AWAKENED WOMAN

than otherwise that the free-and-easy manners of Frills' set demanded so little effort. Apparently nothing very definite was expected of a hostess; everyone talked volubly and seemed entirely at home. Both Ethel and Clarice were present, now in dinner dresses and ear rings.

There were two other women, who turned out to be Tess Farnsworth and Kate Belmain. Tess was about thirty years old, a non-descript brunette with a strained look back of her small brown eyes. Kate Belmain was the oldest woman in the party. Her white hair, bodded and marcelled with such careful skill that it quite rated the dignity of being called a coiffure, made a most becoming soft frame for her still excellent complexion.

The four men were commonplace enough. Charlie Bates was a bachelor, cheerful, unintelligent, dissipated, addicted to the use of strong perfume. Ed Rawley, the "faithful Ed" of Clarice's sarcastic comment, looked unhappy in this gathering. Ross Emery, who had greeted Frills so vociferously on her entrance proceeded to be the life and death of the party. The fourth man, strolling restlessly about the room trying to draw somebody into a game of poker was Art Belmain.

"Say, folks, I'm going to buy you all a drink," exclaimed Ed, jumping up, "who's with me? Frills is so holier-than-thou tonight it scares me. I know something that'll put a little original sin into her!"

"I'll come along and help you, Ed," offered Art. Then a diversion occurred in the form of the arrival of two more men. One of them was Dr. Ellison, and the other a man of about the same age who was hailed as "Trace." Tracy Farnsworth was tanned like the rest. Everything about him was neat, well creased, and immaculate, and like his personality, insipid.

With the arrival of the cocktails the party took on a shriller air.

"Say, doc, did you write a prescription for Frills after she did her leap for life the other day?" demanded Clarice.

"I did not," retorted the doctor, "what does she need it for, with Neil's supply still holding good?"

"And Mait's," added Kate with her loud laugh "where's your sweet patootie tonight, dearie?"

Joyce, thus directly addressed, answered coldly, "How should I know?"

A second round of drinks followed close on the first. The whole evening took on a confused, kaleidoscopic quality that gave Joyce the feeling of being in a noisy, unreal nightmare. She did not like the spectacle of these uncultured men and women drunkenly in pursuit of a "good time."

Would they never go home? Her head throbbed and she felt inexpressibly weary and revolted. Finally, watching her chance, she slipped out of the room just as a lively dance melody came in over the radio and several couples leaped up and began to revolve rather unsteadily.

Joyce escaped out of the front door to the quiet of the fragrant starlight. As she stumbled on the dark step she was suddenly caught in a strong embrace.

"Sweetheart, I had to come again to see how you were," whispered Maitland softly.

Joyce, overcome by her great weariness and disgust at the scene she had left, could not summon enough strength to struggle. She felt tired and terribly alone. All she was conscious of at the moment was that Maitland's cheek against hers was cool and sober, that his breath held no reek of liquor on it.

He did not try to take advantage of her yielding mood. He simply held her quietly, and Joyce, whose head had been spinning from the heat and the noise leaned against him with her eyes shut and murmured:

"Oh, I can't stand them, they'll all drunk . . . I want some air . . ."

"Get in my car and we'll take a run," said Maitland promptly. He led her to his machine which was only a few steps off "Here, put this on, you'll be cold if you don't." He held up a light overcoat and Joyce in a daze slid her arms into it and dropped back into the low seat without stopping to consider exactly what she was doing.

In another moment they were rolling down the drive and out into the road.

Maitland drove in silence, a tactful silence so welcome to Joyce in her lassitude that all her fear and abhorrence of him melted into gratefulness.

Further Questions And Answers for Nat. Registation

Q. Do American citizens, resident in the United States, have to register if they are in Canada on holiday?

A. No.

Q. Are employers supposed to give time off from work to their employees for registration, as they do for elections?

A. No, but most large firms are arranging for employees to register at their offices and plants if the employees wish to do so.

Q. Will any individual notice be given of the need to register?

A. No.

Q. May anyone volunteer to help with the registration as a public duty?

A. Yes. The more persons who volunteer the better.

Q. How does one go about offering his or her services?

A. Individuals who wish to help may get in touch with the registrar of the federal electoral division in which they reside. They will be assigned to the work by him.

