Pope Pius Eleventh Crowned Yesterday

Basilica of St. Peters Thronged During Impressive Ceremony. Pope Blessed the Outside Cheering Gathering.

(Special to The Guardian.)

ROME, Feb 13—Pius XI was crowned Pope at the Basilica St. Peters yesterday amid scenes of pomp and enthusiasm and the presence of Princes, Dignitaries of the Church. Diplomatic Representatives of foreign countries, members of the Roman aristocracy, the vast assemblage filling the great structure to its very doors.

The ancient custom was carried out with impressive ceremonies and the newly elected Pontiff now occupies the throne of the first Pope reported crowned. Leo III who resigned from 795 to 816. Good will and sincerity for the Pope were the dominant emotions prevailing in Rome as the new spiritual leader was receiving the triple crown with the magnificent ceremony of the Roman Catholic church, but with a tinge of the matter of fact business like mannner obtaining in the world today. Silver bugles of the sixteenth century announced the coronation and the red robed aged Cardinals mingling with the uniform of Swiss Guards recalled the middle ages at the crush of spectators at the heavy bronze gates of the formerly forbidding Vatican revealed that something had changed in Rome.

Pius XI again blessed the crowds from the outer balcony of St Peter's, this time nearly 200,000 people crying "long live the Pope," and waving handkerchiefs many of them multicolored, and admission tickets to the Vatican which had failed to find them room inside the great church. It had been officially announced that, "owing to the cold weather," the Pope would not bless the crowds from the outer balcony, but such was the insistence and warmth of the cheers, lasting three quarters of an hour, that the Pontiff finally decided he must answer the call of his children.

Previous to this, the sixty thousand gathered within the edifice, rising spontaneously, had cheered the Holy Father as Cardinal Lega placed upon the Pope's head the tiara, emblem of supreme sovereignty.

The cheers continued for some time that the Pope was compelled to make signs with his hands, as if seeking silence, in order that the ceremony might continue. Old Romans, who had witnessed the coronation of several Popes, say that the enthusiastic reception accorded the present Pope has never been equalled in their memory.

Good-will, sincerity and hope prevailing in Rome as the new spiritual leader was receiving the triple crown with the magnificent ceremony of the Roman Catholic church, but with a tinge of the matter of fact and business-like manner obtaining in the world today. Silver bugles of the sixteenth century announced the coronation, and the red robes of the aged Cardinals, mingling with the uniform of the Swiss Guards, recalled the middle ages, but the crush of spectators at the heavy bronze gates of a formerly forbidding Vatican revealed that something was changed in Rome.

Sixty thousand persons were packed in the noble and impressive Basilica of St. Peter's, silent and reverential with one thought prevading all—that the saintly old man within the Vatican walls may yet enjoy that which was the recreation of young Ratti of Desio—climbing the Alpine Mountains of his native land. Today, he is a prisoner within the Vatican walls, but tomorrow, the hope is freely expressed, he may be free to mingle among the crowds of the people he loves so well.

Standing upon the throne, directly under the cupola of St. Peter's Michael Angelo's masterpiece, Pius XI, with head adorned with tiara, bestowed the blessing upon those below, in which many races and many creeds mingled. The Grecorian Psalms, and Hymns of joy rendered by the choir, were taken up by the assemblage in Latin, in which various accents, Anglo-Saxon, German, French and Scandinavion were noticeable.

Seated on the Papal chair, wearing a great white cape, embroidered with and precious mitre, the newly-elected Pope blessed the worshippers who lined the corridors of the Vatican and the entrance to St. Peter's. Surrounding the chair, with drawn swords were Siss Guards, officers of the noble guard and officials of the Pontifical Court with two huge Swiss Guards, closed the procession.

The crush inside the Basilica was terrific, many women fainting.

Pope Nervous.

The Pope appeared pale, ill at ease and nervous as he emerged from the chapel of Holy Sacrament, seated high in the Pontifical chair. But as the ceremony proceeded, his face flused, beads of perspiration standing out on his forehead, when a few minutes after mid-day, Cardinal Lega, in the absence of Cardinal Bisletti, dean of the Cardinal deacons, placed the marvelous jeweled tiara on the Pontiff's head.

Reaching the altar, the Pope intoned "Gloria in excelsis," in loud, clear voice; all trace of emotion had disappeared.

