

OPPOSITION SEEKS TO RAISE MORE TROUBLE OVER THE CLOSURE

ZION CHURCH DEDICATION BY P. E. I. PRESBYTERY

Impressive and Beautiful Service. Eloquent Addresses by Prominent Clergymen--Presentation of Memorial Window from Mr. J. A. McLaren and Family.

The dedication of Zion Church last night by the Presbytery of Prince Edward Island was a most solemn and impressive ceremony. The church was completely filled, the sister denominations in city and country being well represented.

An elaborate program, artistically printed, and giving the hymns and responsive readings, was presented to the people on entering the church thus enabling all to take part in the service.

The Moderator of the Presbytery of Prince Edward Island, Rev. John Stirling, presided. Before the regular service began the choir sang very sweetly, hymn 375, "Saviour, breathe an evening blessing," after which the prepared program was rendered as follows: Invocation by the Moderator; Psalm 100; Responsive reading, Psalm 84; Prayer by Rev. E. J. Raittee; Scripture reading, Rev. A. McKay; Hymn 388; Prayer of dedication by Rev. George Miller; Words of dedication by the Moderator, the congregation reading the responses; Hymn 618; Address by the pastor, Rev. G. C. Taylor.

Rev. G. C. Taylor gave an eloquent and most interesting address weaving into a history of the congregation many helpful and timely lessons on duty, on faithfulness, on influence. The influence of the handful of devoted men and women who gathered in Murray's Hall in the early days of the congregation to worship God was felt in the building of the present splendid edifice which was a credit to the congregation and an ornament to the city. The effort they made, humble as was the result as compared with the present achievement, meant perhaps even a greater sacrifice than did the building of the new Zion. The thing to bear in mind was that each, in doing their duty faithfully, had contributed towards the present satisfactory standing of the congregation. God's "well done good and faithful servant" was not given because of great deeds done but because they had been "faithful over a few things."

After the singing of Hymn 462 Rev. D. B. McLeod, a former pastor of Zion congregation, gave an excellent address, reminding his hearers that while this was an occasion of rejoicing it was also a time of dedication and consecration. He made touching reference to those who had gone before and who now formed part of the "great cloud of witnesses" who, he believed, were still interested in the welfare of the church they so much loved while here. He said, after enjoying the bliss of Heaven, after seeing Jesus face to face, they were permitted to address their people again, with what power they would impress upon them the necessity of devotion and of consecration, and yet, he added, if we did not receive the message they delivered while here, "neither would we be persuaded though one rose from the dead."

Rev. Dr. Fullerton was the next speaker. Owing to the lateness of the hour he curtailed his remarks, confining himself to the complimentary reference to the splendid church edifice, its location and to the pastor for their great achievement. While reminding them of the duty and the value of external things he emphasized the need of consecration to the service of Christ to whom this church had been dedicated. In conclusion he said he had a duty to perform, namely, to formally present to the congregation the magnificent memorial window erected to the memory of the late Mrs. John A. McLaren. He made this presentation on behalf of Mr. McLaren and family. He had known her as a "mother in Israel" and no more fitting words could have been chosen to commemorate her life and her work than the beautiful text inscribed upon the window. He knew her when she felt that the things of earth were no longer for her; when she stood upon the drawbridge of death. It was a solemn pleasure to meet one with such faith. While sorrowing at the thought of leaving home she felt that in a greater and truer sense she was going home. And now, in that unseen galaxy that watches from that other shore he felt that she was still interested in the work and in the church she loved so well. In the name of the family he formally presented to the congregation the window dedicated to the glory of God the Father, God the Son and God the Holy Ghost.

The pastor, Rev. G. C. Taylor, on behalf of the congregation, thanked the donors of several valuable pieces of furniture, Mr. G. D. Wright for the pulpit, the Y. F. S. for the pastor's chair, ex-Governor D. A. McKinnon and Mr. John D. McKinnon for a chair each, the family of the late Rev. Dr. Falconer for the communion table and chair.

The singing of hymn 301 and the benediction brought the meeting to a close.

A RESOLUTION OF CENSURE MOVED

Charging Mr. Blondin With Infringing Rules and Violating Constitution--Resolution Defeated by 98 to 54.

