Dentists of One Mind All Indorse Asher's Enamel

At the dental convention recently held in Montreal the leading dentists of Canada expressed themselves as being very favourably impressed with Asher's artificial enamel as a material for filling teeth.
That this material is the equal in all ways and in many respects the superior of gold for filling teeth is now generally conceded.

IONA---FODHLA.

desciples established themselves in the little Island of Iona on the coast of Mull in the year 563, Scotland was a pagan land. Columbkill was born in the North of Ireland about the year 521, and labored for some years in his native land but his name will always be suggestive of the glens and mountains of Scotland where for over a third of a century he preached the gospel to Pict and Scot. Iona became the great centre of Christianity for Scotland and the north of England, and from it the faith spread South preached by Scotch and Irish monks until they met the disciples of St. Augustine.

In 635 Aidan a monk of Iona on the invitation of the King Oswald of Northumbria, founded the famous monastery of Lindisfarne.

Fodhla, pronounced folya, with the o as in roll, is the name of the railway station at Iona. This name brings us back to the very mists of history to a time long anterior to the Christian era. As is well known Ireland was the only portion of western Europe undisturbed by the terrific political upheavals consequent on the extension of Roman dominion, and its final overthrow by the barbarous hoards of Northern Europe. The Irish were of the Celtic or first wave of Aryan neigration. The Celts of the mainland and of Britain were overwhelmed by the Romans and later by Huns, Goths or Vandals, and their old Celtic legends and records were last forever, but Ireland for a period of about 2500 years was untouched by serious invasion, and so remained the only country of Europe to preserve the Caltic records and legends.

So vast was the amount of old Irish literature that altho' scarcely one-tenth part has survived, Dr. Douglas Hyde asserts that besides the great number of Irish books published, there exist in the various libraries of Europe, manuscripts, which if printed would fill 1600 octavo volumes. Few, very few of the scholars of the greater island could read Irish and as a rule ignored this vast mine of ancient lore or sneeringly referred to it.

It remained for the Germans, those untiring students of modern times to unearth these treasures. To such men as Zeus and Zimmer are we indebted for the recognition of their value as bringing to light the life, customs, hopes and aspirations of the first people known in history to have inhabited Western Europe. Fodhla was the fifth name given to Ireland and was from the name of a Queen of the Tuatha De Danann one of the earliest races to inhabit Ireland.