One of the assisting Cardinals removed the mitre from the head of the Pontiff and placed around his head the pallium—a consecrated vestment in the form of a scarf of white wool, embroidered with purple crosses. The pallium was next fastened to a staff with three large pins, surmounted with precious stones. The dean kissed the Pope on the cheek, as did also the other two Cardinals. Cardinal Lega placed the tiara on the head of the Pontiff and Cardinal Merry Del Val as arch-priest, greeted him and welcomed the new Pontiff into the Catholic city's supreme church. Then headed by Vanutelli and in order of seniority, the Cardinals mounted the throne and kissed the Pope hand; following them came the patriarchs, archbishops and bishops.

The special litany for the Pope was sung, in which the reply to the invocation of the name of every saint, instead of being "ore pro nobis" is "tu illum adjuva," meaning "thou assist him." This was joined in by thousands.

Thus was crowned the 260th successor of St. Peter, and the bugles sounded the announcement to the world that a new Pope reigned in Rome.

The cortege passed through the aisle, under the flagstone which Benedict XV. is lying, proceeding to the tomb, whene the new Pontiff pledged himself to continue pursuits of the ideals recognized by the dead Pontiff. The cortege also proceeded to the sepulchre of the first Pope. The Pontiff recited the prayer "exaud domine," to which all responded, and after striking the tomb of St. Peter three sharp blows with a small stick covered with red velvet, returned to the Vatican.

Murderous Attack On Ulster "Specials"

BELFAST Feb. 12.—Four Ulster special constables were shot to death at the railway station at Clones last Saturday afternoon. Eight others were wounded and six are missing. Matthew Fitzpatrick, leader of the Sinn Feiners, was shot dead.

The specials, on their way to Enniskillen, were waiting at Clones for the arrival of a train from Belfast to convey them to their destination. The train had entered the station and some of the specials were in the act of getting into the carriages when a party of Irish Republican Army men, with rifles and machine guns came on the platform.

Opened Fire.

They immediately opened fire on the specials with their rifles and machine guns, and four of the constables were shot dead, one of them having his head blown off. Some of the others were wounded, some were taken prisoner, and the remainder escaped. The Republic army men then fled. Taken absolutely unawares, the specials had no time to fire back at the attacking party.

Clones is in that part fo Ulster which is included in the Free State territory. It is very near the border. Belfast received its first intimation of the tragedy through a message to the station master at the Great Northern terminus, to the effect: "Send no more troops, regular police or specials by train."

Then followed the news of the shooting and the casualty list. The Belfast police force declare the specials were lined against a wall and mowed down. Sir James Craig, Premier of Ulster, has addressed an urgent remonstrance to Premier Lloyd George, Winston Churchill, and Viscount Fitzalan, in which immediate action is demand.

Versions of Affray.

There are many versions of the affray current, but inquiries among the civilian passengers on the train from which the special constables alighted, showed that the constables had a twenty minute wait on the platform for the Dublin train, during which time they paraded quietly up dud down the platform, on which there were many civilians. There was no sign of any impending attack. When the Dublin train arrived and the constables moved toward it, however, firing began from two machine guns, posted on a wooden bridge spanning the railway track, and then from a motor on the station premises. A large body of armed men rushed upon the train and, after some revolver firing, ordered the frightened civilian passengers, who were cowering on the floors of the coaches and under the seats, to get out. All the occupants of the train were then marched to the station platform and drawn up in two bodies—civilians on one side and the special constables on the other. Everyone was searched for arms. The civilians were ordered back into the train, while the unwounded constables were taken away to an unknown destination.

Meanwhile the dead and wounded who fell at the first onslaught, had been laid in rows on the platform. Only a few of the special constables had time to draw their revolvers before they were overpowered.

In the exchange of shots, Fitzpatrick, who apparently was in command of the attacking party, was shot dead. A peculiar feature of the affray is that a couple of regular Royal Irish Constabulary men on the train, who were unarmed, were allowed to proceed unmolested with the civilians.

It is estimated that about 100 men participated in the attack.

Military Forces Available

BELFAST, Feb. 12.—Lieut.-Col. Spender, secretary to the Ulster Cabinet has issued the following statement:

"Late tonight Sir James Craig received a telegram from the British Government saying that large additional military forces are available for Ulster. This will ensure that Enniskillen and other important centres will be amply provided for.

"The message was more reassuring on the general situation and shows that the British Government fully realizes the gravity of the present stage of affairs and are taking strong steps."

