Why Children are not Admitted to "The Unloved Wife"

The Unloved Wife is an interesting play, original in its settings and situations, full of bright lines and much humor. A note by the author says: "This play having been written, cast engaged and the play staged by a woman and as the subject matter—marriage—is the most vital subject in a woman's life,

MAORI CARVING

Native Art Beautiful and Much Admired

Visitors to the Auckland Museum view with admiration the carving of the Maoris of old. Miss Annie Eidal in Outward Bound. "The black canoe of enormous proportions is carved from stem to stern in very handsome and intricate design, and is a most striking evidence of skilled workmanship."

"It is estimated that they were carved two hundred and fifty years ago. The main piece of this recent discovery is a top or 'hara' (the nearest synonym in English is 'architrave'), which measures eight feet by four. The carving from end to end is most beautiful, and is probably the oldest specimen in New Zealand. The centre is a female figure differing in many respects from those seen in carving at a later period.

MEXICAN PANTHERS EAT EIGHT PERSONS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22.—An account of a feast in which 50 man-eating panthers were interrupted, while devouring the bodies of eight persons, overpowered and slain by them in the forest of Jalisco, Mexico, reached Washington today.

The gruesome feast was broken up by six armed Mexican soldiers who opened fire on the panthers, killing one wounding several and driving the others off into the surrounding forest. Three women and two men were overpowered and either killed on the spot or carried alive to the place of feast.

The six guides stated that they were attracted by the noise made by the beasts, who were fighting with each other to get at the bodies.

THE UNHAPPY CZAR

A dramatic little story that illumines in a flash the strangely unwholesome life that the Czar of Russia had to live in the old days is to be found in James L. Ford's book, "Forty-odd Years in the Literary Shop." Mr. Ford had an intimate acquaintance with Baron de Grimm, whose father had been the tutor of Alexander II. of Russia, and who himself had been an intimate friend of the czar.

From de Grimm Mr. Ford gained an idea of the isolation of an autocrat and the atmosphere of dread, suspicion and uncertainty that surrounds an autocratic court. When the Czar Alexander II sent his son to the Riviera for the sake of his health he received from the young man's attendants only vague reports in regard to his condition, although couriers arrived daily with letters. On one occasion the soldier who brought the post-bag was ushered into the presence of the czar, who after a hasty glance at his correspondence exclaimed: "There is no letter from my son, and it is some days since I have heard from him!"

"But, sire," exclaimed the soldier, "he is no longer able to write!" "Not able to write!" exclaimed the sovereign of all the Russians. "Will nobody ever tell me anything?" And it may be remembered, adds Mr. Ford, that Nicholas II uttered a like despairing cry when the news of the January massacre, which his courtiers had sedulously kept from him, finally reached his ears.

Will Get $187,500 By Apologizing To Her Brother

MUSEGON Mich., Aug. 22.—If she is willing to apologize to her brother, Mrs. Gertrude Linderman, of Gilmore, New York city, will receive $187,500 from the estate of her mother, Mrs. Ella A. Linderman of Whitehall, Mich., under the terms of Mrs. Linderman's will filed here today disposing of an estate of about $750,000.

The brother to whom she must apologize is B. Archie Linderman, a Washington and Chicago clubman and a millionaire. The will brought to light for the first time here a quarrel in the family over the division of stock, patents and other property of the Linderman Machine Company at the time of the death of Alfred Linderman, the father, several years ago.

Mrs. Linderman's will, written several years ago, divided the estate equally among her four children. In 1918 a codicil was filed saying that Mrs. Gilmore was to be cut off from sharing in the estate "if she does not stop the persecutions of her brother after efforts to ruin the family."

This codicil was followed by another providing that Mrs. Gilmore must make a written acknowledgement of her wrong, setting forth that she is satisfied with the division of the property at the time of her father's death. The apology must satisfy her brother, and it does the entire estate is to be divided among the three other children.

FROM THE MONTREAL JOCKEY CLUB, SARATOGA SPRINGS, N. Y., AUGUST, 1922.

Louis Angevine, secretary of the Montreal Jockey Club, motored down to Saratoga Springs on Saturday for the impending work for the impending 2 to 9, Blue Bonnets—September 2 to 9, inclusive—which shall be marked by renewals of the Hochelega handicap, $2,000 added, six furlongs, 2 year olds; Lord Byng handicap, $3,500 added, mile and a quarter, 3 year olds and over; Hendrie Memorial steeplechase, $2,000 added about two miles and a half, 4 year olds and over; Bartlett McLennan steeplechase, handicap, $2,000 added, about two miles and a half, 4 year olds and over; Provincial Nursery, $1,500 added, five furlongs, for Quebec bred 2 year olds; and King's Plate, $2,500 added, one mile and a quarter, also for Quebec bred horses.

Mr. Angevine said that there would be a couple of overnight handicaps of $2,000 added, the minimum course of the meeting. The minimum purse will be $1,000. He has decided that the ordinary steeplechases shall be open to 3 year olds, there being many promising jump and underlings in the American sport the Blue Bonnets meeting. The Montreal Jockey Club has arranged with the directorate of the Delaware and Hudson railroad for the supplying of cars that will be punctually hauled north for such horsemen now at Saratoga as decide to ship to Montreal. The cost of shipping, of course, will fall on the shippers.

