

Musical evenings were a definite part of social life, half a century ago. Whether in the concert hall or at home, many an old song was enjoyed that we today have almost forgotten. And what heart throbs the handsome tenor often seemed!

Nobody Felt Like Singing on Wash-day... until SURPRISE SOAP was made

- How much labour there was over the wash-tubs of half a century ago. And how glad women were to learn that Surprise Soap washed clothes so thoroughly, and with so much less rubbing.
The ingredients of Surprise Soap are skillfully blended to give rich, lasting suds that remove all the dirt with very little effort. Yet Surprise is entirely safe for even the daintiest and most fragile garments.
Surprise Soap goes further. The hard, golden bar can be depended upon for economy. It lathers quickly, and dissolves so completely that rinsing is made an easier task. And it washes thoroughly, leaving garments fragrant and really clean.

CHAPTER 19 TOO MUCH IMAGINATION

In the third floor flat on the side street to the lake, Joan Daisy's mother woke first, and she was nervous and querulous as usual in the morning. "Daisy!" she called fretfully. "Daisy!" When she heard no answer, she propped herself up, (abused, and called again; and then she shook her husband, "Poppa! Poppa!" "Daisy doesn't come."

He wandered about the front room, where Joan Daisy had converted her bed into a couch before she had left; and finally he spied the note on the desk which was addressed "Daisy?"

He read: "I'm not here, because somebody shot Adele Kettler tonight; and Dads the police came for Fred. They think he did it; but I know he didn't. I've been telling them so, but they're going to take him away and they'll take me, too."

A Mr. Clarke, from the state's attorney's office, is giving the orders. He says he's simply sending me to a hotel, but he hasn't told me which yet. He says he'll let you know later. He hasn't told me and he won't, I think; but I don't think he'll believe me, either, though I've been telling him the truth. Dads, you tell him the truth—just the truth, when they ask you about it.

He read: "I'm not here, because somebody shot Adele Kettler tonight; and Dads the police came for Fred. They think he did it; but I know he didn't. I've been telling them so, but they're going to take him away and they'll take me, too."

Radio's Greatest Recent Improvement—"Spray-Shield" Tubes

A two-second test with your own eyes will tell you whether the new radio you buy has the latest development in tube shielding. Look at the tubes in a radio! If they are covered with metal cans it is the method of shielding which we discarded three years ago.

to use these tubes exclusively: Rogers, DeForest-Crosley and Majestic Radios. Each spray-shield tube is both tube and shield in one. Yet they cost no more than an ordinary tube and are the only fully-guaranteed tubes supplied in any radio!

Better Reception From Foreign Stations

With the advent of "shoot-through" reception in more radio sets this year, the question of shielding becomes more important than ever, and the necessity of having absolutely perfect protection against interference from within the set itself, makes spray-shielding an even greater factor in assuring maximum results on the tricky tuning of short-wave stations from great distances. It costs no more to buy a radio with spray-shield tubes—yet you get better results. Insist on spray-shield tubes.

- 5 Big Points: 1. Eliminates vibration. 2. Greater power. 3. No distortion. 4. Preferable uniform temperature. 5. Insures perfect tone fidelity.

Of course, Dads had discoursed under extraordinary provisos, having been obliged to provide details of his own without any sort of information as to what Kettler and Joan Daisy might have done and said. His aim had been to establish an alibi for them; and, in going about this business, he had begun with an actual incident—the same incident to which Joan Daisy had so emphatically sworn, which was the presence of Kettler and herself in the flat, which she called her "home," when the song was heard from Los Angeles.

The discrepancies between Dads' improvisation and Joan Daisy's statement were, in all other respects, "laughable," Calvin said; but he did not laugh.

On his table in the hotel room, which to-day he used for an office, he placed the pages of James M. Royle's testimony beside the sheets written up from Joan Daisy Royle's deposition and he felt the danger from them. For in one essential—the detail which already was shaping itself as the critical point of the case—James Morton Royle's and his daughter Joan Daisy's statement agreed; and Calvin acridly blamed himself for the situation.

The girl had tricked him, he felt sure; he had let her "work" him when, before she was taken from the flat, she had written her note to decline to examine it. Now it was clear to him that she had told her father, in that note, to swear to this alibi.

"I was soft for her!" Calvin accused himself and warmed with chagrin as he recollected his sentiment when he had watched her from her window on her way out with the policeman, and he had stood beside her desk and left, unopened, her note to her father.

Three months imprisonment and a fine of $68 were imposed on James M. Royle, a journalist, when the magistrate held he had "made serious allegations against a responsible officer (a police commissioner) without making the slightest attempt to verify them."

WEATHER FORECASTS

TORONTO Ont. Oct. 18.—It is to be a cold, wet and a thoroughly disagreeable Canadian winter, if you will believe U.S. scientists, who reach their decisions by studying instruments, and sages from the prairies who were predicting the weather long before science thought it could.

Not only this winter but the next five, according to meteorologists throughout the United States. Some base their long range weather forecasting on the law of averages, others on the good old tree ring theory, and yet others on the weather cycle. But no matter to which theory they subscribe they agree that it is to come early and stay late.

Calvin received, at noon, a transcript of the remarkable disquisition which Dads during the morning of October 17, had delivered to the police in defense of Joan; and, after he read it, Calvin banished most of the small residuum of doubt of Kettler's guilt and of the implication of Joan Daisy.

In one important respect only did Dads' testimony agree with Joan Daisy's—that is, with her second statement given personally to Calvin, that he was present and operating the radio when he heard "Home, Sweet Home" sung in Los Angeles; he swore also that Joan Daisy was definitely that Fred Kettler was present, not only during the entire performance, but for some half-hour before and for some time afterward when Kettler and she discussed several subjects—to wit, radio, national baseball games, also horse racing.
