GERMAN ARMY DRIVEN UNDERGROUND

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

DUNDEE—“We have driven the great army of Germany underground,” said Premier Lloyd-George in a speech here today. “When a great army is driven to these tactics it is the beginning of the end. It means that we are pounding a sense of inferiority into every pore of the German military mind. It is good for the war; it is even better for after-the-war. As long as the Prussians have an idea of superiority in their minds Europe will not be a decent place for people to live in peace. It will be easier after this.”

APPLES, ORANGES, FIGS AND PRUNES

Are The Four Fruits Used in Making "Fruit-a-tives"

"FRUIT-A-TIVES" is the only medicine in the world that is made from the juices of fresh ripe fruits. And thus, it is manifestly unfair to say, "I won't take Fruit-a-tives because I have tried other remedies and they did me no good". On the other hand, the fact that "Fruit-a-tives" is entirely different from any other preparation in the world, is just why you should give it a fair trial, in any trouble of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys or Skin. "Fruit-a-tives", is composed of the active principle of fruit and the greatest nerve tonic ever discovered. 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. DROWNING ACCIDENT ON SATURDAY

CALVIN BAKER, OF EAST JEDDORE, N.S., WAS DROWNED IN HEAVY SEA ON SATURDAY OFF CAPE ST. GEORGE

A very deplorable and sad accident occurred on Saturday morning, June 30th when Mr. Calvin Baker, and son Ambrose returning home to East Jeddore, N. S., were met with a heavy sea and the father Mr. Calvin Baker was drowned.

The son, Mr. Ambrose Baker, arrived in Georgetown on Saturday evening and when interviewed by the Guardian reporter he kindly told the particulars of this sad accident.

They reside in East Jeddore, N. S., and came to the Island for the fishing season in a trim little fishing boat equipped with gasoline engine and sails. They left St. Peter's at 8.30 p. m. Friday and were half way across when heavy wind struck them and they returned to Souris the next day. They left Souris at 12.00 p. m. but again returned on account of the heavy wind. At 4. on Saturday morning June 30th they set out again. They got within half a mile of Cape St. George when wind sprang up and despite all their efforts to manage the boat they could do nothing.

Mr. Baker, seeing that the job was tangled told Ambrose to go forward to fix it warning him that a heavy sea was coming and to look out for it. It was that sea that swept off Mr. Baker.

He stayed on the surface for about three or four minutes and then went under. Ambrose heroically attempted to save his father but in such a sea he could do nothing and only endangered his own life, in vain attempts.

When it is considered that Ambrose Baker is only sixteen years of age and that at that age he showed the courage of man by combating against the fury of the storm, with death stalking down upon him and successfully conducted the boat to Georgetown it indeed commands the admiration of the people everywhere.

When his father was swept overboard to the sea the boy started to get into the boat that he would let the storm do its worst but thoughts of the Home folk in East Jeddore came back to him in this perilous moment and he resolved with bravery which demands the admiration of all, to try and save the boat and his own life so that the blow might not be so hard for his people to bear.

The Baker's father and son, had a prosperous season and were returning home with all their summer's earnings and two trunks of clothes etc., besides miscellaneous articles of value. All this was lost.

Mr. Baker besides his brave son leaves to mourn a widow and five children in East Jeddore, N. S., all of whom have the sympathy of the Guardian as well as the people here.

Mr. Samuel Bell, Georgetown in his usual sympathetic and kind hearted way took Mr. Baker, Jr. to his house and by every means possible showed his sympathy for him in his great bereavement. Many other residents of Georgetown also offered hospitable homes to the brave young mariner.—"G"

WOMEN HOME FROM GERMANY HAS PROOF OF STARVATION.

That it is impossible for Germany to hold out much longer is the considered opinion of the wife of an Englishman who for the whole period of the war up till now, has been interned at Rubleben, and who herself within the last two or three weeks has been permitted by the German authorities to return to the land of her birth. Her knowledge of Germany is especially thorough, as she has resided there with her husband, who was associated with a commercial house, for nearly twenty years; and her account of the conditions of the country when she left last month is so balanced and restrained as to carry full conviction of its truth.

"The people," she said, "are starving, and yet most of them think that if they hold out they will be the victors. Only defeats on the battlefield will bring it home to them that their starving is no good, and then they will turn round upon their government."

