World's Most Secret Railway Coach

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20 (AP)—The world's most secret railway car... The coach was developed today at the White House... From No. 1401, the name by which the coach has been called by those who know about it ever since it was borrowed from the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, the President can: 1. Telephone to any house or to any radio-telephone equipped automobile or other vehicle in the United States. 2. Carry on a radio teletype conversation—in virtually unbreakable code—around the world at a rate of 100 words a minute. 3. Send and receive messages to and from ships at sea. 4. Send and receive teletype code messages. The newest of the numerous communications devices in the car is the radio teletype. An operator punches out a message on an ordinary teletype keyboard similar to that on a typewriter. The message progresses through a transmitter into a "scrambler" which puts it into a code difficult to break because of its lack of uniformity. The resulting jargon goes to a "de-scrambler" at the point of reception, then passes into a receiver and appears, readably, on a teletype receiver.
