SUNDAY EXCURSIONS.

In New Brunswick there is a law against Sunday excursions by rail and steamer, but since, controversy has arisen as to what is the strict meaning of the law. It appears that a local yacht club was making its annual cruise on the St. John river, and the members stopped over Sunday at Gagetown, and having a chaplain with them, it was announced that he would on Sunday conduct an open air service for their benefit. Thereupon a steamer from St. John took a party of excursionists to Gagetown on Sunday on the pretext of attending the open air service.

At another point on the St. John River not far from Gagetown a camp meeting has been held annually for some years past, and excursions by steamers have been also made on Sunday to attend this camp meeting. Rev. Dr. Wilson well known throughout the Maritime Provinces, acting on behalf of the Evangelical Alliance, has written a public letter to Attorney General White in regard to the first of these excursions, the gist of which is the inquiry whether it is lawful? Dr. Wilson thinks, and we agree with him, that it is absurd to think that the people who sailed some thirty miles and return did so for the purpose of having a sermon from the chaplain of a yacht club.

In his reply to Dr. Wilson, the Attorney General of New Brunswick thinks the excursion to Gagetown, where the yacht club chaplain preached, was not strictly a lawful excursion, within the meaning of the statute. But he points out that neither Dr. Wilson, nor the Evangelical Alliance has made any objection to the Sunday excursions over the same route, to the Camp Meeting above referred to.

The devil's frequent defence for an act of wrong doing is, not that the act is right, but that it is no worse than something else that is always tolerated.

In speaking of the many uses of electricity an exchange says:—
"Electricity is now employed for the purpose of removing the wool from sheep which have been slaughtered. Hitherto the skin has by means of chemicals been put in such a condition that the wool can be pulled off by hand. With the new process the wool is removed by passing a knife east-dred-hot by electricity along the surface of the skin. By this means it is estimated that a girl with a few ours' practice can shear from eight to a dozen skins per hour, the saving in the cost of removing the wool being obvious."

A large amount of the copper produced in the United States is now refined by electricity and is known as electrolytic copper. The ore is ground and cast into pigs, which are hung in tanks filled with a solution consisting principally of copper sulphate. A heavy electric current at low pressure is passed through the tanks, dissolving the copper pigs and transferring the metal through the solution to sheets of copper hanging in the tanks. During the process, impure matter which was in the pigs sinks to the bottom of the tanks. This refuse, it is said, is valued at about $2,000 a ton, as it contains gold and silver enough to pay the whole cost of the plant in some instances.

Dr. Robertson, Supt. of Presbyterian Missions, in a letter to the Record speaks of the Normans as follows:

"Whether they practice their peculiar views or not they do not injure them—but rather justify them publicly—and a steady stream of so-called apostles, prophets and priests, from Utah and Montana do their utmost to keep them obedient to the faith. With the increase in numbers has come boldness, and they have sent out about twenty missionaries to different parts to propagate and defend their views. By many the tyranny of the system is being felt, and they are becoming restless. The schools conducted among them, fuller intercourse with others, the preaching the gospel within their reach, and the restrictions of the law, it is felt, will effect a change. A belief contrary to modern thought and tendency, contrary to the spirit and letter of the New Testament placed under the ban of the law, is sure to decay and become an unpleasant memory."
