VEILS CORRECT IN ARABIA ARE NOT SO GOOD IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, April 29.—It's all right for a woman to veil her face in Arabia, but in Chicago, Mrs. Helen Hanania contends, there are curbstones to consider.

She said the handkerchief she tied over her face got into her eyes and she stumbled over time she went out.

And so she told her husband, Mousa, she wouldn't wear it any more and when she didn't like it, she sued him for separate maintenance, she told Judge Francis Allegritti yesterday.

"Do you?" asked the court of Hanania, "expect her to ride a camel because it's an old Arabian custom?"

"No," he replied. "She may take a street car."

Noting his willingness to compromise the court told Mousa and Helen to try to patch up their differences and return in a month.

EGYPTIAN NOT MUCH OF A MEAT EATER

The Egyptian is not much of a meat eater, his meal consisting mostly of corn or millet bread with beans, onions or other vegetables. Being Moslems, they are prohibited from eating pork. The land of the Pharaohs has a population of 15,000,000, chiefly employed in agriculture. The European population numbers about 250,000. Meat eating is confined mostly to the centres where there is a fairly large European population, such as Cairo, Alexandria and Port Said, according to the Industrial Department of the Canadian National Railways. Fairly large quantities of edible, and other animal and vegetable oils and fats are used by the native population for cooking purposes.

Constance Bennett and Herbert Marshall Score At Capitol

There is always an undercurrent of excitement and glamour in any picture in which Constance Bennett plays the stellar role, and the scintillating actress' latest cinema vehicle, "Outcast Lady," which opened yesterday at the Capitol Theatre, is no exception to the rule.

Stunningly photographed, exquisitely gowned and fitted with a highly emotional and sensitive role, Miss Bennett proves that her artistry is not limited to such arcaic plays as "Moulin Rouge" or "The Affairs of Cellini," but is equal to the greater demands made upon her by the dramatically powerful part of Iris March in her present picture.

Fights for Respect

In "Outcast Lady," Miss Bennett as Iris March is the innocent victim of scandalous tongues which cause her to pursue a career totally foreign to her own desires and nature. With the world turning its back upon her, Iris March fights to retain her self-respect, but the wreckage of her life leaves a bitter mark on the man she loves as well as on the members of her family.

The story, based on a narrative by Michael Arlen, has been deftly transferred to the screen, its action encompassing a wide variety of European backgrounds and scenes which shift from light humor to the darkest of tragic moments.

A Difficult Role

While the picture is chiefly Miss Bennett's, no little measure of credit must go to the work of the supporting players, in particular that of Herbert Marshall who has the male lead. Marshall's role as the man who is estranged from Miss Bennett because of the restrictions held over him by his father, is a difficult one and it is doubtful if there is a leading man in Hollywood who could have handled it as well as does Marshall.

Others in an excellent supporting cast who deserve special mention include the effervescent Mrs. Patrick Campbell, Hugh Williams, Elizabeth Allan, Henry Stephenson, Robert Lorraine, Lumsden Hale, Leo Carol, Ralph Forbes and Alec B. Francis.

"Little Men" Outstanding Film At The Prince Edward

A great picture reached the Prince Edward Theatre screen last night.

It is Louisa Alcott's "Little Men." "That it will be included in all the "Best Pictures" lists this year seems certain. One thinks of a daguerotype coming to sudden glowing life from the pages of a faded album.

There is a fitness, a sincerity, a something akin to genius, which pervades the picture. The work of which nearly a million copies have been sold over a period of seventy-five years. It revolves around quaint Plumfield School in rural New England, presided over by Prof. Frits Bhaer (played with a matchless finesse by that distinguished actor, Ralph Morgan) and tender, capable "Jo" (The lovely New York stage star, Erin O'Brien-Moore).

