In view of the numerous storms this winter which have prevented children attending school many parents have asked that signals be given in different parts of the city, say at eight in the morning, when no school will be held. No better signals could be adopted than steam whistles. The factories in the different parts of the town could easily be communicated with by telephone and a blast from the whistle in each section would tell the residents in the vicinity that the school session for the day had been cancelled. It was highly dangerous for many children to turn out in the storm of yesterday and if any have contracted severe colds or sickness the authorities would, no doubt, be morally liable by many.

LEPROSY ON THE DECREASE

OTTAWA, Feb. 5.—Dr. Smith, medical superintendent of the leper hospital at Fredrick (N. B.), in his annual report says: "The register of the institution shows the names of fifteen inmates, ten males and five females. One of these, a man aged forty-one, has been for some time out on leave of absence. His case appears to be one of those rare ones in which leprosy undergoes spontaneous cure—the malady having run its course, the effects alone remain.

"There are several stages of the disease, which are, however, often ill-defined. Classifying the lepers in the lazaretto, the number in the first stage is six; in the second, seven, and in the third, one. The youngest patient is ten, and the oldest sixty-two years of age. There were four deaths during the past twelve months; and three new cases were admitted—one from without the province. Of those on the register, nine are of French, three of Icelandic, and three of English origin. Four of the lepers have lost their sight, one from repeated attacks of iritis, the others from ulcerations and leprosy infiltration. Whenever practicable, the patients are given light employment in and around the buildings. Some of the men go boat-sailing in the harbor.

"During a recent tour of investigation through adjoining parishes the doctor found one undoubted case of leprosy. This person has not yet been admitted. He also found three persons showing suspicious premonitory symptoms. Notwithstanding this, he has again to report that leprosy is rapidly decreasing. The absolute number has become much reduced within the past few years, and the reduction in ratio to the population is still much greater."
