The Middle Ground

By Marion Rubincam. JANE'S IDEAS Chapter 15

Mrs. Talbot found her romantic vision of her children's visit rather sadly shattered after they had been home a week or so.

Jane the outspoken, contributed more to the feeling than any of the others. Jane usually said what she thought when she was with the family. Claire felt her position as an outsider and was much more tactful. Amy, who had rebelled before and who knew something was wrong, without knowing what it was, now began to find words for her complaints.

Jane did not approve of the meals, that was one thing. The Talbot's kept what the mother considered a "good table." She rejoiced in this because it was only in the last five years or so that they could afford any but the most meagre sort of cooking.

"Ham, eggs, hot biscuits, fresh white bread, pancakes, syrup, and coffee," Jane said, surveying the breakfast table one morning.

"What's the matter with that?" Jordan demanded, looking up over his cup. "Ain't that enough?"

"Far too much," Jane answered serenely, sitting down in her place. "It's practically all starch, except the ham. Which takes, so many hours to digest that it never should be a breakfast dish. The stomach needs something light after it's done."

"I was brought up on a substantial diet, and I've never been sick in my life. I guess it's the sort of food is good for me, it's good for my children too."

Young Amy saw trouble coming, and moved restlessly in her chair. Mrs. Talbot began asking everyone to have a second cup of coffee by way of diverting attention.

Jane smiled good naturedly, and answered: "You've never been really well, either, father. You suffer from pains in the stomach. You are subject to rheumatism."

"I can plough a field for 12 hours without having your heart ache over it. It's the fat and starch in the food. Now you should bring breakfast with a dish of fresh berries—"

WOMEN FROM FORTY TO FIFTY

Will be Interested in Mrs. Thompson's Recovery by Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Winnipeg, Man.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done me good in every way. I was very weak and run-down and had certain troubles that women of my age are likely to have. I did not like to go to the doctor so I took the Vegetable Compound and am still taking it right along. I recommend it to my friends."

When women are between the ages of forty-five and fifty-five are beset with such annoying symptoms as nervousness, irritability, melancholia and heat flashes, which produce headaches, dizziness, or a sense of suffocation, they should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It is especially adapted to help women through this crisis. It is prepared from roots and herbs and contains no harmful drugs or narcotics.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from roots and herbs, has for forty years proved its value in such cases. Women everywhere bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Women who suffer should write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., 233 State Street, Lowell, Mass., for a free copy of "Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon 'Ailments Peculiar to Women.'"

HERE IS THE REASON WHY CANADA HAS SO MANY HEALTHY WOMEN!

Toronto, Ont.—"Dr. Pierce's Favorite Women's Medicine. I found it so very beneficial that I do hesitate to recommend it to others who suffer. I had suffered with a severe nervous breakdown, caused thru my having feminine weakness. I had no control whatever over my nerves, could not sleep and I suffered with backaches and pains extending down into my limbs. I was a physical and nervous wreck when I was advised to try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Women's Medicine. It put me right on my feet and removed all the trouble. My nerves became strong and I did not suffer any more with any of the above ailments." Mrs. Lizzie Almas, No. 235 Ontario Street.

All druggists. Liquid or tablets. Write Doctor Pierce's Invalids Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., for free medical advice, or send for trial pkg. of tablets to Dr. Pierce's Laboratory in Bridgeport, Ont.

"We're having berries for dinner, Jane dear. Please don't get your father started. He needs food because he works hard."

Jane subsided at her mother's request. Mrs. Talbot worried that morning, because of her cooking. Jane disappeared of dumplings — there was boiled chicken with jumpings, fat and yellow, swimming in the gravy, and potatoes and hot biscuits again, and a cake for dessert.

Jane talked about strange things — starch and carbohydrates and calories and vitamins, and showed such an intimate acquaintance with the human digestive system that the mother felt it wasn't somehow quite moral! She had always eaten hot biscuits and large amount of cake and jam, and boiled puddings and things of that sort — she made the best cakes and rolls in the village and she was proud of her skill.

According to Jane this was all wrong. "If you must eat this pasty white bread, take it stale, or else toast it," was one of her edicts.

This sort of thing was only a trifle. Jane might rearrange the kitchen and every other room in the house, as she did after being home two weeks, and the mother would worry and fuss, and perhaps object, but it wasn't serious. Jane's ideas on life were what troubled the older woman.

There was this strange man, for instance. Jane had announced calmly that she was in love with a young doctor, a student also in her university, now beginning to practise.

But she wasn't engaged — though further questioning developed the fact that the man was also in love with her. Further, she said she would not marry him anyway, because they were poor, and they would hinder each other in their respective careers!

"Has he asked you to marry him?" the mother asked once. "Certainly not," said Jane. "How do you know he's in love with you?"

"Because he told me so — because I know it, even if he never said it." "But you haven't said you were in love with him?"

"Why, of course, mother. I am so why pretend I'm not?" "But — well, it seems to me you ought to be engaged then. 'Tisn't right, for a man to take up a girl's time and play with her affections, if he isn't serious."

"He's deadly serious! But life isn't as simple as you think. There's more to marriage than love — the girl turned to look at her mother. "I'll ask him down for his vacation, and you'll find he's really very nice. You just don't understand!"

Poor Amy Talbot admitted there was much she did not understand! Tomorrow—Trouble Brews.

PUNISHING FATHER

"When I'm a man—" began Robbie after a stormy interview with his father. "What will you do?" asked his mother.

"I'll name my boy after papa—and my how I'll spank him!"

AN ENDLESS TASK

Little Kathleen was looking most discouraged. "Mother," she said, "It's no good my going to school any more."

"Why, dear, what is that matter?" inquired Mother.

"Well, I shall never learn spelling," answered Kathleen, "because teacher keeps on changing the words. As soon as I have learned a few she finds some fresh ones for me."

To make meals pleasanter—

THERE'S nothing quite like having enough silverware! It removes annoyance in serving the meal and makes the eating of it more agreeable.

And to try to get along without enough silverware is quite unnecessary. For in 1847 Rogers Bros. Silverplate you can provide all you need quite reasonably. Tea spoons in the beautiful Old Colony pattern, or in any other, cost only $3.75 the half dozen. The other pieces—table knives and forks, dessert spoons, salad forks—are priced on the same moderate scale.

A sensible scheme is to purchase now the pieces you need most, and to add others in the chosen pattern from time to time. In the newer patterns your dealer always will be ready to supply your wants. Remember that "1847 Rogers Bros." is made to last a lifetime. It leaves nothing to be desired in durability or guarantee.

Send for "How Much Silverware," a new booklet which is a faithful guide to reasonable silverware purchases for families large and small.