First Meeting of New City Council

Usual Business Despatched and Brief Addresses Made by His Worship, Councillors and Others.

The first regular meeting of the new City Council was held last night with His Worship Mayor Jenkins in the chair and all the Councillors present, occupying their seats in the following order (from left to right of the chair): Couns. Rattray, Yeo, McLeod, Smith, Connors, Pierce, Prowse and Moran.

The annual reports of the several departments of the city government for the past year was laid in book form before the Council.

After the reading of the proclamation and the proceedings of the city election His Worship delivered the following address:

MAYORS ADDRESS

It gives me very much pleasure to extend congratulations of each member of this Council, elected by the people to sit at the Board and transact the business of the City during the next two years. You have plenty of work before you, but I am quite sure that you are equal to the task, and that the confidence of the citizens in you will not be misplaced.

Let me say, gentlemen that every endeavor made by you towards the enforcement of laws on our statute books, and towards making this City of ours more prosperous, healthful and beautiful, shall receive my approbation and support. Let me further say that, as members of the Council, we should endeavor to bring about the closest co-operation between this City and all other parts of our Province. Anything that will help our Province will help Charlottetown, therefore, let us be broad and tolerant in spirit, and strive in every possible way to develop a kindly feeling between our City and other towns and villages of this Province, remembering at the same time that our existence depends largely upon the state of the farming and fishing communities in the Province in which we live and so I say, let us foster any movement for closer co-operation between City and country.

During the next two years many matters of business will engage your attention. I have this word to say, it is your duty to see that the inerests of the citizens are fully protected in every way. They depend upon you, gentlemen. Let the heads of departments watch very carefully the expenditures and see that a dollar in value is received for every dollar expended; not that you should be piggardly, but cautious and careful. We have, at the present time, quite a lot of unemployment in our midst, though not so great as in some of the other Provinces. It is your duty, therefore, to look into this situation, and endeavor to remedy it as far as lies in your power.

The representatives of the press will, no doubt, be here to report the proceedings of your meetings. We welcome them. Everything in connection with the business of the City must bear the light of day, and we shall be pleased to furnish the newspapers with all information concerning the affairs of the City.

In closing, let me say, gentlemen, I believe we have one of the finest little cities to be found anywhere, let us strive in every way to improve it to make its citizens more contented and happy, to make our City one that we shall be proud of, and let us boost it in every possible way. I thank you.

The first matter of business was the carrying of the motion for the appointment of the standing committees. (These have already appeared in the press, but the Public Property Committee should have read: Couns. Yeo, Smith and Connors.)

The Clerk was instructed to acquaint the Chairman of the various committees in their duties.

After the passing of unpaid bills the following communications were read:—a request from the secretary of the School Board for the $5,000 payment on account in the estimates; solicitation of orders from a New Brunswick flint gravel company; a petition, to have a new street between Grigbar and School Streets named Hillcrest Street, and a quotation of prices from a fire hose company. These were referred to the various committees for attention.

A petition from the Chemical Car and Hose Company, naming Mr. A. E. Heartz for the captaincy made vacant by the promotion of Capt. A. N. Large was read and the request on motion unanimously agreed to.

Letters petitioning the Council to take adavntage of the Federal Housing Scheme were read from the following citizens: (1) Mr. H. R. Stewart, Secretary of G. W. V. A. (2) Mr. A. M. Simpson, (3) Messrs. H. A. Stewart, J. A. Allen, J. A. Brady, J. T. Robison, W. B. Bruce, R. S. Heustis, W. R. LePage, M. Calder, P. A. Farquharson, E. W. Farquharson, Geo. Walker, P. W. Turner, G. E. Sherren, F. B. Conrad, J. M. Gills, J. O. Hyndman, G. R. Beer, G. C. Taylor, W. E. Cotton, G. C. Acorn, H. M. Simpson, W. B. LePage, M. Ross, Llyod Crockett, W. R. Tinney, B. T. Tinney, and (4) W. G. Hogg. On motion of Coun. Moran seconded by Coun. Pierce a committee consisting of Couns. Yeo, Prowse and Smith was appointed to take up this proposition and report back to the Council as soon as possible.

The petition of the fire department for a new house alarm system, left over from the last meeting of the old Council, came up for discussion. This system the firemen point out has their entire approval as it will instantaneously give the alarm to every house and there can be no danger of its getting out of order. A guarantee of twenty-five years makes it a permanent thing and it cannot be tampered with by outside parties as all calls will be rung from either the head telephone office or the fire station. Considering the remarkably low cost of copper wire at the present time and the extremely faulty alarm system now in use the money required for its installation would seem to be very wisely expended.

