DAIRY ASSOCIATION MET IN ANNUAL CONFERENCE

The First Meetings of Farmers' Week were held yesterday afternoon and evening in the Technical School - Interesting Reports, Addresses and Discussion on Dairy Activities.

There was a fairly good attendance at the annual meeting of the Provincial Dairy Association held yesterday at the Technical School. The afternoon session opened at 2:30 p. m. The vice-president, Mr. J. S. Cousins presided in the unavoidable absence of the president, Mr. Herbert Simpson. The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted. The secretary's report was read as given elsewhere in the Guardian. A balance of over $65.00 was shown on the right side of the ledger. The report of the auditor, Mr. C. J. Cook was then read and both reports were adopted.

Messrs J. Thos. Hicks and J. A. McDonald, Montreal, of the Dominion Department, were present at the meeting and were introduced by the secretary, Mr. Proffit. The chairman expressed pleasure at the presence of the Dominion officials. He referred to Mr. McDonald's work in Western Canada and to the important message both officials would have for Island dairymen. He also expressed pleasure at the presence of Hon. J. H. Myers, Commissioner of Agriculture upon whom he called for some remarks.

LENTE LECTURES TO BELIEVERS

Quiet Talks in Retreat.

By REV. S. D. GORDON

The following addresses suitable for Lent were delivered in New York by Rev. S. D. Gordon and may be helpful to readers. They will be continued daily:

CHOKED CHANNELS

A few years ago I was making a brief tour among the colleges of Missouri. I remember one morning in a certain college village going over from the hotel to take breakfast with some of the boys, and coming back with one of the fellows whom I had just met. As we walked along, chatting away, I asked him quietly, "Are you a Christian, sir?" He turned quickly and looked at me with an odd, surprised expression in his eye and then, turning his face away said: "Well, I'm a member of church, but—I don't believe I'm very much of a Christian." Then I looked at him and he frankly volunteered a little information. Not very much. He did not need to say much. You can see a large field through a chink in the fence. And I saw enough to let me know that he was right in the criticism he had made upon himself. We talked a bit and parted. But his remark set me thinking.

A week later, in another town, speaking one morning to the students of a young ladies' seminary, I said upwards to one of the teachers as we were talking: "I suppose your young women here are all Christians." That same quizzical look came into her eyes as she said: "I think they are all members of church, but I do not think they are all Christians with real power in their lives." There was that same odd distinction. A few weeks later, in Kansas City visiting the medical and dental schools, I recall distinctly standing one morning in a disordered room—shavings on the floor, desks disarranged—the institution just moving into new quarters, and not yet settled. I was discussing with a member of the faculty, the dean I think, about how many the room would hold, how soon it would be ready, and so on—just a business talk, nothing more—when he turned to me rather abruptly, looking me full in the face, and said with quiet deliberation: "I'm a member of church; I think I am a deacon in our church"—running his hand through his hair meditatively, as though to refresh his memory—"but I am not very much of a Christian, sir." The smile that started to come to my face at the odd frankness of his remark was completely chased away by the distinct touch of pathos in both face and voice that seemed to speak of a hungry, unsatisfied heart within. Perhaps it was a month or so later, in one of the mining towns down in the zinc belt of southwestern Missouri, I was to speak to a meeting of men. There were probably five or six hundred gathered in a Methodist Church. They were strangers to me. I was in doubt what best to say to them. One difficulty to the amusement of people that are absent. So stopping down to a front pew where several ministers were seated, I asked one of them to run his eye over the house and tell me what sort of a congregation it was, so far as he knew them. He did so, and presently replied: "I think fully two-thirds of these men are members of our churches"—and then, with that same quizzical, half laughing look, he added, "but you know, sir, as well as I do, that not half of them are Christians worth counting." "Well," I said to myself, astonished, "this is a mining camp; this certainly is not anything like the conditions of affairs in the country generally." But that series of incidents, coming one after the other in such rapid succession, set me thinking intently about that strange distinction between being members of a church on the one hand, and not

CAN. SECTION LOCAL TALENT SCORES

OF GLOBE AIR FLIGHT IN EXCELLENT DRAMA

"A Noble Outcast" Produced Successfully by the V. D. Players at the Prince Edward Theatre Last Night.