Q. Is full time for the three-day registration period required of volunteers?

A. No. Such volunteers may help for part of the time, as convenient to them.

Q. Is there any monetary compensation for such volunteers?

A. No. The work is voluntary and a method of serving Canada.

Q. Is the information elicited under the national registration secret?

A. Yes. Any person connected with the registration or custody or use of the registration cards who, except as officially or by law required, discloses any information so obtained commits an offence and is liable to fine or imprisonment or both.

Q. What is the regulation as to marital status?

A. All persons married onr or after July 15, 1940, are to be entered as single, but date of the marriage must be given as well if before the registration date. Persons legally separated or separated as to bed and board are to be entered as mraried but specified "separated."

Q. What steps are to be taken if a person registered as single under present regulations marries subsequently?

A. Such person should within 14 days of the marriage notify the Dominion statistician at Ottawa of the date of his or her marriage and of the name and place of residence of the person he or she married.

Q. What tsteps are to be taken if one changes his or her place of residence following registration?

A. The new address must be forwarded to the Dominion statistician at Ottawa within 14 days.

Q. Is it an offence to counsel or advise any other person to refuse or omit to comply with any of the provisions of the regulations governing the registration?

A. Yes. Anyone who impedes or attempts to impede any person in the performance of his duties under the regulations is guilty of an offence.

New London And Vicinity

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bond and daughter, Joan, of Waltham, Mass., and Mr. and Mrs. Walton Toombs and family, were recent visitors to New London, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ramsay.

Miss Donna Bowness, Charlottetown, is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Lorne Campbell, New London.

Miss Margaret Ramsay, City, spent the week-end at her home here.

Lieut. Aubrey Found, of the P.E. Island Light Horse, was a recent visitor to his home in New London.

Little Miss Betty Roberts, of Winsloe, is visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Brown.

Mrs. Ira MacKay and daughter, Winnifred, are visiting in Charlottetown with friends.

MALPEQUE UNITED CHURCH

Rev. James Ramsey, D.D., of Moncton, was the guest preacher at the United Church, on Sunday morning last. This was a Baptismal Service. The little children of Albert MacNutt, John Beairsto, Ernest Bryenton and Alfred Jorkieson were baptized. Dr. Ramsay preached very earnestly and impressively on the theme: For me to live is Christ, to die is gain. Dealing with the persecutions of Christ when on earth, Christ with His small band of leaders, was the greatest power of His generation; but was persecuted. I am Jesus of Nazareth whom thou persecutest. Looking over the scroll of history, all great men were persecuted such as John Wesley, John Knox, etc. Paul was persecuted as a Christian. It is difficult to forgive one's enemies, such as Hitler and Germany. To Poul and every Christian, For me to live is Christ, to die is gain. To enter into that Home where there are no sorrows, which God has prepared. Are we born of Christ, really? Is it evident that we are true Christians among our friends? Concluding with help us to live so that for us to live is Christ, to die is gain.

The anthem, "Father, Take My Hand and Lead Me," (C. Austin Miles) was nicely sung by the choir, and in keeping with the subject. Hynms used were "A Little Child the Saviour Came," "Birds are Singing," and "I Need Thee Every Hour."

At the evening service there was a large attendance. The minister at this service was Rev. A. J. W. Myers, Ph. D., dean of Hartford Seminary, Conn. Mr. Myers preached very acceptably on the topic of right living. Right living, no nation can be at its best without nourishment, mentally and physically. Our bodies is the temple that reflects the Spirit of God. Improve the mind by reading 2 or 3 good heavy books a year, which will take the mind out of its ruts. Look at nature saying come and learn of me. Improve the mind with good concerts, good literature such as Shakespeare and the Bible. Our nation will never improve as it should, if we do not base our minds on solid information. Christian people must be enlightened. Enlightenment means a new day, a new chance.

If we are unhappy, nervous or strained, get a new attitude: the highest experience, God. Let us get down on our knees and thank God for service and employment. Cultivate activity in men, women, boys and girls. Let us be touched with the glory of God. Serve the Lord, attend to prayer. Be not overcome with evil, but overcome evil with good.

The music was special with the regular choir, assisted with two duets: Won't You Come Back Home, and God's Way, nicely presented by Messrs. Andrew Johnstone and Ernest Dunning; also a mixed quartette: Beautiful Life, by Mrs. Thompson, Mrs. Dunning, Chas. MacKay, and Robert MacLeod. Long River, was much appreciated. Rev. Mr. Myers expressed a word of appreciation to the singers. The hymns used were O God Our Help in Ages Past, and Onward Christian Soldiers.

National Anthem.