To the school come two street waifs, "Nat" and "Dan," portrayed respectively by David Durand and Frankie Darro, and then things begin to happen at placid Plumfield. Dan fights with "Franz" (Junior Durkin), causes a midnight fire in the dormitory full of sleeping children, and finally is exiled to a reform school because of a theft he did not commit. The details of his vindication, and the resultant happy ending, should be seen and not heard, so we shall not relate them here.

Two romances lend a double share of adult interest to "Little Men." One concerns the mature affections of Jo and the Professor, while the other deals with young love, the principals being Franz and "Mary Anne" (Phyllis Fraser).

Each member of the imposing cast shows a complete understanding of his or her role; Mr. Morgan and Miss Moore being particularly fine. In the juvenile line-up, which includes a social register of Hollywood's child stars, such names as Cora Sue Collins, Dickie Moore, Tad Alexander, Buster Phelps, Ronny Crosby, Tommy Bupp, Bobby Cox, Dickie Jones, Richard Quine, Donald Buck, George Ernest, David Helden, and Jacqueline Taylor. It is clean family entertainment and an important addition to the list of films you must see.

Rules Are Issued For King's Medal

LONDON, April 29.—(G.P.)—Instructions have been issued concerning the wearing of the King's Jubilee Medal, 80,000 of which have been struck for issue as a personal souvenir from His Majesty to persons in government services and others in the United Kingdom and other parts of the Empire.

The medal has been designed by Sir William Goscombe John, R.A. On the obverse are conjoint busts of the King and Queen crowned and robed, looking to the left, with the inscription around: "George V and Queen Mary, May VI, MCMXXV." On the reverse is the royal cipher G.R.I., surmounted by the crown, with the dates, May 6, 1910, and May 6, 1935, on either side, the whole within an ornamental border.

Individuals selected for the award will receive the medal on or shortly after May 6, but the medals will not be worn on that date, except by special instruction.

The medals will be worn suspended by a ring from a ribbon 1-4 inches wide with a red center strip 3-4 inch wide and two blue stripes and one white stripe of equal width on either side. The diameter of the medal is 1-4 inches.

Persons selected for the Jubilee medal is classified as an official medal, to be worn on all occasions on which decorations and medals are worn, on the left breast after all Jubilee, Coronation, and Durbar medals.

ERGOT OF CEREALS

(Experimental Farms Note)

Ergot is a preventable disease, but it seems to be just as common now as it ever was, and in some parts of Canada it is on the increase. It is caused by a parasitic fungus which infects cereals and many of the common grasses, both wild and cultivated. In the summer and autumn, it can be readily recognized by the purple or black horn-like bodies (sclerotia) which form in the spikelets of the head. Before the sclerotia appear, infected heads are found to be sticky, and often dirty in appearance due to adhering particles of dust. This is the "honey-dew" stage. The sclerotia either fall to the ground or are harvested with the crop. In the latter case, they are either threshed out with the seed or fed to stock. They contain an alkaloid very poisonous to man and animals.

In the following summer, sclerotia that are on the ground, or sown with the seed in the spring, begin to sprout and form small mushroom-like growths which produce a great number of tiny needle-shaped spores. These spores are carried about by winds and infect the new crop. When an infection reaches the honey-dew stage, another type of spore is produced which is spread by insects or the spattering of rain.

Experiments carried out by the Division of Botany at the Dominion Research Station, Winnipeg, show that the disease in Manitoba spreads from cereals to many grasses and from these grasses to cereals. Very probably this happens in other parts of Canada. For this reason, on a farm or in a district where ergot is troublesome, headlands should be kept clean and grasses in infected fields should be cut early to prevent sclerotia from forming. Ploughing buries many of the mchats are on the ground and prevents them from further development. Seed grain containing them should not be sown. They can be removed by immersing the seed in brine (40 pounds of common salt to 25 gallons of water) and stirring it thoroughly. As they are lighter than water, they come to the surface and can be skimmed off. The grain should then be washed well in two changes of water to remove the salt, as the salt is injurious to the germination of the seed.

pered, and she obeyed. Then their lips met—her first kiss. Love. Again he kissed her, and, for the second time, she sprang from his side.

