Happenings Of The Week

The Earl of Athlone and Princess Alice held their annual open house reception on New Year's day for selected groups of airmen and members of the Women's Royal Canadian Naval Service. Festivities at Government House started at noon with an informal luncheon for the household and the 30 guests in the dining-room at a table decorated with white Christmas trees with red decorations and red and silver crackers, planned by Princess Alice. An afternoon of skating on the Rideau Hall rink, and skiing in the grounds was followed by a buffet supper in the tent room, with all members of the household and staff present. Dancing in the Rose and Gold ballroom and cards in the saloon ended the day.

Will Princess Elizabeth become engaged when she reaches her 18th birthday in April? London is again with rumors that a concert has been chosen for the elder daughter of the King and Queen and London society is preparing itself for a marriage that might be its first spectacular pageant after the war. The story, which appeared in several London papers, quotes a New York publication as its source. Charles Manners, Duke of Rutland and Hugh Fitzroy, earl of Euston are named as among those from whom the royal husband will be chosen. Sir Eric Meville, assistant private secretary to the King, said he was not prepared to comment on the rumor. The relatives of the 24-year-old earl and duke, who are brother officers in the Grenadier Guards, deny any knowledge of the romance. Both young men have been invited to spend the New Year week-end with her mother Mrs. P. S. Chandler.

Section Officer Marjory Chandler, R.O.A.F., left Tuesday for Ottawa, after spending the New Year week-end with her mother Mrs. P. S. Chandler.

Corp. R. Earl Taylor, No. 8 S.F. 75, Moncton, and his bride, the former Miss Jessie C. MacGibbon, who spent part of her honeymoon with Corp. Taylor's parents, and Mrs. R. G. Taylor in Charlottetown, returned to Moncton, Monday and have taken up residence at the Queen Hotel.

Mr and Mrs. J. H. Hill, had as their guests over the holiday season their daughter, Mrs. F. B. Ekin, whose husband, Lieut. Ekin, R.C.N.V.R., Digby, N.S. joined her for the New Year. Miss Roberta Hill and son Douglas Hill of Acadia. The visitors who were hostesses at an afternoon tea over the week-end left on return this week.

Ft. Lieut. L.S.T. Bing and his bride, the former Miss Anna Grace Hughes whose marriage took place last month in Victoria, B.C., at present visiting in Toronto where Mrs. Bing's mother, Mrs. G. Gordon Hughes is now convalescing nicely after her recent severe illness. Ft. Lieut. Bing has been transferred to an Eastern Coastal Command, much to the delight of his friends.

The distasteful side of Moscow's diplomatic life is becoming more distinctive and the reason is the steady import of wives and daughters. Six have arrived since the diplomatic corps moved back from Killybegs last autumn. They are Mrs. Dana Wilgus, wife of the Canadian ambassador, Mr. John Balfour, wife of the British minister, Kathleen Harriman, daughter of the United States ambassador; Mrs. Arnold Smith, wife of the Canadian third secretary; Mrs. H. Bostock, wife of the British attaché and Mrs. Audrey Cook, of the United States supply mission.

Among the ladies receiving on New Year's afternoon was Mrs. (Dr.) F. Taylor, who at the grand old age of 92 cordially welcomed a large number of visitors, calling each guest by name as they shook hands.

During the holiday season Dr. and Mrs. W.J.P. MacMillan, were visited by their three sons, Lieut. F. P. MacMillan, L.D.S., stationed in Dartmouth, N.S.; Corp. S. J. MacMillan, R.C.A.F., Moncton, N.B.; and H. Allan MacMillan, Medical Student at McGill, Montreal. After a delightful holiday the MacMillan boys have returned to their respective duties.

Mrs. Morris, wife of Capt. G. L. Morris of Halifax, now serving overseas, is the welcome guest of Mrs. Baker, wife of Capt. Earl C. Baker.

Mrs. H. H. Horne was among the hostesses entertaining at the tea hour this week inviting her friends on Monday afternoon for one of her delightful functions.

Younger Generation Looks on

What's Mummy doing now? asks the interested young lady above. Saving coal might be the answer. This mother knows that one simple way to help conserve the winter's supply of coal is to shut off the heat in those rooms which are unused during the day. The Department of Munitions and Supply says that substantial savings will be effected through turning off registers or radiators and closing the windows and doors of all rooms not used during the daytime.