OTTAWA, May 13--The third reading of the Naval Bill will be reached on Thursday and completed on Monday or Friday when the House will go on with the budget debate.

Most of today's sitting was devoted to an attack by the Opposition upon Deputy Speaker Blondin for sticking to the rules when Mr. Carroll attempted to get in a new clause on Saturday after the Prime Minister moved the Naval Bill be reported.

The onslaught upon the Deputy Speaker was evidently a studied effort to justify and lend an appearance of sincerity to the performance staged by Mr. Pugsley, Mr. Carroll and other Liberals members at the conclusion of the consideration of the bill in committee. At the bottom of it was a complaint that Mr. Blondin had prevented Mr. Carroll from presenting a proposed new section.

Opportunity for the introduction of this amendment was allowed to go by in order that a pretext for a disorderly outburst might remain to the Opposition after the new closure rules had been applied.

Speaking in debate Mr. Borden said Mr. Carroll might have offered his proposed section before notice of closure was given. He might have presented it before 2 o'clock in the Friday sitting if his colleagues had permitted a vote on a clause of the bill. He might still present it on the third reading.

The Opposition made its attack on Mr. Blondin by way of a formal resolution charging him with infringing the rules and violating the constitution by refusing Mr. Carroll permission to offer his proposed new section and by declining to put Mr. Pugsley's motion that the chairman leave the chair.

Apparently the majority in the House concurred in Mr. Borden's view that the Deputy Speaker was to be congratulated rather than censured and the resolution was defeated by 98 to 54.

(Special to The Guardian)

OTTAWA, May 13--Mr. MacDonald, Pictou, in introducing his motion said that Chairman Blondin had recognized the Prime Minister and had thus shut out the proposed amendment of Mr. Carroll of South Cape Breton. He also complained that the chairman had ignored the motion of Mr. Pugsley that he should leave the chair. He alleged that it had been understood that Mr. Carroll would be allowed to propose his amendment and charged chairman Blondin with having broken faith with Mr. Carroll and Mr. Borden by having taken advantage of a partisan ruling.

Mr. Arthur Meighan, Portage La Prairie, was surprised that the majority parties in Saturday's episode should wish to revert to the questions then raised. There had been no breach of faith. Mr. Pugsley's assertion that a false report had been made to the Speaker Mr. Meighan characterized as "scandalous." This epithet caused protest from the Opposition and was ruled out of order by the Speaker. Therefore Mr. Meighan substituted the word "shameful." Once more objection was taken to the expression and Mr. Meighan used the word "outrageous" and apologized for its inadequacy to express the idea. He went on to say that if Mr. Pugsley had spoken to a Judge as he had to the Deputy Speaker he would be behind prison walls.

Mr. Pugsley protested that this language was not parliamentary.

To this Mr. Meighan retorted that Mr. Pugsley's idea of parliamentary decorum was to stick his fist in the face of the Speaker.

FINE ADDRESSES IN ST. PAUL'S

Rev. Dr. Griffith-Thomas Gives Forceful and Convincing Lectures.

THE FACT OF THE BIBLE

There was another large and representative gathering, including clergymen from other denominations, at the afternoon address of Rev. Professor Griffith-Thomas, D. D., in St. Paul's Hall yesterday. Rev. T. W. Murphy presided. Dr. Griffith-Thomas remarked that the subject of his address was "The Fact of the Bible."

"Could we trust the Bible still? Was it as certain to us as it was to our forefathers? He submitted that it was as real and historical a certainty now as ever it was. The message of the Bible was unique--the message of salvation. It was the only book that contained satisfaction to the seeker after salvation. It brought comfort to the sorrowful, strength to the weak, hope to the downcast and despairing. The power of the Bible was unique; its power in human thought--all the masterpieces of literature were indebted to the Bible. It was infinitely more true of philosophy--there was not one of the system that was unaffected by the Bible. Its influence on literature and philosophy, on thought in general, was absolutely without precedent. Then there was the power of the Bible on the individual life--its missionary influence wherever it was to be found was unique. The preservation of the Bible was unique--it was the preserve, not the reserve, of the church--the word Church in its widest sense, the body of all believers. The Bible was unique in the face of scientists--its ideas were true, its words were true, its Christ was true; it embodied divine revelation. The Bible was historically trustworthy and spiritually efficacious to lead a man from earth to heaven, from time to eternity. The Bible was supremely authoritative--it contained all that was necessary to salvation. Nothing was more trustworthy than tradition, but here they had the written word which stands. The Bible called for a test of attention which meant merely attention with intention and stood the test of trust and obedience. The Bible was a foundation for trust, love and hope, contained milk for babes, food for men and honey to please the spiritual palate.

