HOW FOGS ARE MEASURED.

An ingenious invention for measuring the density and quality of fogs has been perfected by Dr. John S. Owens, of the Meteorological Office, London.

According to his explanation, fog is merely filth suspended in the air, and his appliance takes a record of the atmospheric impurities, but it does not analyze. The records are taken on circular discs of filtrated paper. These discs are spaced off into sectors and numbered like a clock. They are then placed upon a clockwork arrangement after the fashion of a record on a gramophone, and at set intervals during the day a current of air is admitted to the paper records

FOREIGN MISSION FIELDS WHERE PRESBYTERIANS LABOR

Many Incidents of Human Interest in Reports—Chinese School Supported by Natives had to Close Owing to Robberies

TORONTO, May 21.—This morning's session of the Women's Missionary Society of the Presbyterian Church was devoted to a conference on foreign work in Central India. The Ontario provincial society, of which Mrs. Charles Roberts is president, conducted the devotional exercises.

Mrs. J. Gray's report of Central India told of 29 missionaries supported there. There are also 24 wives of missionaries. The stations at which the missionaries carry on their work are Indore, Mhow, Neemuch, Ujjain, Dhar, Kharua, Banawara, Rutlam, Hat Pipila, Amkhat and Rasulpura. An urgent appeal for more medical missionaries was again made.

Foreign work in Honan was reported by Mrs. R. Ross. Influenza has also impeded the work there.

In South China, where six women missionaries are maintained and the wives of four male missionaries, Miss by means of an aperture, which focuses the current on to the part of the disc marked with the time of day. That is to say, at 10 a.m. the air current is focused on that part of the disc numbered 10.

Dr. Owens explained that during the night the records are almost white, denoting comparative purity of air, but towards 5 and 6 a.m., as the workers rose and the fires in homes and factories were lighted the color became darker.

Janet Harvie's report told of 64 pupils who had attended the boarding school at Kong Moon, 23 being boarders except two were Christians. Early in 1918 a girl's school had been opened at Lin Tong, supported entirely by the Chinese, but owing to robbers it was closed at the summer vacation and has not been opened since.

A very satisfactory report of the medical work was given, and of the evangelistic work Miss Langrill, who has a Sunday school class at Kong Moon, said crowds came to hear the message and would listen as long as anyone would talk to them.

Touching on the work in Canada among the Chinese, Miss Russell, in reporting Mrs. J. A. MacMillan's work in Toronto, stated that 42 Chinese women and 76 children were being looked after. During the year two Chinese mothers with their children had returned to their own land. The Sunday school work of Miss Chung at Cooke's Church was exceedingly valuable in teaching little Chinese children to speak English. Miss Ethel Reid, formerly of Charlottetown, P. E. I. who had worked in South China, had been doing a splendid service among the celestials in this city.

Mrs. W. R. McKay, who is in charge of the work among Chinese in Vancouver, wrote encouragingly in her report of the results of her efforts there. More and more Chinese women come to Canada each year.

A great deal of time was spent in visiting their homes. The Sunday school work was conducted by members of the Chinese church, assisted by workers from the city churches. Eighty Chinamen were enrolled as pupils of the night school.

The first report of the year's work at Victoria, B. C., showed a good start had been made. A kindergarten school had been opened with twelve children, the number increasing to twenty. The night school was well attended, and churches had responded well to the call for workers.

In Korea

Mrs. Hugh MacKenzie, secretary of the missionary work in Korea (China) where seven women missionaries are maintained besides the wives of nine others, gave an interesting account of the year's activities. Although Korea was at the present time in the throes of a revolution, said Mrs. MacKenzie, and disquieting news had come that missionaries were involved, yet the year 1918 had been one of advancement in all branches of work.

In the Kardo district Miss Cass of Yong Tung, had taken charge of the girls' school. Koreans from old Korea were flocking in large numbers to new Kardo. The journey occupied two days over indescribably rough roads in an ox-cart with no springs. There were 55 pupils in attendance at the school stated Mrs. MacKenzie, with three teachers. During the world's week of prayer, revival meetings were held, conducted by a blind Korean pastor. More than one hundred converts were led to confess Christ during the revival.

Mrs. R. J. MacLennan's report on Formosa was also heard. Though the epidemic had interferred and some work closed for the present, it was hoped that shortly things would again be in full swing. At this afternoon's session, Mrs. J. A. Macdonald, international secretary and Rev. A. E. Armstrong, told of work as they had seen it in the foreign fields.
