Mr. Lavin certainly deserves credit for the work he has already done towards the town, and we hope that he will keep up the good work.

Alcoholism in America

(From the Statistical Bulletin, Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.) There were 433 deaths from alcoholism among Metropolitan Industrial policy holders during the first nine months of 1926, with a death rate of 3.3 per 100,000. This is the highest death rate for this disease for any similar period since 1917. The rate for the corresponding period of last year was 2.3; the increase since last year was approximately 41 per cent. Cirrhosis of the liver which is closely associated with alcoholism, accounted for 363 deaths. Deaths charged to wood and denatured alcoholic poisoning numbered twenty-four during the nine months period. Since January 1, 1922, a period of four years and nine months, alcoholism has caused 2,090 deaths among Metropolitan industrial policyholders. Of these, 2,067 occurred among approximately sixteen million persons living in the United States, and only twenty-three among approximately one million Canadian insured in the industrial department of the company. More than half of the few deaths from alcoholism among Canadians, occurred in the Province of Ontario, which has approximately one-third of the number of persons exposed to risk in the Dominion.

Coral Secrets

(By British United Press) LONDON, May 5.—An important zoological expedition will leave England in June on an expedition to the Great Barrier Reef of Australia, the largest coral reef in the world, which stretches for more than 1,000 miles along the Queensland coast. It will be led by J. S. Gardiner, Professor of Zoology and Comparative Anatomy at Cambridge University. The Barrier Reef, a unique geographical feature, has remained more or less a mystery since Captain Cook, in 1770, ran his ship Endeavour around there. One object of the expedition is to settle the great question of how these vast coral reefs are formed by the tiny "coral insect". This insect is merely a piece of animated sea anemone. It can survive only in pure, warm seawater devoid of mud. Young coral islands are known to have disappeared after heavy tropical rain-floods. The expedition will find the coral reef the richest field in the world for investigating the problems of marine and flora. The "living reef" is only visible at low tides, and is then revealed as a majestic colour spectacle of orange, blue, red and green—like an exquisite garden. It has purchased a very valuable team of western-horses from Mr. Chester Pratt, St. Peters.

Lady Byng Plants Canadian Trees And Shrubs

LONDON, May 5.—Over 1,500 different Canadian plants and shrubs have been planted at Thorpe Hall, near Clacton-on-Sea where the ex-Governor-General of Canada, Viscount Byng, resides with Lady Byng. Since their return to Thorpe, Lady Byng has made wonderful changes in the grounds in front of the house. She is an enthusiastic gardener, and a "Daily News" representative found her busy in the grounds. There is a large lake, where various Canadian waterfowl are rapidly making themselves at home. Not far away a noisy waterfowl feeds two smaller lakes, and stepping stones, little islands and natural haunts make up a beautiful picture. Everywhere there are strange and peculiar plants, some taken from the Canadian prairies and dropped into quiet Essex soil; some sent by Canadian friends and many brought by Lady Byng herself from Canada. The much-talked-about swamp frogs have not arrived yet. They are coming from Ontario, and a nice swampy piece of ground awaits their arrival. Walking among the trees one constantly sees nesting boxes conveniently placed.

Medical Profit Makers Scored By M. D.'s

CHICAGO, Ills., May 6.—Preventive medicine is the crying need of civilization, but the goal will not be achieved so long as the medical profession thinks in terms of pecuniary profit. Sir James Barr, M.D., distinguished British physician, past president of the Royal Medical Society and Knight of Grace of the Order of the Hospital of St. John of Jerusalem, declares in an article in the current issue of the Journal of the American Electronic Research Association. Sir James several years ago created a stir by advocating the payment of physicians by results, further contending that in case of death medical attendants should be required to pay the funeral expenses. "Albert Abrams and His Critics" is the article written by Sir James, in which he defends the pioneer of electronic medicine against charges of seeking personal gain. "It is unfortunate but no less a fact, that the so-called leaders of the medical profession in America as well as in England, have no use for any discovery which does not make money easily," Sir James charges. "There is no desire to seek for absolute truth, the only test of truth is, does it work and pay; all else must be discarded or virulently opposed until its practical benefits overwhelm opposition." "Abrams' methods are efficacious but they do not create millionaires, he says. "I am more interested in the prevention of disease than in its treatment," Sir James asserts, "and my appreciation of Abrams' methods is due to the fact that disease can be thus often diagnosed and arrested before it has assumed serious proportions. I should like to see a healthy, virile, intellectual race who would be independent of doctors and undertakers to an advanced age." "A diseased man is of no use to anybody but to his doctor and himself." "Matters do not seem to be improving in America. According to 20,000,000 children in the United States, 1,000,000 suffer from some physical defect. Of these some 2,000,000 are suffering from grave malnutrition; 10,000,000 have badly diseased teeth; 2,000,000 suffer from obstructed breathing due to adenoids or enlarged tonsils; a similar number have large cervical glands; at least 10,000,000 are or have been afflicted with tuberculosis; 4,000,000 have defective vision; more than 1,000,000 have defective hearing; about 1,000,000 have spinal curvature or kindred deformities; nearly half a million have organic heart trouble, and at least 1,000,000 are predisposed to some serious form of nervous disorder.

