ST. PETER'S AUXILIARY—The annual meeting of St. Peter's Branch of the Women's Auxiliary was held in the church hall on Tuesday, Jan. 11. The president, Mrs. T.E. McNutt opened the meeting with prayer, after which the various secretaries presented their reports. During the past year two large bales of clothing have been sent, one to the Bishop Horden Memorial School and the other to St. Faith's Mission School at Swan River. A third bale was sent to the Protestant Orphanage. The Red Cross secretary reported the making of 106 knitted articles for that Society. It was moved and seconded that last year's officers be re-elected for the coming year. The meeting closed with The Grace.

PRESENTATION — On Wednesday evening, January 12, the boxholders of the western section of New Wiltshire rural route no. 2, gathered at the home of Mrs. J T. Kelly, Stanchel to do honor to their mail courier, Earle Kelly. Mr. Frank Flood acted as chairman and called upon Mr. Edward White who read a nicely-worded address while Mr. Francis McDonald presented Mr. Kelly with a substantial purse. Earle, in his usual pleasant manner on behalf of himself and wife, thanked them all and kindly invited them to his home in New Wiltshire. For He's A Jolly Good Fellow, was sung after which the able-bodied youths gave him a lively bounce. Lunch was then served. The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing, games and singing. Music was furnished by Tod. Orchestra, Dan Chapman and Frank Flood.

IN MEMORIAM

LAYTON MacCABE

In the early hours of the morning of November 22nd, after a few weeks illness, the spirit of Layton MacCabe of Alexandra took its flight to the Heavenly Mansions prepared by Him whom he loved and devotedly served for many years.

The late Mr. MacCabe would have attained his 90th year on February 9th. He was born in Musquodoboit, N. S., son of Edward and Jane MacCabe, and was the only remaining member of a family of nine brothers and sisters. He was twice married, his first wife being May Gay, daughter of the late J. J. Gay of Pownal to them were born three sons and one daughter: Sylvan, of Montreal, P. Q., Veteran of South African War; Harold of Brookline, Mass., and Mrs. H. M. Polley (Rita) of Los Angeles, California; Ray in Summerville.

Later he married Annie Fraser, daughter of the late William Fraser of North River. To them were born five sons and two daughters. Claude, the oldest son, was accidently drowned a number of years ago. Alvah, a veteran of the Great War and residing in Westlock, Alberta; (Jean) Mrs. George MacLennan of Alexandra; Ernest, on the homestead; Byron with the Canadian Forestry Corps in British Columbia; (Bernice) Mrs. Milton Mellish of Summerside; Stanley with Cape Breton Fusiliers Overseas. He also leaves 26 grandchildren and 6 great-grandchildren.

As long as health permitted him, he was active as a director of Hazelbrook Dairying Co., and Secy. of Alexandra school for over 40 years. He was an honoured deacon, church clerk, and for over 45 years an outstanding Bible Class teacher of Hazelbrook Baptist Church.

The funeral services were held privately at the home, and thence to Hazelbrook Baptist Church where a large number of friends and relatives gathered to pay their last tribute to one they loved and respected. Order of service was as follows: The Rev. Mr. Noble of Charlottetown Baptist Church, who assisted by Rev. D. K. Ross, Pownal United Church conducted the service at the home, preached the funeral sermon from the text 5th Chapter Joo, 25th verse.

The preacher brought a comforting message to those who so sincerely mourned the loss of a dear husband and father. Hymns: Jesus Lover of My Soul, Unto the Hills, Nearer My God to Thee. A solo, Beautiful Garden of Prayer, by special request of the family was very sympathetically rendered by Mrs. John McRae; also a poem "Father's Hands" (by request of family) was feelingly read by Rev. Mr. Noble.

"He rests from his labors and His works do follow him", as he lives on in the lives of his bereaved wife and family, to whom the sympathy of a large host of friends goes out.

FATHER'S HANDS

Father's hands are weary,
Fold them on his breast.
They have been so busy.
Let, oh, let them rest.
Worn and thin and wrinkled;
Seemed with toil and care;
Yet to all they've aided
Beautiful and fair.