OTTAWA, March 3.—The cross Canada section of the British world flight has been mapped out by the staff on the Royal Canadian Air Force. Though the details of the route are not yet completed, the general line of flight from the Pacific Coast to Newfoundland has been fixed.

The British airmen will probably touch Canada first at Prince Rupert, after crossing from Japan via Aleutian Island and the Alaskan Coast. They will follow the Yellowhead Pass to Edmonton, then to Regina where they will swing slightly south to Victoria Beach, on Lake Winnipeg. They will then proceed over the Kenora and Lake district to Fort William and cross the upper part of Lake Superior, keeping always in Canadian territory to S. S. Marine. They will follow the north Channel and Georgian Bay to Lake Nipissing, then down the Ottawa river to Ottawa. The planes will go south to the St. Lawrence and there is an optional course from there to Newfoundland; they will go either via Fredericton, Bay of Fundy and Amherst or by Campbellton and the Magdalen Islands to the South-eastern points of Newfoundland and thus to St. John's.

"A Noble Outcast" was the title of an interesting drama at the Prince Edward Theatre last night, as Mrs. Lee, to whom the outcast's daughter had endeared herself from early childhood, gave a most sympathetic interpretation of her part.

To Mr. Thos. White fell the part of James Blackburn, the villain of the piece, whose cunning is frustrated by the upright character of Weston. In this difficult role Mr. White won fresh laurels. The part of Jack Worthington was well taken by Mr. A. H. McLean. Miss Lundie, Whitlock, as Sadie, the maid, made an excellent impression in a light comedy role.

There were several good dramatic incidents in the play, particularly in the third act, which closed with the arrest of Jerry Weston. The relation between the outcast and his daughter France was finely interpreted, and the entire performance went smoothly from the opening act to the final curtain.

Address and Presentation to Mr. Ernest Harris

Upwards of fifty friends and fellow employees were present at a banquet and dance at the Cafe Paul last evening, the occasion being a farewell to Mr. Ernest Harris well known salesman at Frowse Bros., Ltd., who leaves shortly for Summerside where he intends to open up a haberdashery business.

The affair which commenced at 7 p. m. was presided over by Mr. George VanBuskirk who very capably carried out the duties of chairman. After the banquet which was put up in a style which speaks great credit to the management of the Cafe Paul covers were lifted and a varied program consisting of singing, speeches, dancing etc., was carried out.

The following address read on behalf of those present by Mr. VanBuskirk who also presented Mr. Harris with a handsome leather club bag in ample proof of the high esteem in which the latter was held by his fellow workers:

Dear Ernie,

Partings and farewells whether they be for short or long durations of time are sad. Whatever their

BRITAIN FACES ENGLISH PRESS FURTHER LABOR PRAISES WORK DIFFICULTIES OF PREMIER

(British United Press) LONDON, March 3.—Without reserve the London press hails the publication of letters which recently passed between Premier MacDonald and Poincare with gratification and in some quarters with positive delight. Even the Daily Mail congratulates Labor's Foreign Minister on their tone. It is generally admitted that MacDonald has advanced further during the few weeks he has been in office towards a settlement of France-British difficulties than the late Government by its methods did in more than a year.

The chief and most noticeable feature of the letters which are now made public is the absence of the acrimonious tone which was such a prominent feature in previous correspondence. Undoubtedly the fall of the Belgian Government and the rising opposition to Poincare's Government on the eve of the French General Elections have contributed to the change of tone on the French side. It is pointed out however that the opening communications from MacDonald were couched in such frank and generous terms that they left little opportunity for framing a bitter reply.
