FIERCE FIGHTING IN GRECIAN CIVIL WAR

Rebels Retreat Before Advance Of Loyal Troops

Casualty List On Both Sides Believed To Be Large As Stout Resistance Is Encountered By Government Forces.

(Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press)

ATHENS, March 10.—Blasting its way with full war strength into the mud and snow of rebel territories, the Greek Government advanced along a wide front in Macedonia today but late reports indicated unexpected resistance was being encountered.

Vivid red flashes of government artillery lighted up the Struma River Valley before dawn in the beginning of General George Kondylis' big push and reports tonight said there were answering flashes from mountain artillery brought into play by the rebels.

Under-secretary of war Rodopoulos issued a statement saying victory was assured to the government forces in the now 10-day-old revolt, but cautioned at the same time against undue elation, citing the difficulties encountered. The casualties on both sides, uncounted, were believed to be large.

HOLD UP ADVANCE

The rebels' use of mountain artillery was reported as an attempt to hold up the government advance until they could consolidate their positions in a second line of defence.

The government announced its forces were advancing on Seres, important rebel stronghold, and expected to take it shortly.

An advance wave of loyal soldiers was last reported a mile and a half from the town, relentlessly driving the rebels before them. Two hundred prisoners were taken, including two officers, five field guns and two machine guns, these reports said.

Rebels put up a fierce fight to defend the left bank of the River Struma, but crumbled under a pounding from government artillery and superior forces, it was announced.

OBJECTIVES

The war office said the drive was advancing along a line from Provata to Vanvake, with Demirhissar the final objective of the north and Tsaghezi on the south.

Government troops easily carried the Koumariana bridge en route to Seres, said the communique. The land attack was being carried out in two spearhead movements, by way of the Koumariana and Orliako bridges. General Kondylis and General Panyotokis were commanding.

Military classes from 1920 to 1932 inclusive have been called out in Macedonia by the government to constitute a reserve body.

Government planes were reported to have bombed rebel barracks in the war zone, dropping more than 12 tons of high explosive. Pilots claimed a number of direct hits.

Apparently there was heavy damage and many deaths.

The air squadron reported sinking an oil tanker apparently headink toward the rebel fleet with fuel.

PRELIMINARY BOMBARDMENT

Before dawn government artillery began its preliminary bombardment of rebel positions in the Struma area. The troops, after huddling all night in meagre shelters near the river stepped forth and began the push which Gen. Kondylis hopes will put teeth into his ultimatum of last week, "surrender or be crushed!"

In the early phase of the day's battle, said accounts reaching here, the rebels stood their ground and fought bravely but later weakened rapidly.

John Metaxas, acting Minister of War, declared the back of the revolution had been broken.

"Venizelos (Eleutherios Venizelos, former Premier and leader of the revolution) is already beaten," said Metaxas. "Wireless messages we have intercepted show he himself has grasped the fact the game he tried to play is immediately lost."

Severely Burned By Playmates

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)

BROCKTON, Mass., March 10—Hospital authorities said tonight that Edward Smith, nine, who was severely burned Saturday when a fire, started by playmates, reached a tree to which he had been tied, was in "a very serious condition."

Police said they would take no action against Edwards's playmates who tied him to the tree as there was no doubt the mishap was the result of child's play.

Edward was bound during a game of "cowboy and indians." A brush fire was started around the tree. It soon set fire to the rope around the boy's neck and caused the burns.

SHIPPING DELAYED BY STORMS

Danish Freighter Has Close Call — Two Passengers Injured On C. P. R. Liner.

HALIFAX, March 16—"If we had been carrying a full cargo we would have gone to the bottom, sure," declared Captain K. S. Olsen today as he brought the storm-battered Danish freighter Botnia into port here to replenish her fuel supplies.

Bound for Saint John with 1,628 tons of coal, the Botnia was 26 days out of Port Talbot, Wales, when she reached the Nova Scotia coast and her bunkers were so low she was unable to proceed to the New Brunswick port.

Blocked By Heavy Ice

Captain Olsen said he had tried to get into Louisburg for bunkers but heavy ice along the Cape Breton coast had forced him to make for Halifax. He will clear for Saint John tomorrow.

Continuous gales and heavy seas lashed the freighter nearly the whole voyage but she came through with only slight damage.