Sea View And Vicinity

A number from this community attended the annual tea, which was held in Cavendish on August 7th. The weather was ideal and all enjoyed meeting friends and renewing old acquaintances as well as a pleasant outing.

Mrs. Theodore Baker, of Medford, Mass., is spending a pleasant visit the guest of her mother, Mrs. Wm. Adams, and many other friends in the surrounding communities.

Mr. Clifford MacLaren, who has been employed for some time past in Schuman's Plant in Summerside, spent the week-end at his home in Sea View.

Miss Florrie Sutherland, Montreal, is spending a pleasant holiday at her old home in Sea View, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Leigh Sutherland.

Mr. John Mountain and Mr. Reginald Mountain have been busily employed for some time past in building a new dwelling house for Mr. and Mrs. Caroll, Baltic.

Mr. and Mrs. William Adams have had as their guests during the past week Mrs. Horace Heckbert and two little daughters, Neva and Freada, who are all enjoying a pleasant holiday.

The hall at Malpeque was well filled on Monday evening when Mrs. Gordon Glassco, of Montreal, gave a most interesting and vivid description of the time when the Germans invaded Belquim, in 1914. Mrs. Glassco was a resident of Brussels at that time, and from her own personal experience gave a thrilling account of the brutality and horrors of that invasion, so much in correspondence of the Germans in 1940. This gathering was under the auspices of the Darnley W. I. The president, Mrs. James Hickey, presided, and introduced the guest speaker of the evening. The proceeds of this lecture were for Red Cross purposes.

Mr. William Birt left on Monday morning for the airport in St. Eleanor's, where he has secured employment among the many hundreds who are daily working there.

Miss Louise MacKay has returned home after spending a pleasant visit with friends in Burlington.

Mrs. George Marquis, of Brighton, Mass., accompanied by her daughter, Jeanne, motored to this Province, and are spending a pleasant holiday, the guests of Mrs. Marquis' mother, Mrs. John T. McKay.

Mr. Horace Fraser and his sister, Miss Alice Fraser, motored from Montague on Sunday, and spent a pleasant visit in Sea View the guests of Mrs. Colin Donald.

A number of the choir of the United Church at Long River attended the evening service of the United Church at Malpeque by special request and assisted the choir of the Malpeque Church in all the music throughout the service. A beautiful quartette, The Beautiful Life, was well rendered by Mrs. Horace Thompson. Mrs. Ernest Dunning and Messrs. Charles McKay and Robert MacLeod. Also a duet by Messrs. Andrew Johnson and Ernest Dunning both those numbers were highly appreciated by the large congregation present. Professor Myers, of Hartford Seminary, Conn., was the speaker on this occasion, and gave a stirring message from Romans 10th Chapter. Mrs. Simpson presided at the organ, and led the choirs in all the music.

Hon. D. J. MacKay and Mrs. MacKay, of Springfield, accompanied by Mr. Lemuel McKay, of Charlottetown, spent Tuesday visiting friends in Baltic and Sea View.

Among the recent guests at the MacGregor House, Malpeque, were the following: Mr. and Mrs. C. C Armstrong, Montreal, Quebec; Miss Susan MacQueen, Pictou, N.S.; Miss Phyllis L. Ross, Pictou, N. S.; Mr. and Mrs. Garrett Forbes, of Chester, N.S.; L. E. Pierce, Moncton, N.B.; Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Hall, Saint John, N.B.; Mrs. D. J. MacLeod, Stanley; Mrs. F. Bell, Stanley; Miss M. L. Robertson, Montreal; Mrs. Julian C. Jaynes, Boston, Mass.

The tea which was held in Malpeque on Tuesday afternoon, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid of the United Church, was a grand success, both socially and financially. A large number from Charlottetown, Summerside, and all parts of the nearby communities were present, and all did ample justice to the many dainty eats supplied by the ladies of this congregation. A most substantial sum was realized.

The schools in Darnley and Sea View re-opened on Tuesday for another year's studies. Miss Vera Brander is the new teacher in Sea View school and Mr. James R. Murphy is principal of Darnley school, with Miss Gillian McLeod as assistant. We trust they may all have a successful year.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Smith, of Montreal, are spending their holidays the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Coulson, Sea View.

The pupils of Darnley school held their annal picnic on Tuesday afternoon at Darnley beach. There was a large attendance of pupils and their parents. The afternoon was pleasantly spent in games and bathing till the lunch hour, when all gathered round a bountiful repast. A most pleasant afternoon was enjoyed by all.