"My husband and I, after so long a stay in Germany, were on the point of returning to England in September, 1914, when the war broke out in August, and then there was no chance to get away. We had to give up our pretty home and go into the interior of the country, whence he has been ever since. For the first two years wives situated like myself were not allowed to see their husbands and it was not until June, 1916, that I met mine for the first time after his arrest. You can perhaps imagine the shock I got when I saw him again—thin and hollow cheeked, as he had lost forty-five pounds while in the camp. After that we were allowed to visit every three months, for two hours, which was better than nothing at all, especially to me, as I had a brother also there and many others I knew."

"I held out as long as I possibly could because then I could occasionally see my husband, and besides I had money, which, as soon as I came over the frontier, I had not. No one was allowed to take out of the country more than 200 marks, which should be worth $50; but when I crossed the change came to not much more than $25. Thanks to the help of friends, I am now being furnished in a small way, but I am only too glad for this, because things are so distressingly bad in Germany that I am much afraid we should be starving if we still were there. The food riots are becoming worse and worse, and every one knows the worst times are yet to come. These will be in May and June, until some of the new crops are available; but if they do not come soon as they come out of the ground there will be none for the coming winter. And what then?"

"That is why there were many Germans I knew who envied me for being able to leave the country, where things are going from bad to worse as the weeks pass on. Now, it seems as the bread rations have been made smaller, instead of larger as was promised to the people some months ago, and it is less than three and a half pounds a head per fortnight, and very poor stuff at that, it being made chiefly of swedes. The largest amount of meat allowed per head weekly is one-half pound, including bone, and for the last seven months we in—did not see anything in the shape of pork, bacon, lard or any other fat. The fat problem, of course, is for the Germans the worst. All we saw in that way for the last seven or eight months was about three ounces of butter a head per week, and there were many towns that were allowed only half that weight and even less. You can get nothing unless you have plenty of money. Jam—dreadful stuff it is—costs 1.50 mark a pound and one can get only half a pound of that every fortnight—and the same with coffee."

"You can imagine that, with this slight amount of nourishment, the health of the people as a whole is giving way. Of course the rich can now and then get extras, such as a small fowl of from two and a half to three pounds for from $2.50 to $3, while at Christmas, geese were brought at prices up to $50 and $75, and there were folks who were glad to have them even at that price. Foreign lard can now and again be had at $2.50 a pound, but there are very few who can buy that."

"All sweet shops were closing down when I left, as there was no more sugar to make sweetmeats, and chocolate and cocoa were not to be had the last three or four months. Milk was hardly to be got any more, and, in fact, there are many towns which have not seen a drop of milk for weeks and weeks, and when I came away last month it was publicly known that in April a mid milk there would be hardly any great would be acute. Soap is scarcely to be got, and one piece of toilet-soap, costing about half a dollar, was allowed a month. Coals were very short when I left, and one could get only a hundredweight at a time and then fetch it one's self and wait two or three hours for it.

"Clothing was also giving out, and every article, from a handkerchief to a coat, was very scarce, while one could not get a new dress without giving up an old one in exchange. I have met many there who said, 'We cannot exist in this way, and we must give in. Whoever says we can live on these rations has seen get rucks to fall back upon.' That may be so, but I am sure the German people as a whole do not yet believe they will be starved into submission."

A corresponding and to a degree corroborative picture of the domestic situation in Germany is furnished by a London merchant, who, after being interned in Rubleben from nearly the end of 1914, has just been "exchanged" because of being over military age.

"Sitting at a much contained 'Runciman lunch' of two courses, the returned detainee remarked that he did not understand the complaint of its being a short menu, for it was as long as a Berlin one in the same conditions two and a half years ago, and would be the envy of Berlin today. Naturally he knew little at first hand of the food problem as it affected individuals in Germany during his incarceration; but he was aware at first hand of the semi-starvation of the poorer dwellers in the villages close to the great internment camp situated within a few miles of the Prussian capital.

He had been a frequent visitor to Germany on business for fifteen years, and he was well acquainted as a traveller with every mile of the country between Berlin and the Dutch frontier.

"The most significant sign of impending crash I noted on my slow journey back," he said, "was that there was not a single head of live stock to be seen on the farms all that long way, not a horse, not a cow, not a pig, not a sheep. The women and the old men were tilling the ground and doing animals' work for there was not an animal left on the land."

Use Miller's Worm Powders and the battle against worms is won. These powders correct the morbid conditions of the stomach which nourish worms, and these destructive parasites cannot exist after the come in contact with the medicine. The worms are digested by the powders and are speedily evacuated with other refuse from the bowels. Soundness is imparted to the organs and the health of the child steadily improves.