Of their deeds so loving
"How those lines now speak"
They have raised the fallen
Comforted the weak.
Toiled on uncomplaining
With their work never done.
Full of joy and gladness
Till their rest is won.

Think how they have guided
Tiny, toddling feet
Smoothed away all sorrow,
With their touch so sweet.
Banished pain and sorrow.
Closed at last the eyes
Of his beloved who'll greet him
In "Mansions in the skies."

Father's hands are weary,
Fold them on his breast.
Dear old hands so feeble.
They have earned their rest!
God is waiting for him,
And he understands,
All the work for others
Done by Father's hands.

—Ernest.

for myself but for the girl. Then she can buy some cigarettes."

"I doubt she'll take it." Derek said. Peter frowned.

"No, perhaps not in cash, but she will in cigarettes. Get me some in Taverton. Are you going to-morrow?"

"To-day you mean. You bet I am. Nothing would keep me away. I'm looking forward to buying those rams and the tractor."

"Sure that's the only reason?" Peter asked with a grin. Derek flushed slightly, but he made no bones about answering.

"The girl, you mean. Yes, I shall certainly see her. And this money will make a difference. I can pay someone to look after her."

"I'll be interested to see her myself," Peter said quite seriously. "Now you'd better lock up the cash, Derek. I've had enough exercise for one day."

Derek put the notes in a drawer of his uncle's heavy old writing table and locked it. Peter had just lit two candles when there came the all too familiar crash.

"Bomb" snapped Derek. "It's that infernal fire." He ran for the front door and Peter followed. They were hardly outside before there came a second boom much louder and closer than the first. The night was lit by a huge flare of leaping flame which ran from the hill side behind the house.

"God! he's coming right over us!" whispered Peter. The two stood together, hardly breathing, wondering where the third bomb would fall.

CHAPTER XVII
GASSED!

There was no third bomb. The harsh drone of the Hun passed almost directly overhead and slowly died away towards the south-east. Derek drew a long breath.

"I thought the next one would be square on the old house," he said.

"Would you have been sorry?" was Peter's unexpected question.

"Yes," replied Derek frankly. "I've no love for the house, but since you came I haven't felt that infernal depression. And that find to-night cheered me. Not so much the money, but the knowledge that the old man didn't really hate his son. I'm beginning to think that, when we've cleared up all this mystery and got rid of the Farrells, I can be quite happy here."

"The sooner they go the better," said Peter grimly. Derek shook his head.

"Not yet, Peter. I couldn't replace them during the war, and I have a strong feeling that it won't be long before we get to the bottom of things."

"I hope you're right." Peter turned and glanced back up the slope. "Wonder where that last one dropped. It wasn't far off."

"We'll see in the morning," said Derek "I can hardly keep my eyes open."

ALEXANDRA W. I.

On Tuesday evening, January 4 the Alexandra Women's Institute met at the home of Mrs. Bruce Judson. The meeting opened with the Institute Ode and Creed. The roll call was answered by seven members who responded with comments to their right hand neighbors. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted. The Canadian Soldiers' boxes were reported mailed; $4.00 was reported used for school treat; and 50 cents reported used for Christmas present. The reports of the committees were given, the sick committee reporting one individual visited and treated. Three letters of thanks of soldiers were read also a letter re the CBC Adult Education Program. It was decided that a travelling apron be started this month, Mrs. Arthur Wood donating the apron. A donation of yarn was received from Mrs. William Brehaut and $2.29 was expended for quilt material. One quilt top was auctioned for $2.50.

Mrs. Wallace Brehaut invited the February meeting to her home and Mrs. Bruce Judson and Mrs. Ernest MacCabe volunteered as lunch committee. A 10 cents collection will be taken; and the roll call will be answered with a Valentine verse or joke. Following adjournment, an enjoyable contest was conducted by Mrs. George MacLennan and lunch was served by the hostess and committee.
