Liberal "Economy"

The following is from the Hansard report of the debates in Senate, June 16: Cardigan, P.E.I., Post Office Inquiry

Hon. John A. MacDonald inquired of the Government: 1. Has a second post office been established in the village of Cardigan, Prince Edward Island, during the present year?

Dr. Grant's constituents may well ask, in view of the foregoing explanation, why extra post-offices have not been established at Montague, Murray River, Murray Harbour South, St. Peters, Mount Stewart, Vernon Bridge, etc., etc.

Things have come to a bad pass when farmers get fined for speeding with farm tractors, yet this is what happened recently to a Saskatchewan farmer, Mr. E. E. Robinson.

Bengal Land Question

Keen and at times heated discussion in the Bengal Legislative Assembly about the Ministry's selection of Sir Francis Floud, British High Commissioner in Canada, to preside over the Commission that will examine Bengal's land revenue system ended in a talk-out—a division deciding that the question should not be put.

Lincoln Or Barnum?

It was Barnum, according to Mr. Bennett, who said: "You can fool some of the people all the time and all of the people some of the time."

the best authorities show some confusion in this matter. Bartlett's "Familiar Quotations" attributes the statement to Lincoln, says it was made to a caller at the White House and appears in Alexander K. McClure's "Lincoln's Varns and Stories," and quotes it as follows:

"If you once forfeit the confidence of your fellow citizens, you can never regain their respect and esteem. It is true that you may fool all the people some of the time; you can even fool some of the people all the time; but you can't fool all of the people all the time."

But Burton Stevenson's even larger "Home Book of Quotations" is not so certain of the source. It says the saying is attributed by William P. Kellogg to a speech made by Lincoln in Bloomington, Ill., on May 29, 1856, but also on the authority of one Spofford is credited to Barnum. And it phrases the bit differently:

"You can fool some of the people all of the time, and all of the people some of the time, but you cannot fool all of the people all the time."

So it may have been Lincoln, or it may have been Barnum. It may have been used by Lincoln in a speech at Bloomington, or casually to a White House caller. The wording may have been that of the Bartlett book, or the Stevenson book. But Mr. Bennett and Mr. Dunning will agree that in any event it was a remark of rare wisdom.

Editorial Notes

The Longest Day, 1938.

The Quebec Act, Charter of the French-Canadian's received royal assent this date, 1774.

The Bridge project has got another boost. We would like to know now what our senior representative, the Finance Minister, has got to say on the subject. His yea or nay makes all the difference.

The Commonwealth Cabinet has asked Great Britain to second Major-General Ernest Ker Squires to Australia for two years as Inspector-General of the Australian Army. General Squires has been Director of Staff Duties at the War Office since 1936.

The unexpected death of the Moderator of the Presbyterian Church will be more than ordinary loss as the whole denomination will be affected by the necessary reorganization. The probability is that the immediately preceding Moderator, Rev. Dr. H. Munroe of New Glasgow, will have to again assume office.

Where would we be today for trade were it not for the Bennett Imperial treaties? Export of cheese in May amounted to 37,257 cwt. of the value of $570,794 compared with 16,204 at $253,044 in the previous month and 24,466 at $358,536 in May, 1937.

Up to the present so-called "milk-wool" has been produced only in Italy, from which it took its commercial name "lana Italiana." A German textile concern in Thuringia has now commenced the manufacture of this fabric, the principal ingredient of which is the casein of skimmed milk contained in Silesia. For the present only small quantities of this textile are being manufactured in Germany, and most of this is used for making felt hats.

A preliminary statement released by the Dominion Bureau of statistics shows that there were 219,339 live births in Canada during 1937, giving an equivalent annual rate of 19.7 per 1,000 population, as compared with 220,371 births and a rate of 20.0 for 1936.

People are rather resentful at the suggestion of curfew laws now-a-days, but 50 years ago they were the rule rather than the exception where electric lights were in use.

Almost 40,000 birds were banded in Canada during 1937, the highest number for any year since this work was undertaken in Canada some fifteen years ago.

