Victoria And Vicinity

Mr. Ivan Howatt has returned to Moncton, N.B., after a brief visit to his home here. Dr. Reid, dentist, has gone to Charlottetown for a few days but will return shortly. Mr. Ken Miller, B.N.S., Summerside, is spending his vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Miller. Owing to ill health, Mr. Hedley Miller has returned home from Nova Scotia where he was engaged in essential war work. Two boys, Charlie Dunstford and Donald MacQuarrie, from Hampton, are answering roll call at the school here, taking Grade X work. Mrs. Anne Lea and charming family, Annabelle and Walter, have returned to Victoria after visiting in Montreal and Moncton, N.B. Mr. Harlow of St. John, N.B., is relieving at the Bank of Nova Scotia, ably assisted by his competent staff, Misses Annie MacDougall and Mabel Watton. Mr. Wallace Stewart is being decorated, now that spring is in the offing, for the summer is his season for exterior painting. Among old friends once again are Carl Boulter and John Knox, who have taken their part-time duties again after having served their country overseas. And by the way, readers like Ellen's Diary. But don't you think Ellen, you should tell us your name? So that those who have been guessing can settle down to "high finance and politics." One of the school teachers, Miss Isabel Inman, has been sick during the week and her duties have been capably performed by Mr. Howard Lord who has returned after serving with the Air Force. The Young People of Tryon United Church enjoyed a skating party at the rink on Wednesday night. Rev. Mr. Jardine was with them and their remarks concerning skating were decidedly complimentary. Mr. David Crosby, who has been visiting in Charlottetown, has been called back to U.S.A. by a telegram which informed him of the death of his brother, who had been serving with the American forces in Italy. The indisposition is regretted of Mrs. Louis Howatt who has been ill for some time. It is gratifying to hear that she is better and will soon be able to resume her usual activities, as she has always been a pillar of help in community affairs. Wednesday her friends learned with regret of the death of Mrs. H. Leard of Tryon, who had passed away after an illness of only three days. She was the widow of Mrs. Harry Clark of Victoria, and to them is extended sincere sympathy. Many skating, skiing and bridge parties were held during the winter months, as well as the public card parties and dances in the city. These were both enjoyable and remunerative. The thanks of Pte. W. E. Dunstford go out to the Junior Red Cross of Hampton for the parcels of supplies and letters which they have sent on active duty overseas. He said, "I love to get them and letters and to have a hope to be home before a fully long. It is good to see Mr. L. D. MacLeese, N.S. and P.E.I. Regiment. His son, Lester, is one of the intermediate hockey players who is helping win renown for the Island team by eliminating the New Brunswick champions. Mr. Harry Clark has been in Charlottetown for a few days enjoying the "Sport of Kings" while he is here. He was born in Dartmouth, N.S., to see the horse races which were held in Charlottetown recently. Thanks to Mr. Barbour, residents are able to enjoy an open road once more and his workers are seizing the opportunity to transport produce where it is sent on its way to speed the victory. It is regrettable to report that Master Ivan Farrey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Harvey, Crapaud, was stricken with appendicitis recently and through the kindness of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Rogerson was taken by automobile immediately to the P. E. I. Hospital for treatment. Due to the efforts of Mr. E. C. Wood, Crapaud, Board of Trade, was formed which takes an active interest in affairs of the day. It is hoped that there will be no misunderstandings but that all will work together for the common good. One of the speakers at next meeting will be Rev. Mr. Jardine of Tryon, who will speak on post-war reconstruction. Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Dunstford have gone to Montreal and Ottawa for a month's vacation. In Montreal will visit Mr. and Mrs. Peter Walker who spent their holidays here. Mr. Walker is associated with the Bank of Nova Scotia there, while Mrs. Walker is a well known artist who painted many of the scenes and was loud in her praise of the island with its unusual vivid coloring. Going to Ottawa they will visit Mr. and Mrs. Norman Grey who both fell in love with this province last summer when Mr. Grey, accompanied by Mrs. Grey, was sent here by the Dept. of Mines and Resources, Ottawa. The weather and good roads combined to make the Carnival in the Rink on March 7th a decided success. The judges were Rev. Mr. Jardine, Tryon; Mr. Meville Bell, Desable; Mrs. Lloyd Rogerson, Crapaud; and Mrs. E. B. Wood, Victoria, and they awarded the prizes to the following: 1st for women—Mrs. Jardine, Tryon; 2nd—Mrs. Ralph Myers, Crapaud; The Gay Nineties. 1st for girls—Jean Myers, Crapaud; Snowflake. 2nd—Ann Dunstford, Victoria; Cissy. 2nd—Elsie Sherran, Victoria; Little Red Riding Hood. 1st for men—Earl Maynard.

CHAPTER II

When Ming reached her office, she plunged into a busy day, as were most of her days. At times, in her work as personnel manager of Alsum's Department Store, she found herself contrasting the bright faces of the new clerks she hired with the weary faces of the old employees. The contrast was depressing. Newcomers embarked on their jobs so hopefully, but all too often, the smile to get ahead or merely to hold their own left its mark on them making them hard and cynical. However Ming was not going to let her own life be affected. She was going to think only of the vacation ahead. Soon, she would leave all worries and responsibilities behind her and devote herself to enjoying life. About noon she received a phone call that surprised her. It was from Dee Burton, one of her old friends but one whom she now rarely saw. Dee, since marrying Chuck Burton, a wealthy broker, had moved in a different social circle. "Hello, Ming darling," Dee said brightly. "Where have you been?" "Dee! How are you? I'm so glad to hear from you—Mildred Myers. "I don't believe it. The way you neglect your friends! Chuck is always asking, 'What's become of Mignon Vanness?'" "Really?" Ming doubted this, but nevertheless felt pleased. "I'm going to invite you to a party. Dinner at everything. Don't dare say no. The way you work, Ming, is ghastly! Careers are all right, but one must have a play-day."

Ruth

"Tomorrow night, you'll come?" "I'd love to. Am I to bring Jack?" "So there's still Jack? But no, don't bring him this time. I've three unattached men coming. It will be a battle, of course, as to which of the three will take you into dinner. You're so devastating!" Ming laughed. "Flatterer!" "I can count on you, then?" "Absolutely! In fact, I'm going to lots of parties from now on. Something wonderful has happened."

"Oh, no! Nothing like that. I'll tell you tomorrow night." "Suppose I send my chauffeur for you about seven?" "That will be fine." "Ming was smiling as she hung up. A girl about to be freed from responsibilities wanted to meet new and interesting people, and she could count on that at Dee's."

"Not if I'm conscious, I won't say, Ming, know what you want? Just a minute." "Ruth went out of the room, to return a minute later with a string of pearls. "How lovely!" exclaimed Ming. "Where did you get them?" "My latest boy friend says it with pearls."

"Sis, could you lend me—" Ruth began, then stopped. "Ming, you look gorgeous! Absolutely irresistible!" Ming laughed. "Thanks honey. Glad you think so, because I'm going to a party at Dee's—or did Maddy tell you? It ought to be a very interesting party, and I'm going to meet some new men."

"Some new—well for heaven's sake, don't you meet new men every day?" "Yes, but they are just business acquaintances. We must usually and part the same way." "Ruth grinned. 'Just wait until I get into the business world! I certainly don't intend to meet men casually! That is, if I like them.' "Then you'll never make a good business woman," Ming declared. "Not if I'm conscious, I won't say, Ming, know what you want? Just a minute."

"Ruth went out of the room, to return a minute later with a string of pearls. "How lovely!" exclaimed Ming. "Where did you get them?" "My latest boy friend says it with pearls." (To Be Continued)
