As the questioning limped along, several heated exchanges broke out between beetle-browed Mr. Christensen, an independent, determined and bland witness, and some of the lawyer-members of the committee.

Mr. Christensen brought laughter from the committee on four or five occasions when he blocked cross-examination by sharp retorts to persistent questions phrased in legal language.

At one point, he tossed up his hands and declared: "I suggest, Mr. Chairman, you adjourn this meeting until I get an attorney. I won't stand for this."

Another time he said that the committee was "very close" to being a police court.

Health Minister Martin, the chairman, intervened frequently to keep order in the committee, which also saw brisk cross-fire between members of different political parties, with charges flying about that there were political motives behind questions.

Tomorrow, the fruit and vegetable wholesalers are expected to be called in rebuttal of the retailers charges.

Late Rally Pulls U. S. Grains Out Of Price Slump

CHICAGO, Feb. 18 (AP)—A late rally pulled some grains out of their price slump today in a session that had mostly bad news for United States consumers.

The Government reported that the United States' meat-on-the-hoof supply is the lowest since 1939. This news caused a temporary slump in grains. Prices rallied later, however, on trade reports that unfavorable weather was endangering the new wheat crop in the southwest.

The most cheerful note for the housewife's food budget was the weakness in butter prices, both in the wholesale markets and on the Chicago mercantile exchange.

Wholesale butter declined 1-2 to 1 1/2 cents a pound in Chicago and one to two cents in New York.

Egg Production In This Province Continues Heavy

Egg production in Prince Edward Island continues heavy for the season of the year, Mr. F.M. Nash, senior poultry products inspector reported yesterday in a Dominion Department of Agriculture report.

Prince Edward Island poultrymen are demonstrating that winter eggs can be produced in commercial quantities, four carloads being shipped since last week.

Chick hatcheries have been in operation for the past three weeks, which has had the effect of reducing the volume of eggs offered on the local market.

Some dealers stating it is the best for some years. Paying prices are now pretty much on an export basis and dealers continue to quote for ungraded eggs AL 37 1/2, AM 35 1/2, B 30, C 18.

Dealers are quoting operating of grading stations for the graded pack f.o.b. their stations AL 42, AM 40, B 34, C 22 and for the same product sized and stamped for export AL 43 1/2, AM 41 1/2.

Poultry receipts are practically nil. Winter receipts complete. Storage stocks continue to be moved to Upper Canada and U.S.A.

Future of Industry - The future of the poultry industry turns on the operations of those persons who are prepared to establish an economical unit large enough to contribute substantially to the farm income.

Such a unit consists of a brooder stove, a colony house, and an adequate laying house backed up with good stock, good feeding and good management.

The securing of the maximum of efficiency in poultry operations is the measure necessary for successful poultry raising today.

Early chicks bring the greatest returns. "You need early chicks this year," Mr. Nash said. "You need them to supply your own requirements and also to have eggs to sell in the fall and winter when returns are highest."

Early chicks have two advantages: (1) They lay early when prices are highest; and (2) they lay longest, spreading the returns over the whole year.

In those days of high feed costs, waste from feed hoppers is the most indefensible loss in poultry revenue. The height of feed hoppers from the floor has a great deal to do with waste.

Low hoppers prevent waste and high hoppers encourage it. Birds tend to pay with feed in high hoppers, the feed is pulled out and wasted.

With low hoppers, birds have to stoop down to make an effort to get the feed, that which falls from their beaks falls back into the hopper, not on the floor.

Height of feed in the hopper has a bearing on waste. Feed should never be higher than two inches below the lip of the hopper. Waste of feed is costly.

SENATOR EULER - Continued from page 1 the last two sessions of Parliament and a similar measure, for the first time, now is before the Commons on motion of James Sinclair (L-Vancouver North).

Senator Euler, in an hour-long speech, charged that Canada would be violating the spirit of the Geneva trade agreements if she applied a prohibitive tariff against margarine when those agreements force her to remove the ban on imports.

He also accused the Government of "offering to drive a horse and buggy through the B.N.A. Act" by offering to allow Newfoundland, if it became a Canadian Province, to make margarine but not to sell it elsewhere in Canada.

This would be a "flagrant violation of the principles of confederation."

Senator Ballantyne, as a former dairyman, said low butter prices could not be expected for "quite a long time." The dairyman led a slavish existence. He found no fault with the present high price of butter.

vote for removal of Senator Euler could get removal of the ban against cattle shipments. Grinning, Senator Euler said, "I can no more remove that bar than the honorable senator can vote with me on this measure."

Senator Horner said butter prices should, in all fairness to the farmer, have been up to 70 cents four years ago. There would have been lots more butter around if the price had been sufficient. He predicted that butter would be below 60 cents and that there would be plenty.

Senator Roebuck said many city dwellers needed good food at a reasonable price. It was a fundamental freedom that people should be allowed to choose what they wish to eat. It was morally wrong for the Government to take sides with an industry and to compel the majority to support it. As a former farmboy, he knew the tedious job of churning butter. He would want to do nothing to injure butter producers.

In a case like this, principle should prevail. He thought the ban's chief protection was for the larger dairy business. Good principle would bring a compromise by which farmers would be allowed to export cattle and city dwellers would be allowed margarine.

Senator Euler said one reason for his action was to restore to the people the right of choice as to whether they buy butter or margarine, and the establishment of free competition within Canada.

"I am convinced by overwhelming evidence from individuals, from women's organizations, soldiers' organizations, labor organizations and newspapers throughout Canada that the people of this country—with the exception of the dairy interests—are overwhelmingly in favor of the repeal of this unfair law."

It now was admitted, even by opponents of margarine, that the butter substitute is "thoroughly wholesome." Medical authorities had said that "from a nutritional and economic standpoint margarine is superior to butter."

Senator Euler added that under terms of the Geneva agreement, Canada is obliged to remove the ban on importation of margarine Newfoundland, to whom Canada offered confederation, makes margarine and under the British North America Act the product of any Province may enter freely into any other Province, he said.

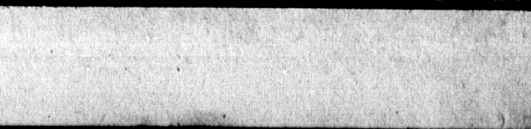

"And so the Government actually offers to drive a horse and wagon through the B.N.A. Act and tells Newfoundland that she may continue to make margarine but cannot export it to the other Provinces and the other Provinces cannot manufacture it. Can you imagine a more flagrant violation of the principles of confederation?"

Senator Euler said use of margarine will not "injure" the Canadian farmers.
