INSIDIOUS EYE STRAIN
We use this adjective ad- vantageously.
Sufferers from Eye-strain may have perfect vision and therefore do not suspect the presence of any eye defect.
The motive power of the entire human organism is Nerve Energy.
Normal eyes, it is computed, utilize about 20% of this Nerve Energy, but when Eye-strain is present, a much larger proportion is required, hence defective eyes, through their consumption of an excessive amount of Nerve En- ergy, may seriously affect the functioning of other organs of the body, and produce ill health.

STINNES FAMILY IS LOSING HEIRLOOMS
BERLIN, August 29.—Ownership of the Stinnes mines and the Rhine coal fleet, which have been a family heirloom for many generations, will pass from the family estate into the hands of a holding com- pany within the next few days, ac- cording to a statement in the Lon- don Times quoting a spokesman for the Reich's bank.
By holding company is presum- ably meant the group of creditor banks which took over moral re- ceivership of the Stinnes firm, and which already have disposed of nearly all the holdings of the es- tate except the shipping industry hotels and timber lands.
The price agreed upon for the four Stinnes mines and interest in two others, and for the Rhine fleet, is about 80,000,000 marks. With the conclusion of this deal, the Stinnes estate's indebtedness will be reduced to about 60,000,000 marks. It is arranged that what- ever remains to the family after the creditors have been satisfied, will be awarded to them in stocks in the mines which formerly they owned entirely.
Edmund Stinnes, who withdrew his inheritance from the estate be- fore the crash came, is still await- ing negotiations for the sale of the Aza automobile works with a mys- terious American firm, which was reported as intending to run the factory with American engineers and American production methods.
"The Odd Man" is the first play of the authors, who have, however, Minard's Liment for Dandruff.

Authors Object To Changes In Plays
LONDON, August 27.—The ques- tion of the right of authors to their own plays was raised last night at the first performance of "The Odd Man" at a suburban theatre. Mid- way through the last act, with a clatter and bang, the two authors, St. Clair Scott and Caswell Garth, got up, marched out and banged the door behind them. They did this as a protest at alterations they declared had been made in their play during rehearsal without their consent.
Scott explained today that the first act had been rewritten with- out a single line of the authors in it. The second was not so much changed, but the new atmosphere imparted to the first act to which the authors objected had been maintained all through. As for the third act, it was quite unrecogniz- able and Scott had to confess that neither he nor Garth had ever had the patience to sit through it at rehearsal.
"Don't think we are so foolish as to imagine our play was sacred," Scott said, "but as the play stands, we are ashamed to associate our names with it. If managers gain the impression that this is a genuine sample of our work, our future will be ruined."
"The Odd Man" is the first play of the authors, who have, howev-

"Jazzed" Hamlet Huge Success
LONDON, Aug. 27.—The leading dramatic critics concur in declar- ing that Sir Henry Barry Jackson's modernized "Hamlet" which was produced last night was an im- pressive success. They admit that they received a shock when they saw the Prince soliloquizing while toying with a cigar- ette and fighting a duel in "plus fours" and on seeing Ophelia in a knee-length skirt and the Queen and the courtiers drinking cock- tails.
But they were surprised to find how slight and unessential these eccentricities seemed as the play proceeded and left in their minds the sensation of profoundly mov- ing drama which, as compared with the traditional presentation, gained in point in clarity and speed.
There was an occasional laugh from the audience as each new incongruous costume appeared, but there was no derision nor any out- burst to hinder the action of the drama. The actors received a tremen- dous ovation at the close of the play.
while on the job" and they ask that the company co-operate in the matter of enforcement. This has been promised. The public are being asked to assist by seeing that such irritations as might lead to the use of the forbidden words are eliminated.
Do you ever in making sugar- cookies, take the rolled-out dough spread one-half with peanut butter or jelly then turn the other half over and shape it neatly, then bake as usual, and when it is done cut it in squares? try it. The best ones I have made resulted when I thought I had nothing for filling, and I had to plan. I mixed two ta- bespoonfuls of cocoa, 1 of butter, and 2 of sugar. They were very fine.

BAD LANGUAGE BAN IS ISSUED BY LABOR UNION
MONTREAL, Aug. 27.—The modest claim of the "well-bred" cap- tain of the "Pinnacore" that "bad language or abuse I never, never use" may shortly be the proud boast of the workmen of the Mont- real Light, Heat & Power Com- pany if the efforts of E. Blanchet, and W. P. Lavigne President and Secretary, respectively of the elec- tricians union are successful. In a communication to the company they announce that the union has resolved to place a ban on the em- ployment of irregular expression

Election Guessers Are At Work
OTTAWA, Aug. 26.—Already the usual guessing contests as to the general composition of the next parliament have been indulg- ed in by supporters of the two old- er parties.
One Conservative estimate is 110 seats for Mr. Meighen, which es- timate includes 20 in the Maritimes, 20 in Quebec, 65 in Ontario and the remainder west of the Great Lakes.
More hopeful Liberals claim for the government 115 seats, of which 15 would be in the Maritimes, (out of a total of 29), 60 in Quebec, 25 in Ontario, and the remainder in the West.
Both of the older groups look for a considerable reduction in the strength of the Progressives.
It was announced that the Prime Minister, accompanied by Right Hon. George P. Graham, Minister of Railways and Canals and Hon. Charles Murphy, Postmaster Gen- eral, would address a gathering of the electors of North York, his own riding, at Richmond Hill, on the afternoon of Sept. 5.
As this is the day subsequent to the expected return of His Ex- cellency the Governor-General to this city, it is believed that Pre- mier King will make known in his own riding, as is the usual practice, his intentions regarding the dis- solution of Parliament.
Other dates for the Prime Min- ister will be announced later.
At that gathering the Prime Minister it is expected, will dis- cuss the lines along which the election campaign will be conduc- ed by the Liberals. One of the points that he will advocate will be the giving of the Government a working majority and the facility of marking ballots unless some such result is achieved.