"My God, what have you done?" she cried.

"Ha!" said a deep voice in the doorway and Lorry saw Alodie, the guard, pointing a carbine at him.

"Alodie!" the girl screamed, and leaped between Lorry and the gun. In the language of Graustark, she spoke a few words to the guard and he turned away.

"He would have killed you," she told Lorry.

"What did you say to him?" asked Lorry.

"I told him that I had not—that I had not been—offended."

"You were not?" he questioned.

"I said it only to save your life," said Yelive. "I shall never forgive you. You must leave here at once. Ach, God! What have I given you the right to say of me?"

"Stop!" he broke in. "It is sacred."

"Yes, I understand," the princess said. "But you must leave the Castle today."

"I shall obey your command," answered Lorry, "but I shall not leave Graustark."

At the top of a staircase, he held out his hand.

"Good-bye, Your Highness," he said.

"Good-bye," she answered simply and left him.

Far down on the walk, Lorry turned for a last glance at the Castle from which love had banished him. Yelive was standing on the balcony and there were tears in her eyes.

EXTENSION PICK-UP AND DELIVERY BY CANADIAN RAILWAYS

MONTREAL, Que., April 29.—Further extension of the freight pick-up and delivery service in Eastern Canada has been announced by the Traffic Vice-Presidents of the Canadian National and Canadian Pacific Railways. The new service, which is to be extended to all points Toronto and east and Quebec, Megantic and west and between points west of Toronto, will provide for four different tariff ratings; depending on the class of traffic to be handled, and a further extension of the part of the Canadian railways to meet unregulated competition of highway freight transportation and to determine the most effective method which can be employed to return to the railways a larger portion of merchandise traffic now moving over the highway. The new tariffs are expected to become effective on May first. In performing this service, the railways will use cartage agencies already in existence and thus avoid any capital expenditure in the acquiring of new facilities.

NEW BRUNSWICK POTATOES WELL RECEIVED IN INDIA

New Brunswick potatoes have been introduced into the Bombay market, India, and have been favourably received. Large quantities of potatoes are imported into the Bombay market each year from Italy, Cyprus, Mombasa (Kenya) and Japan. The native potato comes on the market from December to February so that Canadian potatoes should arrive in the months July to November, according to the Agricultural Department of the Canadian National Railways. Round, yellow or white-skinned varieties, medium to medium-large size are preferred, and they must be new-crop and thin-skinned, otherwise they will have sprouted or gone to seed at the time they arrive.

Mother—Think this over
Children like to have the same drink as the "grown-ups". But you probably don't give them tea or coffee. It is good for them to have a hot drink. Make Instant Postum for them, using hot milk (not boiled) instead of boiling water. They'll like the taste immediately.

"THE WHOLE FAMILY LIKES THE POSTUM FLAVOUR!"

There are, of course, many people who can drink tea and coffee in moderation without feeling the ill-effects—without suffering from sleeplessness.

Postum

Be careful with stimulants. Drink Postum. This appetizing, sustaining hot drink will benefit you and each member of the family because it contains no trace of any poison or drug-stimulant. Instantly made in the cup at a cost of about half-a-cent. 45 cups to a 3oz tin. There's Postum Cereal, too, made by boiling or percolating 20 minutes. Try Postum for 30 days. Sore Knee Joints Made Well Quickly

"My knee and ankle joints bothered me a lot—they were a bit swelled and quite painful. I got great benefit when I rubbed on Nerviline. It is a strong liniment, and destroys pain quickly. I could feel Nerviline sink in deeply. It went right after those pains that had made my joints so sore. I urge all sufferers from rheumatism to faithfully try our Nerviline." This was the experience of E. H. Hilliard, well known in the city of Georgetown. Pain, soreness and stiffness vanish before the magic power of this wonderful liniment. Get a 35-cent bottle of Nerviline from any storekeeper; it will do you good.
