RECEPTACLES FOR RUBBISH.

For years past an effort has been made with excellent results to improve our streets, sidewalks and squares, and with less satisfactory results to prevent the sweepings and rubbish of the stores and business places, loose paper, rags and other debris from being thrown on the streets. This evil is continued. Sometimes it is a newspaper, hastily read at a seat on the Square and then thrown down; here an empty cigarette box, or a box from which the chocolates have been eaten, thrown down out of hand; or bananas, or oranges are eaten on the street and the rinds thrown away. In these and many other ways the streets and squares are made untidy.

Mostly this is the work of reasonably good people whose habits are careless. Partly it is the fault of the civic authorities in not providing receptacles for such debris—we do not mean the store sweepings, but other loose encumbrances which people moving about may desire to get rid of and can find no place to bestow them. Our American cousins, who are models in the matter of keeping their streets and squares in order, help their people to be tidy by providing receptacles at or in their railway stations, squares, and along the streets in which light rubbish can be put out of sight in a moment and not left to be the sport of the winds or offend the sight of passers-by. These receptacles are from time to time emptied by employees of the street department.

This is not written to excuse the careless and untidy habits of the many in throwing rubbish and paper on the streets. It is a suggestion merely for making it easier for such persons to do right and more inexcusable to do wrong in such matters. It is a plan which has been adopted elsewhere with the best results. The boxes for paper and other light rubbish serve as educators in regard to keeping the streets neat and tidy. They are not expensive and pay for themselves in the time saved and the convenience afforded to those that clean the streets. Our City Fathers have done much in recent years to improve and beautify the city for which good work they are to be commended. They will, we believe value any suggestion for further improvement at its proper worth.

PRODUCTIVE WHEAT.

It is well known that the average yield of wheat is low—said to be on an average throughout the world not more than about 12½ bushels per acre. In Canada the range is perhaps from 10 to 40 bushels. We are always, more or less suspicious when some new variety of seed grain is put on the market the owner of which claims an extraordinary productivity. Such claims may be fortified by affidavits of tremendous crops actually produced, and yet the credulous purchaser may be greatly disappointed on trial of the new and much lauded seed. With this cautionary word we may state that it is claimed for an Idaho farmer that he has discovered a new variety of wheat which produces amazingly. From a single head, the seeds of which he planted in the fall of 1904 he claims to have produced seven pounds of wheat. This seven pounds he planted in the spring of 1906 and harvested 1545 pounds, or at the rate of 222 bushels to the acre. It is claimed that this wheat grades No. 1 hard, can be successfully grown from either fall or spring sowing and is, extremely hardy. It bears the name of Alaska wheat.

It will be observed that it has been tested so far on but a small scale. Our farmers will not all rush at once to procure a supply. Still in these days of great and marvelous scientific discoveries there may be room for one that will double the productivity of our wheatfields, which would certainly be a great boon.

The Farmer's Advocate rejoices "in the increasing vigor and influence of the independent press," and finds it also "encouraging to see occasional evidences of fairness, magnanimity and loosening of party allegiance among the party press, though there are still many petty sheets whose political horizon is bounded by the Grit or Tory committee rooms in the county town." True, oh king! The Advocate goes on: "One stultifies himself by reading such miserable rags, and the sooner the public express their disapproval by withholding support the better. It is unfortunately true that with these measly, biweekly, peanut sheets debarred, many communities would have no journal to support." This also is true in many localities, but not in Prince Edward Island. Here the reading public have a choice.

Regrettably the itinerary of the Prince of Wales is so arranged in advance that he cannot visit Prince Edward Island. But Lord Roberts will stay longer in Canada and might be induced to come. At least he ought to be officially invited.

About a week ago the British naval manoeuvres began, 315 ships taking part. Never before was there so great a gathering of formidable warships, and this though the Mediterranean fleet, the Pacific and Australian fleets are still at their stations and a number of the best ships are at Quebec. The scene of operations is in the North Sea. The ships are divided into two fleets, one under Admiral Lord Charles Beresford attacking, and the other under Admiral Sir Francis Bridgman defending the British coasts. The movements are directed by wireless telegraph from the Admiralty in London, 300 miles distant.

It seems to be taken for granted that the Premier of a big Province is a big man, and as Ontario and Quebec are about to have their big areas doubled, their Premiers are to be knighted. This is not fair to our Maritime Premiers, Premier Murray has held his position since 1896 while Premier Whitney and Premier Gouin date from 1905, nine years later. Why not knight the Maritime leaders? Sir George Murray, Sir Douglas Hazen and Sir Francis Haszard are names and titles that would all look well in print and would greet the ear as euphoniously as Sir James Whitney or Sir Lomer Gouin.