NOTES BY THE WAY

An Ontario dean asserts that coling of the Canadian five-cent piece "was a curse to the church." Still, it is not said for the nickel, but that it goes to church often than the bigger coins or dollar bills.

It is significant that it should have been found necessary to prod Italian papers into the support of the German attitude toward Czechoslovakia. Hitler's coup with regard to Austria manly still rangles.—Brantford Expositor.

A wit once insisted upon his right to spell "fish" as "ghoti." It was perfectly logical, he maintained; the "gh" pronounced as in "enough," the "o" as in "women," and the "ti" as in "attention."

Winston Churchill's jokes still enliven the House of Commons. During a recent debate on Britain's air forces he described Sir Arthur Wood, the new minister, who is short and round, as "a round peg in a square hole," while he implored the prime minister to remember the case of St. Anthony the Hermit.

The problem of preachers' salaries, with its varied and numerous ramifications, is one that has long engaged church conferences, but it still remains acute. Until it is the existing weaknesses of pastoral systems will continue.

Despite the stress and strain occasioned by unemployment and its attendant evils in this country have much to be thankful for. The truth of that statement stands out in bold relief when we hear new Canadians tell about the professional people who have to practice in order to make a living in parts of Central Europe.

Naturally the supreme court was not primarily concerned with the ethics of intercollegiate football when it decided to relax admissions to football games and other athletic contests sponsored by state universities. It was interested in the law and the facts.

Attracted ashore by high wages and short working hours, members of the crews of overseas vessels have been deserting to the ships at New Zealand ports in increasingly large numbers during the last few months.

A bill passed by the Legislature and now signed by the governor promises to end to a peculiarly vicious type of racketeering. Under its terms all persons raising or attempting to raise first be licensed by the director of the State Division of the Blind.

Will a time come when electricity plays a part in mosquito control? Scientists believe that it will, for it is possible to eliminate the male insects through the attraction of the music of electrical transformers.

That Body of Yours By James W. Barton, M.D.

THERE ARE OTHER SYMPTOMS IN DIABETES! BESIDES SUGAR IN THE URINE

As students we were taught that there were two kinds of diabetes. There was the true diabetes or mellitus, in which the patient had a big appetite, great thirst, had to pass his urine very often, there was sugar in the urine, and he was losing weight rapidly; and diabetes insipidus or false diabetes in which the patient had the great thirst and desire to pass the urine but there was no sugar in the urine.

The patient with true diabetes (sugar in the urine) usually died in a few weeks or a few months. This was discovered although many were kept alive for a long time by special diets low in starch and sugar.

Now that diabetes can be controlled, more interest is being taken in the disease and it has been found that there are many individuals who only discovered that they had diabetes when being examined for insurance or receiving a general check-up from the family physician.

The Doctor's Corner

FROM "RE-INCARNATION"

I who have seen am glad to close my eyes. I who have scared am weary of my work. I seek no more the secret of the wise. Safe among shadowy, unreal human things.

Blind to the gleam of those wild violet rays That burn and the rainbow's circle dim. Bound by dark nights and driven by pale days. The sighless slave of Time's imperious whim.

I go to seek with humble care and toil The dreams I left undreamed, the deeds undone. To sow the seed and break the stubborn soil. Knowing no brightness whiter than the sun.

Content in winter if the fire burns clear. And cottage walls keep out the creeping damp. Hugging the Old Illusion warm and dear. The Silence and the Wise Book and the Lamp.

Science And Mosquitos

Will a time come when electricity plays a part in mosquito control? Scientists believe that it will, for it is possible to eliminate the male insects through the attraction of the music of electrical transformers.

Research workers have discovered that the female mosquito uses "high C" in the tone scale of her call note. This, in turn, is the same vibration set up by transformers at radio stations. Thus, since radio stations attract swarms of male mosquitos queuing for their mates, this knowledge may result in a simple electrical device using a mild current to destroy insects coming in contact with it.