Coun. Rattray for the benefit of the new councillors explained that this matter was taken up by a committee previously appointed to look into it. Mr. Grant of the Telephone office gave figures considerably lower and on this ground, and as it was decided to leave Council, it was decided to leave the matter over. His suggestion that it be handed to the fire committee was adopted.

On motion of Couns. Moran and Rattray, Sgt. Peter Bradley was appointed sanitary officer for the ensuing year.

On motion of Coun. Yeo and Rattray the following auditors were appointed: Messrs R. P. Forsythe and Thos. McMillan.

Dr. Croken in submitting his report of meat and milk inspection stated that two portions of a carcas had been condemned in January and one carcas in February. He submitted names of those supplying milk and butter fat tests and the results.

Coun. Yeo believed that the report should be published in detail in the press as citizens ought to know what they are getting in milk. Good milk ought to contain 4 percent butter fat at least but the bye-law gives every one a fair chance in allowing 3.5 to pass. His Worship suggested that the milk vendors be given warning before publication of the report. Coun. Smith maintained that the vendors of inferior quality of milk give no warning to the public and they should be meted out the same treatment.

On motion it was decided to call tenders for additional clothing for the Police Department.

At the conclusion of the business of the meeting brief addresses were delivered by all the councillors in turn and by Mr. McKenna and Dr. McMillan. Adjournment was then made on invitation to His Worship's office where "smokes" and light refreshments were passed out and the evening concluded in a social manner.

British Troops Held in Ireland Situation Acute

(Special to The Guardian.)

DUBLIN, Feb. 13.— Sailings of British troops from Ireland to England, were suspended today. It was unofficially stated that this halt in evacuation of Ireland by the British army was due to the situation on the Ulster border.

LONDON, Feb. 13.— The situation in Ireland which had seemed to be improving under the apparent efforts of Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins to obtain the release of the kidnapped Ulstermen has become acutely dangerous as the result of the Clones affray on Saturday.

Great Crowd Is Addressed by 'Pres.' De Valera

DUBLIN, Feb. 12. — Introduced by Count Plunkett as "President of the Irish Republic," Eamonn De Valera today opened his campaign against the Provisional Government with a great demonstration in O'Connel street. Six resolutions were proposed during the meeting outlining the attitude of the Republicans, and stating that the British crown is an alien crown; and that Ireland is no part of the British Empire; that the articles of the London agreement failed to represent the true desires of the Irish people; that the treaty was obtained under duress; and that the Dail Eireann is not competent to give it legal sanction and, therefore, it is null and void.

Republic Forf Monarchy

Mr. De Valera said the articles of the treaty bound the Irish people to exchange their Republic for a Monarchy, and asked if the people wanted as their monarch "King George of England," to which there were replies of "No, no," Ireland' he said, was to be broken up into two warring states in order that England, which was supposed to evacuate the country, might have the six Northern counties to use.

His own policy, he said, was to allow the ports of Ulster, which, by plebiscite or district council votes asked for it, to have authority or a subordinate Parliament.

The resolutions were all adopted without any apparent opposition.

Spook Hunters Hear Uncanny Footfalls

HALIFAX, Feb 13—Ghostly rappings, uncanny footfalls and mysterious slappings troubled Detective Peaculie Carroll, the Pictou reporter and Harold Whidden when at midnight, their second night in the house of mystery at Caledonia Mills in wilds of Antigonish County Nova Scotia, they sought their cots. They were lying close together for company and Alex McDonald, the owner of the house was recumbent at the other side of the room. Outside the night was still and the moon made the landscape bright as day. A light was turned half-mast on a nearby table. Presently they heard sounds of rappings at the side of the house, noises as of something walking overhead. These were repeated and the investigators lay still awaiting the appearance of the spooks. Then the scribe felt a slap on his arm and asked the detective what he was doing. The detective declared he had not moved. Presently Carrol felt a slap and he told the scribe to keep still but Whidden declared, he had not moved.

The mysterious slaps were repeated, and detective and scribe arose and stirred up MacDonald, who declared he had been asleep. The spook hunters spent the rest of the night huddled in front of a roaring fire, but were not troubled further by uncanny happenings.