THE COOK'S CORNER

CREAM VEGETABLE SOUPS

(Basic Recipe)
4 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
2 cups water in which vegetable was cooked.

2 cups cooked vegetable, finely chopped, rubbed through sieve
Onion if desired
Salt and pepper to taste
Melt butter and blend in flour. Add milk and vegetable water, using more than 2 cups milk if necessary to make 4 cups liquid. Cook until mixture thickens, stirring constantly. Add strained vegetable pulp or other vegetables. Season to taste. A slice of onion cooked with the vegetable adds flavour to the soup. Carrots, celery, peas, string beans, spinach, onion, asparagus cauliflower, tomatoes or a combination of vegetables may be used.

CREAM OF TOMATO SOUP

2 cups canned tomatoes
2 cups onion
2 teaspoons sugar
4 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
4 cups milk
Salt and pepper

Method 1—Cook tomatoes, onion and sugar together for 15 minutes. Strain. Make cream sauce of butter and flour. Add strained tomatoes slowly to sauce. Serve at once. If soup has a tendency to curdle beat with drier egg beater.

Method 2—Melt butter. Blend in flour. Add cold tomatoes, strained. If desired, onions, sugar and milk. Bring together until soup thickens, stirring constantly. Season with salt and pepper. Remove onion and serve at once.

QUICK CREAM SOUP

4 tablespoons butter
4 tablespoons flour
1 quart milk
1 onion
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups raw grated carrot or turnip.

Melt butter. Blend in flour and gradually add milk. Cook stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. Add onion, salt and grated vegetable. Cook over hot water until vegetable is tender—about 10 minutes. Remove onion. Sprinkle chopped parsley over soup just before serving.

"WILLIE THE TOILER — "ANCHORS AWEIGH!"

Dorothy Dix Says—

WIFE'S PRIORITY IN HUSBAND SHOULD CURE ANY JEALOUSY

Man's Dancing, Talking With Gay Young Girl Doesn't Mean Thoughts Of Love

DEAR MISS DIX—I am 18 and have been married six months to an army officer. I know my husband loves me, or he wouldn't have married me, and I don't exactly envy any other girls their looks or their figures, but when he remarks about this girl being a good-looking, or that one having nice legs, I just get hopping mad. Of course, I know he is teasing me but I am afraid some day I'll just cut loose and say a lot of things I will be sorry for.

There is one girl in particular he kids me about.

She is a married woman about 26 years old. When she is all powdered and painted up she looks about my age, but she hasn't a trim shape. She is already fat. We were friends once, but she flirts with all the men she meets, and when my husband started saying how good-looking she is it made me hate her. But even if she wasn't around, some other woman would be, and I know I can't keep him tied at home all the time with a blanket over his head so he won't see them. So will you please tell me what I should do.

JEALOUSY MUST BE CURED

ANSWER—Well, Peasy, you've got to realize the fact that the world is full of good-looking girls and that there is no possible way of getting rid of them. You are a young woman, and you are going to have to get used to the fact that there are other women out there who are just as good-looking as you are, and that you have to be content with what you have.

Now there is just one infallible remedy for jealousy, and that is to apply a little common sense to it. Realize, in the first place, that you have priority on your husband. If he hadn't preferred you to other women, he would not have married you. In the second place, take this truth to heart: while you are still young, for it will save you a lot of useless tears that men don't take women as seriously as women take men, and that, because a man enjoys looking at a pretty face, or talking to a gay and lively girl, or dancing with one who makes about his own in the least mean that he is in love with her, or has any serious intentions regarding her.

Even married men's flirtations seldom have any significance. Generally they haven't a heart throb in them. They are just a man's way of amusing himself for an hour and of proving to himself that he still has a good line and is a devil among the ladies. If wives could only bring their husbands to believe that and would leave their husbands about having fallen for some new little coot, instead of having hysterics over her, they would save themselves a lot of grief.

I am sorry for any woman who has married a man who is a teaser and who thinks it funny to make her green-eyed. He is laying up trouble for both of them and paving the way to the divorce court. But the only way to get rid of a man who is teasing and who thinks it funny to make her green-eyed, is to give him his freedom. He has always been a good provider and more than generous to you. Do you think it is fair to rear the children in an atmosphere of bitterness?

