spinning aeroplane.

Premiers at Banquet

Tonight the Lord Mayor's banquet was held in the ancient Guild Hall with all the city and foreign dignitaries. On this occasion the function had more of an empire character inasmuch as the visiting Dominion premiers were among the guests. They included the British, Canadian, American, Spanish, and Italian ministers. The Lord Mayor, Lord Balfour, and the Spanish Ambassador, were the chief speakers. The Lord Mayor's toast to His Majesty's Ministers, Mr. Baldwin took as his theme a comparison of the Imperial foreign policies of the present with those of three years ago, when the last Imperial Conference met.

The Imperial Conference Is At a Stage of Flux

LONDON, Nov. 10.—The Imperial conference has become a conference of conferences. The committees are now reaching the stage of passing resolutions. Within the various gatherings of delegates there are also constant knots of members pouring over the draft resolutions and suggested amendments.

Great Demonstration at Royal Wedding

(Canadian Press)
BRUSSELS, Nov. 10.—Crown Prince Leopold and Princess Astrid of Sweden were married this morning in the St. Gudule Cathedral. The crush of the crowds around the Cathedral was so great that many women and children were injured. No fatalities were reported, but several scores were taken to the hospital or treated for their injuries in nearby drug stores. It was the greatest demonstration to occur in Brussels since the Armistice day, eight years ago tomorrow. Today's religious ceremony followed the civil wedding performed in the Swedish royal palace at Stockholm last Thursday.

MESSAGES FROM EARL HAIG AND THE PRINCE

Extending Best Wishes to the Canadian Legion for the Success of Their First Poppy Day Appeal.

(Special to the Guardian)
TORONTO, Nov. 9.—From H. R. H. the Prince of Wales, patron, and from Earl Haig, president of the British Empire Service League, messages were received yesterday by Brigadier-General John A. Gunn, chairman of the poppy day committee in the Canadian Legion of the B. E. S. L., extending the best of good wishes for the success of the poppy day appeal. The message from the Prince reads: "My best wishes to the Canadian Legion for the success of its efforts in connection with the poppy day appeal. I wish the Canadian Legion the greatest possible success through the dominion on their first poppy day appeal. I feel sure the Canadian public will fully recognize how worthy the object and give their wholehearted support."

The Supreme Business Of The Church

Taking as the basis of his address the words of the Lord Jesus as recorded in Acts 1:8 when the Holy Spirit is come upon you, the speaker carried the message to the farthest part of the earth. Rev. Mr. Rodger gave a most impressive address in Zion Presbyterian Church last evening. The supreme business of the church was the evangelization of the world. It was to the shame of the church that one billion five hundred million people remained unevangelized. How can the church, asked the speaker, carry the gospel to all nations? This command could never be fulfilled save by and in the power of the Holy Spirit. Jesus Christ had redeemed the world. He had shed his precious blood to take away the sin of the world. His redeemed children were given the glorious task of the evangelization of the world. This task could only be accomplished in the power of the Holy Spirit. The acts of the Apostles clearly show us His guiding of the church step by step as they sought to make Jesus Christ known to the world. Paul, in writing to the Romans said "How shall they call on Him whom they had not believed? and how shall they believe in Him of whom they have not heard? The Holy Spirit was waiting in every part of the earth for the sweetest song of the church, women to tell forth the story of the cross and resurrection so that the light might shine as many as believed. If the church of Jesus Christ would only recognize the Holy Spirit as the administrator of the church and honor Him as such it would not be long before the church would have the means of fulfilling the commission given by the great head of the church Himself "go ye throughout the East and West, preach the gospel to every creature."

Tells of Improvement

The premier then elaborated on the improvement of conditions in all countries, with Germany safely within the League of Nations and France and Germany trying to eliminate any remaining causes of friction. Much of the improvement he declared was due to the work of the League of Nations. The reconstruction of Europe was the keystone of British foreign policy, because obviously there could be no prosperity for Great Britain without a settled Europe. He voiced anxiety about the situation in China and the Far East, but was able to speak more hopefully of India than had been possible for any of his predecessors for many years. Turning to home affairs, the Prime Minister asserted that the recent general strike "will remain forever a strain upon the annals of our country" and characterized the coal stoppage as "another monument of human folly."

ARMISTICE DAY 1926

The following has been compiled by the "Great War" by Major D. A. Macdonald (First Canadian Division), Russ Hotel, Charlottetown, P. E. Island:
Armistice Day brings back the memory of many days of hardship, sorrow and anxiety, but "the sweetest songs are those that tell of the saddest thoughts." There is a friendship between the men who now live, an affection that cannot be described. It is wonderful to meet an old pal whether he was your Commanding Officer or your comrade in arms. As the poet said "The ranks of a full military regiment of France, and there is no higher rank." How quickly they run over the names of the old boys, their leave to London or the night in "Regina Trench," their wonderful dug-out in Paderes woods, the re-capture of the trench when the Corporal got hit at "St. Julien," their first night in the line, when we shared our bacon and our biscuits and jam. Can you wonder that such comradeship exists among the men who served at the Front.

"Like tide on a crescent sea-beach
When the moon is new and thin
Into our hearts high yearnings
Come swelling and surging in—
Come from the mystic ocean.
Whose rim no foot has trod—
Some of us call it Longing,
And others call it God."