This was the story the Halifax Herald received today, its courier between the house of mystery and the nearest telegraph office having been delayed by snow drifts. The reporter adds that during the previous day Mr. MacDonald walked a mile or so to his wife's new residence and brought back for the adventurers some home cooking but no home brew.

Anxiety Concerning Fate of Island Doctor

Feared Dr. George C. Read of Kelso, B. C., Son of Capt. Joseph Read, Was Burned to Death or Drowned While Crossing to Ainsworth in Boat.

NELSON, B. C. Feb 13—The charred wreckage from the Launch, Ella Hoppin in which Dr. George C. Read, Kelso, B.C. left that city for Ainsworth, on Friday afternoon last, was found Sunday washed ashore on both sides of the Kootenay Lake. It is believed there was an explosion aboard the launch and Dr Read was burned to death or drowned. He was a Prince Edward Islander, aged about 40 and was a son of the late Capt. Joseph Read Federal member for Prince County. He was educated at McGill University.

The above telegram will be read with keenest anxiety by the many friends of Dr. George C. Read. While there is little room for hope, yet hope will persist for some days at least or until definite evidence of death is forthcoming. That a gasoline explosion occurred seems certain from the condition in which the wreck of the boat was found. That the doctor could escape by swimming in a wintry lake would depend upon the distance from the shore and this is possible. Up to yesterday evening his relatives here had received no word, from which it is inferred that search is being made. In the meantime the deepest sympathy of all will go out to his only brother, Captain John L. Read of the Car-Ferry and the other relatives here, including his uncle and namesake, Dr. George Carruthers of this city. Dr. Read was born December 24, 1880. His wife was formerly Miss Janie Yeo, daughter of Mr. John E. Yeo of Northam. Two children were born to them.

LATER: A telegram was received last night by Captain John L. Read from the missing man's wife, confirming the above dispatch and adding that no trace of the doctor had been discovered.

Reunion Last Night Of 11th Amun. Col.

The annual re-union of the 11th Brigade Ammunition Column took place at the Armouries last evening, about twenty former members of the Column being present.

The 11th Ammunition Column was formed on February 1st, 1916, by Capt. D. A. MacKinnon at Halifax. About seventy Islanders enlisted and went overseas, on the first of April, but the Column was broken up on its arrival in England. After this the different members were distributed among the field artillery batteries of the 9th and 10th Brigades. They went to France in July, 1916 and while there distinguished themselves in various engagements, including Ypres, the Somme, Vimy Ridge, Hill 70, Pachendaele and the battles of Amiens, Arras, Drocourt-Queant Cambria and the final battles from Valencenes to Mons. Of the 160 men to reach France, ten were killed and thirty wounded; and all distinguished themselves in the various units in which they were placed.

Last evening the members present in Charlottetown and some from the country met and fought their battles over again. A splendid programme was rendered by the Casino Orchestra assisted by Messrs. Jos. Doyle, Frank MacDonald and others. Tributes were paid to the memory of the boys who have gone to the Great Beyond. It was voted to have the re-union an annual affair and a committee consisting of hon. president Col. D.A MacKinnon; president, Capt. R. C. Chandler; secretary, M. Bagnall, and executive, J. McAleer, E. Trainor and W. Worth were appointed to take charge of future gatherings. Letters of regret for inability to attend were read from comrades abroad and throughout the Island. The gathering was one of the most successful of its kind held here. Everyone present enjoyed it very much and made strong resolutions to be present next year.

Clever Invention for Motor Engines Patented By Charlottetown Man

Mr. Herbert F. Vanlderstine, machinist, of the P. E. Island Railway, son of Robert Vanlderstine, City Collector, has patented a remarkably clever devise of an intensifier for a spark plug, which reduces the carbon, works efficiently on even a broken plug and is particularly adapted to a car driven by beginners not well acquainted with the motor. The patent which was applied for Dec. 15th. 1920, was granted on Jan. 31st, 1922, and was put through by Mr. J. E. Wyatt, through the Fetherstonhaugh Company, Ottawa.

Already a company from Beamsville, Ont., has applied to take the patent over, but it is Mr. Vanlderstine's intention to form it possible, a local company and manufacture the new plug on the Island.

This is the first successful invention on combustion engines perfected in this province and Mr. Vanlderstine is to be congratulated for his achievement. It is to be hoped that he will meet with further success in its manufacture.

The patent is granted for 18 years and he has already a further improvement upon which he is working. The new plug is already working successfully on the Chemical engine at Moncton.