CHILDREN SUFFER FROM PARENTS' ATTITUDE

ANSWER—When we speak of a husband and wife who have ceased to love each other continuing to live together in order to make a home for their children, we don't mean just the keeping up of a house. We mean that they must be big enough and big enough spiritually to live together in peace and harmony, and be, at least, able to give friendship and good will to each other.

Even a married couple have not only ceased to love each other, but one has come to love someone else and they live together in a bitter enmity that poisons the very air they breathe, and when their children are forced to listen to their quarrels and see their husbands and wives make a mockery of the very word love, their children will be better off with either parent, or even with parents at all, than in such a house of strife.

DEAR MISS DIX—I am a widow and am thinking of remarrying. In your opinion how long should a widow remain a widow? I have nobody that some of the prominent widowers of the country remarried from three to two years after becoming widowers. For instance, Thomas Fortune and married in 2 days; President Wilson in approximately 18 months; one prominent attorney in 5 months and another in 15 months. But I have no record for widows remarrying.

What is the proper time that a woman or man should wait before remarrying? A READER.

ANSWER—There is no fixed period for mourning for either widows or widowers. It is purely a matter of personal taste and inclination, and should be based on the conventional attitude to that, but it should show their departed mates' memory the respect of waiting for a year before they replace them with other wives and husbands.

The reason why widows remarry earlier than men widows is because men do the proposing, while women have to wait to be asked.

BRITISH AVIATION TURNS TOWARD EAST

LONDON —(OP)—The United States may be to advantage in civil transport planes after the war "but we will soon get back to the position that we are in on the military side today" in which British planes are ahead of anything in the world, says Lord Braithwaite, head of the committee studying post-war aviation plans.

Price Control Questions And Answers

Questions and Answers on Price Control will appear in The Guardian as a regular feature each Tuesday. The questions are those which have reached the Wartime Prices and Trade Board from housewives in this region. The answers are provided by the Board Readers. Persons who have intelligent questions to ask no price control are invited to send them in writing to the Women's Regional Advisory Committee of the War Times Prices and Trade Board.

Q. Is there now a ceiling price on veal?

A. Yes, there is now a ceiling price on veal, and all butchers should have a cutting chart for veal and prices of the various cuts posted in their stores.

Q. Can a butcher make an additional charge for cleaning a chicken or other fowl?

A. Yes when a retailer draws a bird at the request of a customer it has been weighed and sold undrawn he may make a charge for this accommodation. This charge must not exceed 10 cents.

Q. I want to sub-divide my home in order to furnish further accommodation. I have never rented before. How much may I charge for this accommodation?

A. Apply to the Rentals Administration of the Prices Board and they will fix the rental on the space you wish to rent.

Learn to Play Games

Many of you have played "checkers" and think it's lots of fun. It's a game of wits to see if you can outsmart your partner. Such games like this insure your popularity with your friends and they all enjoy themselves immensely when they come to visit you.

However, if you don't have a "checker" board, there are many other games which really are quite simple and need nothing but pencil and paper. Testing each other's wits in these simple games adds great hilarity to your group.

Our 32-page booklet is full of all kinds of games—quiet games and active games; baffling stunts and magic—planned for such times as when one or more friends drop in, or for small parties and family gatherings.

Often the get-togethers that are the most fun are spontaneous. You don't have to make elaborate preparations to have an exciting evening.

You may like to play card games: there are full descriptions how to play Russian bank, rummy, Michigan, pounce, and various others.

Hints on Etiquette

The esopologues of the Muses have made it correct to lap your soup bowl to get that last bit of delicious soup.

Two or three young men went into a museum. On one of the cabinets was a label with these words: "The body of a man weighing one hundred and fifty pounds." Where is the man? asked one of the young men. No one answered. That is all that goes to make me? That is all that a bystander, smiling, and walked on. But the young man did not smile. If that is all that is needed, ask one, so much lime, so much gas, so much water we should be exactly alike. There is something more which they cannot put into cabinets. Yes, said another under his breath, that added by God, who puts into these senseless elements that which makes a living soul. They passed on in silence, their souls and their God suddenly becoming real before those cabinets filled with all the material essentials for the making of a man.
