BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES
(By Thornton W. Burgess)

A willing servant every day:
A terror when I get away.
—Fire.

Folks often are lucky and don't know it. It was so with Buster Bear in the Green Forest up on the Great Mountain. He really was a very lucky Bear. Yes, sir, he was so. But he didn't think so. He was sure he was the unluckiest Bear in all the Great World. He was running blindly, too frightened to see where he was going. He bumped into trees and tumbled over logs. He stepped in a hole he didn't see and fell head-long, picked himself up and ran, tripped over a stick and fell again. Never before in his whole life had he had such a terrible fright. No wonder he thought himself the unluckiest Bear in all the Great World. A tempest was just beginning, the kind of storm with lightning and thunder and wind and rain and sometimes hail. He was running for shelter under a

PUTTING LOW TRUMPS TO GOOD USE

The bidding in today's deal warned declarer about a bad trump break, and instead of trying to draw the trumps in normal fashion, he put his own low cards in the suit to better use.

South dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.
Match-point duplicate.

♠ K 8 8 ♠ Q J 10 5
♥ J 6 ♥ 3 2
♦ K 6 4 2 ♦ A 10 4 2
♣ 10 8 7 6 ♣ 9 8

W N E S
7 3 2
K 8 5 A 10 7 3
A Q J 4 3

This was the bidding at one table of the duplicate game:

South West North East
1 ♣ Pass 1 NT 2 ♣
3 ♣ Double Pass Pass

If North had responded properly to the one-club opening — with one diamond, not one no-trump — South would have had an easy three-diamond bid over East's two spades. As it was, East's rebid of three clubs was a stretch — but a fortunate one, combined with his handling of the doubled contract!

West opened the spade king. Dummy's ace won, and a low spade was immediately ruffed with the club three. A diamond was led to the king, and dummy's last spade was ruffed with the four-spot. Declarer now laid down the heart king. East won and returned a diamond. Declarer put up the ace and led a heart to the queen.

South had taken six tricks, and the blank king in East's hand solidified South's A-Q-J for three more tricks. The doubled contract was safe.

Observe that declarer would have been very ill advised to tempt the drawing of trumps with the view of establishing the diamond suit. Even if he could take three diamond tricks—a difficult feat—he would end up with those three diamonds, the spade ace, one heart trick and three top clubs. This would leave him a trick short. The contract's fulfillment depended on bringing home all five trumps in the closed hand, and the only way this could be done was by using the four and three as ruffers.

Last Will and Testament of Uncle Honeysuckle Yokum

On the eve of being hanged for murder, he bequeaths to the Yokums mah Sure-Fire, the never-Fail Plan for Peace.

The reason all other plans has flopped is because they are based on a left-brain mistake—namely, that people WANT to be nice to each other.

Nothin' could be wronger.

People wants to kick other people around. They loves it. It gives 'em a feelin' of superiority, the one ketch is that them which gets kicked, gets mad, and kicks back.

And there 'o' has the cause of all Trouble, and War.

Now the Uncle Honeysuckle Yokum, Sure-Fire, Never-Fail, Peace Plan is BASED on the indisputable fact that people ENJOYS ben mean to each other — if they thinks they kin git away wit' it.

People just ain't hoomin.
And so, sh bequeaths to yo' the KIGMIES, in recognition o' that fact.

RIP KIRBY
