

WHY DOCTORS FAIL AND MRS. PINKHAM SUCCEEDS

Plain Facts Are Here Given to Explain Why Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Cures When Doctors Are Powerless

A woman's sick; some disease peculiar to her sex is fast developing in her system. She goes to her family physician and tells him a story, but not the whole story.

She holds something back, loses her head, becomes agitated, forgets what she wants to say, and finally conceals what she ought to have told, and thus completely misleads the doctor.

It is no wonder, therefore, that the doctors fail to cure the disease. Still we cannot blame the woman, for it is very embarrassing to detail some of the symptoms of her suffering, even to her family physician.

It was for this reason that years ago Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., determined to step in and help her sex. Having had considerable experience in treating female ills with her Vegetable Compound, she encouraged the women of Canada to write to her for advice in regard to their complaints, and being a woman, it was easy for her to bring the details of their suffering to her attention.

In this way she was able to do for them what the physicians were unable to do, simply because she had the proper information to work upon, and from the little group of women who sought her advice years ago a great army of her fellow-beings are to-day constantly applying for advice and relief, and the fact that many thousands of them have been cured by following the advice of Mrs. Pinkham during the last year is indicative of the grand results which are produced by her unequalled experience and training.

No physician in the world has had such a training, or has such an amount of information at hand to assist in the treatment of all kinds of female ills from the simplest local irritation to the most complicated womb diseases.

This, therefore, is the reason why Mrs. Pinkham, in her laboratory at Lynn, Mass., is able to do more for the ailing women of Canada than the family physician. Any woman, therefore, is responsible for her own suffering who will not take the trouble to write to Mrs. Pinkham for advice.

The testimonials which we are constantly publishing from grateful women establish beyond a doubt the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to conquer female diseases.

CHAPTER VIII.

GRANDMA BISNETTE came from Canada to work for the Browers. She was a big, cheerful woman with a dialect, an amiable disposition and a swarthy, wrinkled face. She had a large front tooth that occupied all the leucis of her tongue.

When she sat at her knitting this big tooth clicked incessantly. On every stitch her tongue went in and out and across it, and I, standing often by her knees, regarded the process with great curiosity.

The reader may gather much from these frank and informing words of Grandma Bisnette: "When I los' my man, mon Dieu! I have two son. An' when I come across I bring him with me. Abe he rough, but den he no bad man."

Abe was the butcher of the neighborhood, but the hunched, stony hearted necessary man whom the Yankee farmer in that north country hires to do the cruel things that have to be done.

He wore ragged, dirty clothes and had a voice like a steam whistle. His rough black hair fell low and mingled with his scanty beard.

His hands were stained too often with the blood of some creature we loved. I always crept under the bed in Mrs. Brower's room when Abe came, he was such a terror to me, with his bloody work and noisy oaths.

Such men were the curse of the cleanly homes in that country. There was much to shock the ears and eyes of children in the life of the farm. It was a fashion among the help to decorate their speech with profanity for the mere sound of it, and the foul mouthings of low minded men spread like a pestilence in the fields.

Abe came always with an old bay horse and a rickety buckboard. His one foot on the dash as he rode gave the picture a daredevil finish.

The lash of his bull whip sang around him, and his great voice sent its blasts of noise ahead. When we heard a fearful yell and rumble in the distance we knew Abe was coming.

"Abe he come," said Grandma Bisnette. "Mon Dieu, he make de little rock fly!"

It was like the coming of a locomotive with roar of wheel and whistle. In my childhood as soon as I saw the cloud of dust I put for the bed and from its friendly cover would peek out often, but never venture far until the man of blood had gone.

To us children he was a marvel of wickedness. There were those who told how he had stood in the storm one night and dared the Almighty to send the lightning upon him.

The dog Fred had grown so old and infirm that one day he went for Abe to come and put an end to his misery. Every man on the farm loved the old dog, and not one of them would raise a hand to kill him.

Hope and I heard what Abe was coming to do, and when the men had gone to the fields that summer morning we lifted Fred into the little wagon in which he had once drawn the and, starting back to the barn, stole away with him through the deep grass of the meadow until we came out upon the highroad far below.

We had planned to take him to school and make him a nest in the wood shed, where he could share our luncheon and be out of the way of peril. After a good deal of difficulty and heavy pulling we got to the road at last.

The old dog, now blind and helpless, sat contentedly in the wagon while its wheels creaked and groaned beneath him. We had gone but a short way in the road when we heard the red bridge roar under rushing wheels and the familiar yell of Abe.

"Wed better run," said Hope, "er we'll git swore at."

I looked about me in a panic for some place to hide the party, but Abe was coming fast, and there was only time to pick up clubs and stand our ground.

"Here!" the man shouted as he pulled up alongside of it. "Where ye goin' with that dog?"

"Go way!" I answered, between anger and tears, lifting my club in a threatening manner.

I thought a moment. Then I put my hand in my pocket and presently took out my Jackknife—that treasure Uncle Eb had bought for me—and looked at it fondly.

Then I offered it to him. Again he laughed loudly. "Anything else?" he demanded, while Hope sat hugging the old dog that was licking her hands.

"Got 40 cents that I saved for the fair," said I promptly.

Abe backed his horse and turned in the road. "Waal, boy," he said, "tell 'em I've some sense."

Then his great voice shouted "Glang!" the lash of his whip sang in the air and off he went.

We were first to arrive at the school-house that morning, and when the other children came we had Fred on a comfortable bed of grass in a corner of the wood shed.

What with all the worry of that day I said my lessons poorly and went home with a load on my heart. Tomorrow would be Saturday; how were we to get food and water to the dog? They asked at home if we had seen old Fred, and we both declared we had not—the first lie that ever laid its burden on my conscience.

We both saved all our bread and butter and doughnuts next day, but we had so many chores to do it was impossible to go to the schoolhouse with them.

So we agreed to steal away that night when all were asleep and take the food from its hiding place. In the excitement of the day neither of us had eaten much.

They thought we were ill and sent us to bed early. When Hope came into my room about stairs late in the evening we were both desperately hungry. We looked at our store of doughnuts and bread and butter under my bed. We counted it over.

(TO BE CONTINUED.) Pain Across the Kidneys For Three Years.

Suffered Great Agony. Could Not Stoop or Bend.

No disease is so quiet and stealthy in its approach as kidney disease. That is why it is so dangerous. It may become deep-seated before you realize the danger.

It is therefore of great importance to recognize the early warning symptoms, because in its early stage kidney disease is easily curable. Pain or dull ache in the back is one of the first signs.

So are bladder pains, bearing-down pains, smarting sensation when urinating, frequent suppressed urination, and gravel or sediment in the urine, etc. You cannot be well if your kidneys are not performing their functions properly.

In all ordinary cases of any derangement of the kidneys, a few doses of DOAN'S KIDNEY PILLS will put the patient right; in old or chronic cases, the treatment should be persisted in.

Mr. Michael A. McInnis, Woodbine, Marion Bridge, N.S., tells of his experience. "For the last three years I suffered greatly with pain across my kidneys, and was so bad that I could not stoop or bend. I consulted and had several doctors treat me, but I got none the better.

On the advice of a friend I procured a box of that valuable life-giving remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, and to my surprise and benefit I immediately became better. In my opinion Doan's Kidney Pills have no equal as a cure for any form of kidney disease.

Price 50 cents per box, or 3 for $1.25. All dealers, or direct by mail. THE DOAN KIDNEY PILL CO., TORONTO, ONT.