There is a strong probability that upward of one hundred and fifty horses of various ages will go from Saratoga to Montreal for the Blue Bonnets meeting, and the session of seven days at Dorval Park that will follow it.

Among the Americans who have declared their intention of shipping are James W. Healey, Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark, Ralph Beaver Strassburger, of Philadelphia, Edward F. Whitney, William H. Rowe, etc. Bud Fisher, of Mutt and Jeff celebrity, likewise, has announced that he will send on four or five horses, although the majority of his thoroughbreds will race at Belmont Park through the first week of September. Mr. Fisher has not picked his prospective Canadian invaders, but it is likely that the miler Muskallonge, a winner at Saratoga will be one of them. Possibly Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Jeffords, of Philadelphia, will send the over-night handicap horse, Two Feathers, Bravo and Macduff with the Mutt and Jeff delegation. Two Feathers, always a good horse at Saratoga, has won open race here.

James W. Healey will not know just what he will have for Blue Bonnets racing until after the sale of the Canterbury stud stable, which will be held here later in the month. But Robert Oliver, Algardil, Old Dan and Sea Scout are sure to be in his string and it is possible that he may take Belle of Bryn Mawr and Sea Bryn along also. Sea Scott and Sea Bryn look fine prospects for autumn steeplechasing in Canada and in Maryland.

Minata, winner last fall of both the Hendrie Memorial and Bartlett McLennan renewals, will be the star Mrs. Ambrose Clark's outfit which Tim Donohue is training. Minata is in splendid form. He has just won a renewal of the Shillelagh steeplechase at Saratoga. He seems to be as good at least as he was last fall. The jumpers Blight 2nd, The Trout and Wrack-Grass, the sprinter Oriole and a miller called Bromus, also, will accompany Minata.

Mr. Strassburger's best bet is Houghhnm, a son of Huon, and one of the most creditable developments of the season's chasing. Houghhnm, like Minata, is a Saratoga winner. He has schooled into a perfect fencer. He can beat vastly better horses now than he was able to trim when he was in Canada in the spring. Perkiomen, another steady improving young jumper, will accompany Houghhnm. John Hermath, a first class steeplechase rider a few seasons back, has the Strassburger horses

TRIMMING AND FITTING SHEEP

Trimming sheep is done to give them a better appearance in the show ring just as it does cattle and horses. Trimming is begun just as soon as the wool is long enough that it may be worked with hand shears.

To make a good job requires experience and patience. However, with some practice the beginner can do a fair job. Two or three trimmings should put the sheep in good shape. A pair of hand shears, a bucket of water, a coarse stubble brush or card and a finer brush to wet the wool and bring it to the surface are necessary. Begin to trim on the top of the shoulder working back to the hips and tail and using care to make the back level. Trim the rear end to correspond with the back, then the sides from the shoulder back to the thigh. If the operator cannot use the shears with his left hand, it will be necessary to start at the thigh and work forward on the right side.

Trim the breast, then the neck, and finish the head.

Only enough wool should be taken off, in any place to square the animal properly. It is not necessary to follow in detail the method outlined, but the successful trimmer will always follow a set way and not clip a little one place and then jump to another. In case the covering of wool on the face and legs counts (as with the Shopters) for a great deal, and this becomes matted together, it should be washed with warm water, using a woollen cloth.

When the wool at the rear becomes dirty and stained, wash with warm water and soap. The locks should not be clipped off as it will give the sheep a hollow appearance in the twist.

After the sheep are well trimmed and their fleeces are smooth they should be covered with blankets. They should be adjusted to fit smoothly, otherwise they may cut into the fleece and mar its appearance.

It is just as important to train sheep to stand correctly as it is to train horses and cattle. The exhibitor should neglect this point of the show fitting. Wild and unwieldy sheep always make a poor showing.

The feet need careful attention and when the hoof shows any sign of becoming long it should be cut, the best instruments for this being a sharp knife, and a pair of pruning shears.

When fitting sheep, take care that they do not get wet. The sheep should be washed throughly two or three months before the show but after that the fleece must be exposed to heavy rains. If the fleece is spotted after it has been trimmed once or twice it is difficult to get it right again. While it is advised that show sheep be turned on pasture at night, care must be taken that shelter can be had in the case of rain.

Probably no class of livestock are put into the show ring, at some of our smaller fairs, with less thought as to appearances than are sheep. Burry fleeces, tags, cotted fleeces and thin fleshed sheep should be barred from all show rings.

"We have too many crazy people," says a New York doctor. We thought they were more than that.

Maybe that hill is not there, after all—

VERY often the hill we seem to be climbing, after the middle years, is made out of the common mistakes of diet which starve tissues and nerves and slow down energies with faulty nutrition and stored up food poisons. How smooth and level the path seemed to be when we were young. Simple, natural food may level that hill to a smooth path again.