"This vast array of diseases are nearly all preventable and does not reflect much credit on the medical profession; in fact it is a positive disgrace to medical teachers, medical journals, and leaders of medical thought, who, if they were all scrapped, would never be missed.

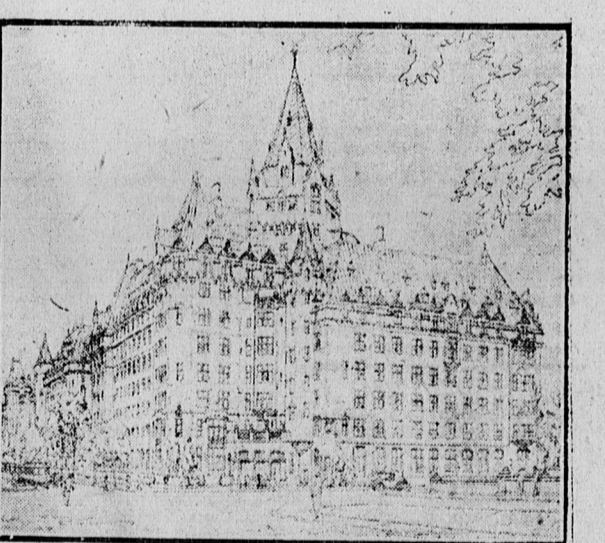

"We want the preservation of health and the prevention of diseases from the cradle to the grave. "There is not a medical school in England or in America where medicine is taught as it should be taught; the fact of the matter is that there is no use in anyone trying to disguise the fact, preventive medicine does not pay, but it will pay when the public recognizes that health is a factor independent of disease. Preventive medicine as Dr. Andrew Balfour says would pay any community intellectual enough to see that it was carried out in its broadest sense.

"In 1911, in an address in Montreal, I looked forward to the time when our hospitals would be half empty and would be looked upon as relics of a decadent age. This ideal is still a long way off, but I

In the middle of the night, April 29-30, 1903, a mass of rock weighing millions of tons broke away from the summit of Turtle Mountain (7,236 feet) in the Crow's Nest Pass, Alberta, and swept away a large part of the mining camp of Frank as though it were matchwood. Eighty miners, their wives and children, sleeping beneath the avalanche, were carried away into oblivion. The mass of rock covered over a square mile of the valley, shown above. The cross indicates about where the centre of the town of Frank stood in 1903. Following a government investigation in 1910, the remainder of the town was ordered moved out of an indicated danger zone. It was feared that another large section of the mountain peak might fall. This has not yet happened, but if it does, the C. P. R. track from Macleod and the Red motor trail will again be in peril.

The architect's drawing of the new government building to be erected on the corner of Wellington and Bank streets, Ottawa, to house various departments now scattered over the city, is shown herewith. The general architecture is in the French Chateau style. The total floor space will be about 175,000 square feet, the building being six to eight storeys with extra floors in the roof space. The main tower will house the elevators. The material will be Nepean stone with cut stone trimmings. Work will be started this summer, the old building now on the site being demolished.

We use this adjective advisedly. Sufferers from Eyestrain may have perfect vision and therefore do not suspect the presence of any eye defect.

The motive power of the entire human organism is Nerve Energy.

Normal eyes, it is computed utilize about 20% of this Nerve Energy, but when Eyestrain is present, a much larger proportion is required.