Other vessels reaching port over the week-end were delayed by storms on the Atlantic.

The big Canadian Pacific liner Duchess of Bedford arrived Saturday reporting two women injured as she bucked a series of gales. Her ankle broken in a fall on the icy deck, Mrs. E. M. Fisher, bound for Burnaye Lodge, Invermore, B. C., was taken to hospital here. Another woman, whose name was withheld had suffered a broken arm in a fall to the floor of her cabin.

Two Weeks Overdue

The Danish collier Frode, two weeks overdue from Immingham, put into Halifax badly battered and with news that another delayed freighter, the P. Madsen, had been partly disabled on a voyage out from the United Kingdom.

After sailing slowly through heavy seas, the Frode ran into an 80-mile hurricane on March 25. One lifeboat was smashed to matchwood; several thick glass ports were broken, and railing beneath the bridge was twisted and torn.

Off Nova Scotia she picked up a wireless message from the Madsen saying her engines were partly disabled but she was not in need of assistance and hoped to reach Halifax Tuesday under her own power.

FIGHTING BREAKS OUT IN HAVANA

Residents Terror Stricken As General Revolutionary Strike Threatened.

(By Edmund A. Chester, Associated Press Foreign Staff)
(A. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)

HAVANA, March 10—Bombs began exploding again in the streets of Havana this afternoon and the bullet-riddled bodies of a radical student and a relative were flung into a fashonable residence street in a repetition of last night's wild outbreak which left four dead and eight wounded in the Cuban capital.

The island appeared to be dangerously close to a general revolutionary strike as union after union answered the central committee's call for a general walkout before or at midnight tonight.

Railroad Workers Strike

The last and most important union to join the strikers was that of railroad workers on the main lines between Havana and Santiago, who quit this afternoon.

The bombers started their work early. There was a terrific explosion at 4:40 p. m. a block from the office of the Associated Press and another five minutes later. Both bombs exploded in a cafe, without injuring anybody.

The bodies of two men, Armando Fieto, and his father-in-law, Miguel Roque Fraga, were found lying in a street in the Miramer section near the home of United States ambassador Jefferson Caffery. Fieto was a member of the students' strike committee.

Shooting Breaks Out

At five o'clock another bomb exploded, after which shooting broke out in midtown Havana.

Last night's outbreak was the wildest since the November, 1933, revolution and residents remained terror stricken all day. Gay Havana became gray Havana under the state of siege which prohibited the regular Sunday carnival, parades and similar festivities.

Mr. McTurk, his daughter, Helen, aged seven, and his niece, Miss Catherine Hood, were rushed to the hospital.

LEGISLATION WILL NOT BE DELAYED

Cabinet Ministers Will Promote Reform Legislation In House.

Conservative Subsidy Record Contrasted With Big Liberal "Goose-eggs"

Opposition Members In Poor Position To Criticise White Commission's Recognition Of Island Claims To The Extent Of $3,000,000, Says Premier MacMillan, Who Reviews Barren Liberal Record In Trenchant Speech On Draft Address

Liberal expectations of a subsidy settlement under Liberal rule, as contrasted with Liberal criticism of the increase of 150 per cent over the Duncan interim payments obtained by the MacMillan Government from the White Commission, were contrasted strikingly in the Legislature last week by Premier W. J. P. MacMillan. The Premier quoted from the Patriot of March 30, 1929, the following statement made in the House by the Hon. A. C. Saunders, Liberal Premier:

"We are now getting $125,000. That is a temporary measure under the Duncan Commission. IT IS POSSIBLE THAT IT MAY BE REDUCED but I don't think that it will be. It is only a temporary arrangement and I hope we will get more. I CANNOT GUARANTEE ANYTHING IN THAT LINE, but we have this assurance that if we have any merits we have the hope of going to Ottawa and placing the claims before experts and they will doubtless present their report to the Government."

The statement elicited loud laughter from Conservative benches and "prolonged silence" from the Opposition, whose leader, Mr. W. M. Lea, had just been complaining that the recommendation for an increase of $150,000 annually over the interim Duncan award was much less than he had expected the MacMillan Government to obtain.

"We do not say that we are satisfied from a final settlement standpoint," said the Premier. "We do not accept it as such. But I have quoted the attitude of Ex-Premier Saunders to show the opinion he entertained about our prospects for any subsidy increase, back in 1929. And that is the period that my hon. friends boast about as being the most prosperous in Canada's history."

