Food"—say "Shredded Wheat"—for while you no doubt mean Shredded Wheat, you may get one of those mushy porridges that are a poor substitute for the crisp, delicious shreds of baked whole wheat—that supply all the nutriment for a half day's work. Two Biscuits with milk or cream make a nourishing meal at a cost of a few cents.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by Catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Circulars free. All Druggists, 75c.

IN MEMORIAM

MR. CHARLES SMALLWOOD

The funeral of the late Charles Smallwood, blacksmith, takes place this afternoon at three o'clock, to the People's Cemetery. Mr. Smallwood, who died in the Prince Edward Island Hospital on Saturday, had reached the age of eighty-four years. He was a native of Prince Edward Island and learned the blacksmith trade with Mr. Jakeman in this city. He worked in the United States for several years, returned to the Island and bought a farm at Lot 48. Here he was engaged in farming and blacksmithing until the early seventies, when he returned to Charlottetown. For forty years, he carried on his trade in this city, until old age compelled his retirement, four or five years ago. Mr. Smallwood was one of the best known blacksmiths in this city and was an expert horseshoer; it has been said that no horse was too fractious for him to handle. He was a man of most genial temperament and was known as the youngest old man in the city, retaining his spirits and good cheer up to the very last. He leaves to mourn a widow, one daughter, Blanche, at home, and three sons, Dr. George, in Boston, who is coming home to attend the funeral, Lea in Colorado and Gay F. in the United States.

A PRUSSIAN SOLDIER'S DIARY

"WAR IS DESTRUCTION, WOUNDS, DEATH, HUMANITY IS A DANGEROUS ABSURDITY."

On the wooden steps of a creeper-covered cottage, in a little village between Birnal and Dinant, sat a Prussian soldier in the uniform of the 4th Company of Jagers. Not thirty yards away, red flames crept up through the roof and windows of a fine old farm house, and by its light the soldier entered up his diary.

"About 220 inhabitants were shot, and the village was burnt," he wrote. "All villages, chateau and houses are burnt down during the night. It is a beautiful sight to see the fires all round in the distance." (See Viscount Bryce's report on German outrages.)

He was about to close his diary, a blue book, interleaved with blotting paper, into which he wrote with a fountain pen, when his eyes lighted on a printed passage that was pasted upon the inside cover. He read it through, as he had read it a hundred times before.

"War is destruction, wounds, death, and this resort to brutal force is absolutely imperative," it ran. "As for that right of nations, about which its advocates talk so much, it imposes on the right of war merely insignificant and negligible restrictions. In war every idea of humanity is a blunder, a dangerous absurdity. The violence and brutality of combat admit no kind of limitation."

He closed the book, with this ruthless command of Clausewitz on his lips, that "immortal teacher" as he is called in Germany, and as he picked his way through the burning village to rejoin his troops, ample evidence confronted him at every step that war, as wrought by Prussia, is indeed "destruction, wounds, death."

Here, in his path, lay a child of three, its sides rent open by a bayonet thrust. "Humanity is a blunder," he reflected. Nearby a dead woman, horribly mutilated, was stretched upon the road, her hands clasped, as in an attitude of prayer. "Humanity is a dangerous absurdity," said he.

In the market square, the dancing, leaping flames of burning houses, lit up from every side the figure of men, women and children, lying prone to the ground, bloodstained, cruelly torn by bayonets, mutilated, many of them past human semblance. "The violence and brutality of combat admit of no kind of limitation," quoted the soldier.

The sky line north, southeast and west, was stained a deep crimson, where other villages had been given up to the fire and sword of Prussian invasion. "It is a beautiful sight to see the fires all round us in the distance."

These incidents happened over two years ago, but the hate of Prussia is vented upon the Belgian people today as ruthlessly as ever, and it is easy to imagine the German soldiers stationed at Liege or Brussels, writing in their diaries: "It is a great sight to see the Belgians dying of starvation, and led away into slavery."

Remember that the maintenance of this stricken nation rests solely upon our charity. If we fail to send them supplies, starvation is their inevitable lot. Cannot you help to keep alive at least one family, until their country is restored to them? Send your contribution to the Relief Committee in your town, or direct to the Belgian Relief Fund, at 59 St. Peter Street, Montreal.

NATIONAL SERVICE

To the Men of Prince Edward Island.

For the first time in our history an appeal is being made to the manhood of this Province to place their human energy at the disposal of the state for war purposes. A grave situation must be faced seriously. Hitherto during the course of this frightful conflict we have been content to let other men do most of the fighting, and to let other parts of the Empire pay most of the bills. The call from the front is insistent for men, and more men, and now that call comes to us stronger than ever before to give our man power and other available resources to "National Service."

We all know that the British Empire and its Allies are quite equal to the task before them, but what we do not appear to realize is the urgent need of mobolizing our men and material in order to strike such a blow as will effectively proclaim our strength to the whole world— the only way of securing a permanent peace.

The National Service Board of Canada has been charged with the duty of making a complete enrolment of the male population between the age of sixteen and sixty-five. For this purpose the present week has been specially named as "National Service Week," during which cards will be placed in your hands on which you are required to give such information as will enable the country's position in relation to this great struggle to be accurately judged. You are asked to give this information voluntarily, to fill out the answers to ALL questions on the card correctly, and to return it promptly. This is the duty of every man NOW. In performing this duty you do not take upon yourself any further obligation. There is no more law to compel any man to serve his country after filling in this card than there was before. It is simply a stock taking, such as all good business men practice at this season of the year. But bear in mind that the nation which has always given one hundred per cent protection to our lives and property, free of all cost to us, should be entitled to have both man power and material resources placed at her service in the hour of need.

National service does not necessarily mean active service overseas, though that is the highest form it can take at this time. Food and ammunition for the men at the front is just as essential as the men themselves. Consequently a man may "do his bit," just as effectively at home as he could by going to the front. The whole national service idea is that men and women shall volunteer to serve the state in whatever capacity their services may be valuable in this emergency.

The appeal is now urgently made to every man regarding the National Service enrolment as outlined above. Let Prince Edward Island's response be such as will place this Province in the lead with regard to it. Don't allow any consideration whatever to prevent your from having your card duly completed and returned this week, and don't fail to offer for service of some sort when making the return. Thus will your immediate duty to the nation be most acceptably performed.

If by any chance your card should not reach you, see or write your nearest postmaster who will supply you.

J. A. McDONALD,
Director National Service for P. E. Island.