Soldiers are human and passionate and sensitive. No man goes to war for his own personal advantage, it is a sacrifice, but help him because he deserves it. "We see them limping down the street
Devold an arm or limb,
A lad who's blind, led by the hand,
And lads whose wounds no eye can see
Will smile through grievous ill,
'Tis hard for them to e'er forget—
The lads who are paying still."

There were four million British troops in France, the finest specimens of manhood ever united together. There are nine hundred British grave yards in France, filled with loyal hearts with a faith in God and a trust in humanity for the care of the mothers who now wear the cross.

"A picket frozen on duty
A mother starved for her brood,
Socrates drinking the hemlock,
And Jesus on the rood;
And millions who, humble and nameless,
The straight hard pathway trod
Some call it Consecration,
And others call it God."
Why we should commemorate this day "ARMISTICE"

Canada's casualties in the War. We had battle casualties two hundred and ten thousand, sixty thousand who laid down their lives for

Purchase Cattle From Prince of Wales

(Special to the Guardian)
CALGARY, Alta., Nov. 10.—Fifteen head of Shorthorn stock owned by the Prince of Wales, at his ranch near High River, Alberta, have been purchased by Sheldon and Caruthers owners of the Kirkwood farm, one of the show ranches of California. ## SENSATIONAL EVIDENCE IN MURDER TRIAL

Finger Prints and Autopsies Occupy Attention of the Court During Proceedings

SOMERVILLE, N. J., Nov. 10.—Finger prints and autopsies occupied the attention of the court trying Mrs. Frances Noel Hall and three of her relatives for the murder of Rev. Edw. Wheeler Hall and Mrs. Eleanor Mills today. Scientific testimony was of such length and so involved as to tax the lay minds of the jurors whose interest seemed to brighten up when Dr. Otto Schulze who performed recent autopsies on the bodies of the victims, used a wax torso and head to illustrate his testimony with respect to the course of bullets and the mutilation of Mrs. Mills' mouth and throat.

The surgeon said that one bullet which slew Mrs. Mills entered the middle of her forehead, another the right cheek, and a third above the right ear. All were within a space of four inches.

Prosecutor Simpson said: "Pretty good shooting, don't you think?" Defense immediately objected asking if Mr. Simpson would qualify the witness as a firearms expert and the prosecutor abandoned that line of questioning.

Henry Stevens, one of the defendants reputed an excellent shot. Schultze said the slain rector of the church of St. John the Divine, was shot above the opening of the right ear. He suggested that the course of the bullet indicated that the victims had possibly been stooping. He thought that Hall might have been wrestling with some one when the shot was fired.

James Mills, husband of the murdered choir singer, was listening attentively as the doctor described the fatal wounds, but Charlotte Mills, his daughter, who was writing the trial for some paper, left the courtroom.

Two fingerprint experts testified that the imprint found on the calling card found propped against Hall's foot as he lay dead under a crab-apple tree, was that of the index finger of "Willie" Stevens, eccentric brother of Mrs. Hall.

Charged Moral Looseness in Collegiate Institute

OTTAWA, Nov. 10.—That school dances were used as a pretext by pupils to secure their parents' consent to attend dances under school supervision; that on one occasion the pupils at a school dance, and accompanied by a teacher had gone for a sleigh ride to Hull where a quantity of beer was drunk, and that several other incidents had come to his attention which had convinced him that there was a certain pronounced moral looseness or laxity prevalent among the pupils was the gist of a Wylie before Mr. Justice Orde at the opening session here today of the inquiry into the charges recently made regarding conditions at the Ottawa Collegiate Institute.

Graphic Description Of Maryland Tornado

(Canadian Press)
LA PLATA, Md., Nov. 10.—John Marshall Burr, 11 year old school boy who gave the first news of the destruction of the school house by the tornado yesterday, today described how he escaped the wrath of the wind which had become death and injury to so many of his playmates. It was Burr who ran to the Episcopal rectory and told the Rev. W. S. Helghan, to "telephone everybody, the school house has blown away." "We were frightened when the room became dark," said the lad. "I guess I was scared more than the rest. I jumped from a window and ran. Then the wind caught hold of me and carried me 25 yards away. I had to catch hold of the roots of a tree. I looked back at the school. The building was lifted up and smashed in the air. pieces covered the ground where we played football during lunch hour."

He described how he saw school mates writing in pain on the ground some with their clothing torn from their bodies. Several arose and walked around dazed. He continued: "I walked to the wreck and saw Miss Graves (one of the teachers) trying to lift a stove from off a girl."

Home Secretary Powerless to Act

BRITISH WOMEN PROTEST AGAINST RELEASE OF AMERICAN FILM ENTITLED "THE UNKNOWN SOLDIER"

LONDON, Nov. 10.—Many women's societies here are protesting against the release of an American film entitled "The Unknown Soldier," and the Home Secretary, Sir William Joynson-Hicks, to-day received a deputation representing women's organizations formally entering protests.

The Home Secretary told the deputation he regretted that he was powerless to take official action in the matter.

About two weeks ago the British Women's Patriotic League, of which Lady Cowan is chairman, met in protest against the proposed release of the film in question during Armistice week. It was stated that the film was most unsuited to be linked up with such an occasion as the commemoration of Armistice Day.
