MRS. FLORA MORRISON

A very sad event took place at Greenvale, on Tuesday, July 29th in the death of Flora Morrison, beloved wife of Leonard Mooney, of this place, at the early age of twenty-seven years. She had been in failing health for some months but no serious apprehensions were felt. Her youth, her former robust health coupled with tender care all thought would restore her again to health, but God willed otherwise and to the heartfelt grief of a large circle of friends besides her own family her pure spirit passed to its reward. She leaves two children of tender years, too young to realize their loss. Three step-children feel her loss even more for she was to them a loving mother and she received from them a devotion rare to see. The deceased was the daughter of James Morrison, Poplar Point. She leaves besides her husband and children two brothers and one sister to mourn their loss.

According to her request interment was in St. George's cemetery on Thursday, July 31st. The funeral was largely attended. Many friends from Greenvale accompanying her remains were: Aeneas McAulay, Andrew R. Mooney, Dan. F. Mooney, Joseph McKenzie, Alex. McDonald, and Peter Walker. May her soul rest in peace.

Tariff Action By the Liberals Step in the Dark

(Financial Post)

OTTAWA.—The public attitude of distrust towards business which is the result of the general social unrest and discontent at the working of economic laws in relation to the cost of living found some reflection in the general spirit which pervaded the great Liberal convention this week.

The tariff resolution permitted an outward expression of this, but when all the factors are taken into consideration the question as to whether the low tariff element gained any ground beyond what might have been reasonably conceded in a practical analysis of the whole political situation.

Throughout the tariff debate sentiment ranged all the way from the most radical Cobdenite utterances to the counsels of moderation and vagueness urged by some who were apparently afraid of the strong protectionist sentiment which exists in spots all through the party. It is no secret that there was a pretty strong fight in committee before the low tariff sentiment of the West prevailed. At all events it was not all-embracing enough to please "Honest" John Oliver, Premier of British Columbia, who seemed to think that it was too sectional in its incidence.

Lack of Information

Kirk Cameron, a Montreal manufacturer and friend of the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier, tried to give the convention some salutary advice on their platform-making efforts, but he got very little hearing. He warned them that they were attacking the tariff in a most unscientific manner, framing this tariff policy without adequate knowledge in information, and it would be just another case of pledges which could never be carried out, with consequent dissatisfaction, but the turbulent spirits from the West were in no mood to listen to the counsels of moderation, and he effected nothing. The radicals appear to have a firm hold on the party, and their influence has prevailed for the present.

Platforms, however, as a cynic once said, are made "to get in on, not to stand on," and, as in Shakespeare's time there used to be rough humor interspersed in the tragedies "to please the groundlings," so now we may discount some things which went through the convention with the knowledge that the West had to be appeased with concessions, which may be a long time before they are ever crystallized into legislation. Evidently much would depend on the attitude and mentality of the man chosen to guide the parties' destinies and deliberations hereafter.

Perhaps the one thing most clearly revealed by the proceedings of the convention was the need for some adequate knowledge regarding the tariff and the condition of Canadian industry. Mr. Cameron pointed out to the convention that the committee charged with framing it had no adequate knowledge regarding the items involved in the resolution. "How can you make a tariff intelligently without information?" asked Mr. Cameron. Echo answered, "How!" But that was the only sane answer he got to the question. Apparently the majority of the delegates did not know—or care.

It must be borne in mind that these resolutions are put to the meeting in the most informal manner possible. They are settled by a few men in committee, put by rapid-fire method to the meeting, and assent apparently taken for granted in every case, the chairman announcing "carried" without any further formality or discussion. There has been no general discussion of any kind on the part of the meeting. Discussion has been free in an informal way, however, and has revealed a great deal of dissent from the principles of the platform.

Mr. King and Business

The selection of Mr. McKenzie-King was largely influenced by his brilliant speech advocating the adoption in its entirety of the methods and principles in regard to labor incorporated in the peace conditions. With this there might not be so much to quarrel, but the fear which the business world will probably have of the new Liberal leader will be that he will come to the leadership and eventually possibly to the head of the Government of Canada after a long period of years spent in an academic sphere, and removed from practical conditions; and it will wait expectantly and somewhat anxiously to see whether he can also bring to the solution of Canada's serious problems the practical turn of mind which is so necessary at this time.—T.M.F.

IN MEMORIAM

MRS. JOSEPH DOUCETTE

A gloom has been cast over Rustico and vicinity by the sad death at the early age of 21 years, of Mrs. Joseph Doucette, (nee Emilia Blanchard), which occurred on the 28th July at the County Hospital, St. John, N.B., where she had gone for her health.

All that could be done by a young devoted husband and sister and the County Hospital doctors had been tried but to no avail.

The deceased was of a loveable and gentle disposition which won for her a large circle of friends at home and abroad whose friendly feelings will follow her beyond the grave. She received with great faith and piety the last Sacraments of the Holy Church. Her remains were accompanied to the Island by her sorrowing husband and sister Lucy who had gone to be with her during her illness.

She was buried at St. Augustin cemetery, Rustico by the pastor Rev. J. Chaisson on Wednesday, July 30th with Mass of Requiem and obsequies at the grave.

Owing to the condition of the weather the funeral was not so large as it otherwise would have been.

Much sympathy is felt for the young husband as they had only been married a few months.

She leaves to mourn besides her sorrowing husband a loving invalid mother, five sisters, Lucy at home, Mrs. Amanda Pincus, Mrs. Helaine Peters and Mrs. Peter Gallant, all of Oyster Bed Bridge, P. E. I. and Mrs. Maxim Peters, of St. Louis, P. E. I. and three brothers, Peter at home, Elias at Woburn, Mass. and Stanislaus, Dalhousie, N. B., and though we know that earthly consolation is vain to offer yet we cannot refrain from saying that the deep heartfelt sympathy of all their friends and acquaintances is theirs in this sad hour of trial. The pall bearers were: Stanislaus Gallant, James Desroches, Jerome Diron, Sylvestre Martin, Benoit Martin, Fidele Doucette. (Patrist and Examiner please copy)
