EYESTRAIN THE PRINCIPAL CAUSE OF HEAD-ACHES. Some authorities say 90 p.c. of all headaches are caused by eyestrain; no authority puts it less than 70 p.c. Leave it to your own experience. When getting a headache, you close your eyes, don't you?

Of the twelve pairs of nerves in the skull, six have some connection with the eye. No wonder the dull ache from eyestrain occurs in any part of the head. So when defective eyes are called upon to do the eye-work required by modern life, the third ocular muscles set up pain along the nerves connecting with the other parts of the head. A correct pair of glasses gets at the cause. Glasses banish not one headache but a thousand.

SUNDAY SERVICES.—The services in the Presbyterian Church Montague on Sunday, Feb. 17th will be conducted by Rev. W. S. Mabon, B. D., at 11 a.m. and at 7 p.m.

HUGH McDEARMID.—On Feb. 6th, after a lingering and painful illness of several years, there passed away Hugh McDearmid in his 77th year. Though unable to do the work of his farm he bore with great fortitude his infirmity and growing weakness sustained by loving friends and the devotion and courage of a loving wife nee Sarah Emery. Besides his wife he is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Kestle Ross of Union Road and Mrs. Arch. Nicholson, K. C. McE., also three brothers, George, Archibald, and Norman, all of Montague; two sisters, Jessie at home and Annie now residing in U. S. A. The funeral services which were largely attended were conducted by Rev. Henry A. Brown of the Montague Methodist Church on Feb. 8th, and interment made in Lower Montague Cemetery. The pall bearers were John Sample, Wm. Docherty, Malcolm Nicholson, Wm. McEachern, Chas. McLellan, Leam Pearson.

ADDRESS AND PRESENTATION.—At the whist party held by the Armadale Whist Club on Jan. 28th, at the home of Mr. Hugh McPhee, the members took the favorable opportunity of presenting their pastor, Rev. K. C. McE., Pherson with an address accompanied by a very useful gift. The card contest started as usual about 7.30 and lasted for three hours, during which time Miss McAdam and Mr. McPhee scored the highest number of points and consequently won the ladies' and gents' first prizes, respectively. The booby winners were Mrs. Daniel McInnis and Mr. Angus Keays. After the game instrumental selections were rendered by Mr. R. C. McPhee and Mr. Michael McIntyre. A sumptuous repast was then served by Mrs. McPhee, who was kindly assisted by many of the young ladies present. After supper the address was read to his Reverence by Mrs. Catherine McInnis and the gift was presented by Mrs. Daniel McInnis. His earnest and fitting reply testified to his high appreciation of the entertainment and of the gift which he received. He also in the course of his remarks commended the members of this club on their wonderful achievements. Dancing was then indulged in for a cooling of hours were spoken by Mr. R. D. McInnis. Then all repaired to their homes highly pleased with their evening's entertainment.

Wounded Gunman Tells Story of Fight. The following details from the Boston American of the recent shooting affray in Newton, Mass., will be of interest. Craig is said to belong to Charlottetown: Gerald B. Craig—modern Raffles—looter of homes of the wealthy—on his death bed in St. Elizabeth's Hospital, today gave the first detailed story of the duel he fought early Thursday morning, with Lewis F. Curtis, wealthy broker and clubman in the latter's home in Newton. "I was tired and cold—I saw the couch in the sun parlor of the Curtis home and I just went in and lay down," said the man whose life is fast ebbing away as the result of five bullets fired into his body by Curtis, a crack shot and the clay pigeon champion of America. "Since the duel in the Curtis home yesterday morning, which resulted in Craig's injuries and Curtis being taken to the Newton Hospital, probably fatally injured with a bullet through his shoulder and back—Craig was the first to talk. "I never knew or heard of Curtis before this affair," said Craig. Apparently he knows death is near, yet he affects a nonchalant attitude that is regarded as remarkable by the police. "I had been roaming about all day long," he continued. "I walked by the Curtis home and the sun parlor looked inviting. The last of the family or the servants were just putting out the lights. "I decided to go into the place and lay down. I hadn't any idea in the world of stealing anything in that house—I only wanted to enjoy that couch. "I got into the house—never mind how. "I took off my shoes and overcoat and laid down. I was asleep in an instant. "The next thing I knew a man was shaking me. I reached for a chair on which my hat was lying. The man, whom I now know is Curtis, blazed away at me with a gun I hadn't seen before in his hand. "I grabbed my revolver and shot at him. There were a lot more shots coming from the gun he held. I don't remember much about it, but I staggered from the house and got on a trolley car—then the cops got me. "What were you doing with the revolver?" he was asked. "Don't bother me about that," the dying man said as he turned on his side, indicating as best he could that the interview was over as far as he was concerned and that he would talk no further. Carroll Craig, twenty-two, brother of the wounded man, and who lived with him, was arrested at the St. Elizabeth Hospital, when he went there to inquire about his brother's condition. "After hours of grilling, and after a few hours of bargaining made his statement, the brother was released. "I only thought Gerald was a bootlegger," he told the police. "He would go away at night, but I never thought anything of that." Craig, from his hospital bed, told the police his brother had no part in any of the robberies—that he played a lone hand. Cecelia Dougherty, twenty-six, a married woman living in Somerville, was taken to the hospital weeping and hysterical. She had been with Craig the evening before he forced an entrance to the Curtis home. She declared she thought Craig was a bootlegger and that her friendship with him, of one month's duration, had no connection with his operations as a burglar. The loot uncovered in the room occupied by the Craig brothers, at No. 109A Dartmouth street South End, definitely connects the wounded man with a score of burglaries. Craig, a carpenter by trade, born in Prince Edward Island, pursued only his vocation of burglary since he came to Boston. Evidence uncovered shows that for a time he lived in Cambridge and then moved to the Dartmouth street address. Apparently spending his days in idleness, and giving no intimation of his criminal proclivities, even to his closest friends, he spent his nights prowling in Brookline, Newton, Watertown, Brighton and exclusive residential sections of Boston, being able, through his knowledge of locks, to enter any home at will. Curtis, at the Newton Hospital is still on the danger list, although his condition apparently was somewhat improved today. His wife is constantly at his bedside. An unsuspected romance entered the case today when Mrs. Dougherty was taken, sobbing hysterically, to the bedside of the wounded burglar. Police are convinced that the woman is telling the truth and that she took no part in Craig's nocturnal wanderings. The silence which Curtis has maintained since the shooting, was broken today when he issued a statement through his attorney, Major Thomas L. Walsh. "I wish I could have avoided it," Curtis said through his attorney, "but I had to shoot to save my wife and family. I did not shoot to kill him, but to make it impossible for him to shoot me."

If Your Stomach Isn't Acting Right Begin Taking Salts

Pimples, sores and boils usually result from toxins, poisons and impurities which are generated in the bowels and then absorbed into the blood through the very ducts which should absorb only nourishment to sustain the body. It is the function of the kidneys to filter impurities from the blood and cast them out in the form of urine, but in many instances the bowels create more toxins and impurities than the kidneys can eliminate; then the blood uses the skin pores as the next best means of getting rid of these impurities, which often break out all over the skin in the form of pimples. The surest way to clear the skin of these eruptions, says a noted authority, is to get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water each morning before breakfast for one week. This will prevent the formation of toxins in the bowels. It also stimulates the kidneys, thus coaxing them to filter the blood of impurities and clearing the skin of pimples. Jad Salts is inexpensive, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia. Here you have a pleasant, effervescent drink which usually helps make pimples disappear.