The Premier challenged the alleged "prosperity" at that time, when the balance of trade was heavily against this country and the stock market was crashing; but he pointed out that on the argument of the Liberal members, the Dominion Government could have afforded to grant a greater subsidy increase then than now. The Western Provinces, he added, had succeeded in getting their claims settled in those years.

Quotes Kingston Misstatement

On introducing the subject of subsidy claims the Premier first quoted from a Patriot report of Nov. 16, 1934, attributing to Mr. Lea the statement, at a Liberal meeting at Kingston, that "the local Government had done nothing until now on the eve of the election, they are endeavoring to have the recommendations of the Duncan Commission implemented." This statement the Premier challenged as incorrect. It was true that early in its administration the Government found it necessary to deal first with pressing problems, but it had not ignored our subsidy claims as on several occasions the matter had been urged, both on visits to Ottawa and at conferences with other Maritime Premiers. But even if the Opposition leader's statement had been true, the Premier said, the Conservative record would compare favorably with that of the Liberals. During the days of the Bell Government and the Saunders-Lea Regime, our claims were just as important as they are today; and what was done to obtain recognition of them? Simply nothing.

Mr. McIntyre said a statement had previously been made that nothing had been done in the first two years of Conservative rule because they could not get the co-operation of the other provinces.

Premier MacMillan: "In any case we have made the effort, and we have obtained the result."

Mr. T. A. Campbell: "Final result?"

Not Final

Premier MacMillan: "Not the final result. I suppose my hon. friend would like to go back to 1907 when Sir Wilfrid Laurier wanted to insert in the agreement that the adjustment made at that time would be final and unalterable. I do not take that stand, and I perfectly agree with my hon. friends, the Premiers of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, and say that this is not final; because we do not consider we have received enough. We have done some fighting and have made some progress; we have got payment on account to the extent of $3,000,000, but we do not accept it as final payment.

Mr. T. A. Campbell: "If my hon. friend doesn't accept it as final, he hasn't got it. That was the Commission's finding.

Premier MacMillan: "We will take it all right, but not as a final settlement. The representative of the Maritime Provinces on the Commission, the Hon. J. A. Mathieson, Chief Justice of this Province, has expressed the ideas of the three Maritime Premiers that this is not a final and unalterable settlement."

"We have heard a great deal about subsidy claims in the last thirty years," the Premier said, "but I do not think it can be denied that there is no comparison between the records of the two parties on this subject. The sum total of Liberal efforts has been Nill—a great big Negative, while the record of the Conservative party begins with the able presentation which Chief Justice Mathieson, as Premier of this Province, made in 1912. On that occasion he obtained $100,000 of annual revenue increase from Ottawa Let hon. members figure that up for twenty-three years, with interest, and they will find it represents well over $3,000,000."

Fire Wipes Out Family In Lonely Ontario Settlement

(C. P. By Guardian's Special Wire)

GALETTA, Ont., March 10. — A woman and her three children were burned to death late Saturday night in their home at Kingdom Mines, lonely village settlement five miles from here, during the absence of the woman's husband who works in the Kirkland Lake mining fields.

The dead: Mrs. Gideon Mason, 28-year-old native of Birmingham, England; Ernest, a son, 12; Arnold, a son, 10; Joyce, a daughter, one.

Occupants of the house, a two-storey light wooden structure, apparently were either trapped by the flames which spread with great rapidity or suffocated by dense smoke which frustrated desperate rescue attempts by neighbors.

Mrs. Larry Proulx, a neighbor, noticed flames shooting from the roof of the Mason home and summoned help. Larry and Joseph Proulx made vigorous efforts to reach the imprisoned family, battering down the door with their shoulders. The smoke forced them back, however. They made a second attempt to enter the building by smashing a second-storey window only to be forced back again. Soon afterwards the roof fell burying the occupants in flaming debris.

Bodies of the quartette were recovered early today huddled in a corner of the ruins and an inquest was ordered tomorrow by Dr. J. E. Craig, Ottawa coroner. R. E. Vear, manager of Kingdom Mines from which lead had been worked until two years ago, notified police. The Mason's had lived in the neighborhood three years.