Mr. Edwin Donald and Master Leigh Donald spent a pleasant visit recently with friends in Alberton.

Mr. Donald Buntain has returned to his home in Clifton, after spending a few days pleasantly in Sea View, the guest of his aunt, Mrs. Fred W. Donald.

Miss Jennie Clark, R.N., with a party of girl friends from Kensington, have been spending the past week at Sea View beach in Mr. Wilson Adams' cottage.

Mrs. John A. Coulson was a recent visitor to Wellington, visiting her father, Mr. Barlow, who has been seriously ill. Many friends trust to hear of a speedy recovery from his illness.

Many friends were indeed grieved to learn of the sudden passing of Mr. Hammond Toombs, Kensington. Kind sympathy is extended to his sorrowing widow and all other friends in their sad bereavement.

Jersey and Tweeds

NEW YORK.—Watch the progress of wool jersey in every phase of women's wear apparel.

Daytime suits and dress; slacks and jackets; hostess gowns and lounging pyjamas; evening ensembles, skirts and blouse and even for afternoon wear, decorated with jet or gold flexible embroidery; black, brown and natural for daytime; turquoise, orange red (frivolity red) and pastels for evening.

Watch for lovely tweeds in the fall fashion picture.

Watch for the longer jacket with the fitted long torso look. Jackets run however from 23 to 28 inches. Light weight woollens are included in the jacket group.

Every little dress has a jacket of its own. This is true, not only of daytime fashions, but evening as well.

Black woollen jackets may have velveteen accents.

The jacket costumes are certain to go over big! Jackets are young.

Watch for the colors that will come after the mass of black is over the dam.

Watch for the wool hats to come. The fabric hat is here, and since hats are to be smaller, jersey-like drapeable materials will lend themselves to new wrapped turbans, Oriental in their treatment.

Watch for new knitted fabrics that look as if they were woven and are crush resistant and easily packed, ideal for practical travel wear.

Watch for the mannish wool tailored jackets worn with slightly flared skirts. We are not going to leap from the gores of a pencil slim skirt. We will take it with a hop, skip and jump.

Watch for the jacket suits that combine black and color.

Watch for the woven jacket dresses with hand knit sections.

Watch for wool gabardine, glen checks and nubbed tweeds.

Watch for the fur coat news—the Persian lamb box coat with a pleated hemline.

Watch for the wool and fur coat.

Watch for the costume suits of wool with fur jacket and wool dress. This is a sensible fashion, comfortable, smart and practical.

Watch for that extra jacket of wool knitted fabrics.

Watch fro long coat ensembles, the newest fashion note.

Watch for that men's wear fleecy overcoating, interpreted in a black, grey herringbone with a fleecy face. A zip-in camel's hair lining makes it capable of double duty, and its fly front, single breasted reefer type is classically masculine.

Watch for a flat collar. If the suit is smart, you won't find it, for collars are all on the "up and up."

Watch for contrasts. They are still important. Sleeve yokes and backs or fronts of bodices in contrasts to dresses. Contrasts of tops in two-piece dresses. Striking contrasts of masses of color.

Fall sweaters, suede jerkins and dresses are all new looking.

Contrasting linings are found in high fashion suits and coats.

PENCIL SILHOUETTE

Watch for the new slim silhouettes, under the terms, pencil and sapling.

Watch for the striped tweeds, newer than plaids.

Watch for the very sophisticated wool monotone, and the trend toward neutrals.

Watch for tangerine, a new orange red called "frivolity papya" and wonderful under a brown fur coat or a duvetyn.

Watch for the matching fabric hat. College girls want them to be collapsible and to fit into pockets.

Don't watch for the pencil silhouette in sports or casual country clothes. These skirts still flare Often the jackets are softly bloused.

Glenurquardt wool plaids are to be found in top coats, as well as tweeds. Watch for them in an easy price range.

Watch for mossy greens, smoky greys, brilliant red and chrickory browns. Match or mix, they are bound to be interesting.

BATHTUB SITE

If it is possible to locate the bath tub anywhere but under the window, it should be done. With the tub under the window, the curtains are constantly being wet, and it is difficult and even dangerous to open the window leaning across the tub.

LONDON, Aug. 14.—(CP) — Military and aviation circles said today that several German parachutes had been found, but would not comment on reports that 11 German parachutists landed in the midlands last night and that seven of them were captured.