Col. J. A. Currie regretted that it had been necessary to change the rules. Almost from the beginning of the debate, however, Dr. Pugsley and others had declared their intention to obstruct the passage of the naval bill. For instance on Friday night they had been determined to cause such a scene as would lead to their being carried out on a stretcher. St. Currie took the member for St. John to Toronto and paraded him there?

"Order," "order," came again from the Opposition. Mr. Speaker reminded Col. Currie that he must not depart from the question before the House.

"Well, Mr. Speaker," replied Col. Currie, "after listening to such speeches as have been heard in the House during the last four months, it is difficult to keep to the question." He hoped that members who followed him would keep to the question and submit promptly to the ruling of the chair.

Mr. D. D. McKenzie, North Cape Breton, said that the policy of the government was to gag and strangle free speech.

Mr. Middlebro, North Grey, said that the House was asked to censure the Deputy Speaker for doing what both party leaders thought he should do. The Opposition, Mr. Middlebro said, had surrendered control to rough housers on that side.

Mr. Oliver said that the closure had been adopted to save the government the necessity of going to the people.

Right Hon. Mr. Borden said that the Deputy Speaker had a very trying session and conducted himself in an impartial manner. He pointed out that the Opposition, Mr. Middlebro said, had surrendered control to rough housers on that side.

Mr. Oliver said that the closure had been adopted to save the government the necessity of going to the people.

COOD HAS FIVE FEET... SEVENTY DOLLAR ORE.

(From "Nevada State Journal," May 1st.)

With a consistency that is remarkable the showing in the wonderful Cood lease on block 2 of the Crown Point No. 1 is getting bigger and better every day, proving beyond question that this property in the Rochester Hills Mining company will develop into one of the biggest silver mines in the west.

Last week the south draft on the 117-foot level ran into five feet of $70 ore, placing this lease on a par with the wonderful Big Four lease that has shipping ore for a year in sight.

Two drifts are being run in the Cood lease to the north and south, the vein having been developed for a distance for a 100 feet on the 117-foot level. In the north drift they are breaking down nine feet of $40 ore and every pound of rock brought from either face is going into the bins.

Last Sunday the new compressor was put in operation running two drills and the ore is being taken out at the rate of a carload a day. Within another week this output will be doubled providing no hitch occurs in the present arrangements for getting the ore to the railroad.

A contract has been made with the Western Ore Purchasing company at Hazen to handle all the ores from the Cood lease and some mill returns are promised next week which will be given full publicity.

One of the remarkable characteristics of the big vein in the Cood vein is the uniformity in placement, the footwall extending almost straight and as even as the wall of a house.

Under the management of James McDonald it has been developed into an ideal mine. The stopes are absolutely dry and besides the compressor and drills the mine is equipped with a blower that keeps the air clean. From a prospect to a producing mine of better than a carload a day in three months, the Cood lease takes its place among the mining wonders of Nevada.

SALONIKI, May 12--Two Bulgarian military trains came into collision last night between Drama and Buk. One hundred persons were killed and three hundred injured.

SHENANDOAH ESCAPES BERG

HALIFAX, May 12--What possibly would have been a disaster to the Furness liner Shenandoah by collision with an iceberg in a mid-Atlantic fog was prevented during the run from London ending yesterday by her recently installed wireless telegraphy with which she was making her first voyage.

Last Thursday evening the Marconi operator picked up a message from the ice patrol steamer Seneca warning him that large bergs were dead ahead on his path for fifty miles. Shortly before this flash came, the Shenandoah's officers, seeing that she had entered the danger zone and that a heavy blanket of fog enveloped the ship, slowed down the engines and at reduced speed and under a cautious lookout permitting her to venture forward. But, learning that they were so seriously imperilled, they had the big freighter swung round at right angles to her course which now shifted almost due south. Making eleven knots an hour she headed in this direction for three hours, when the course was altered for Halifax.

The Shenandoah, when viewed from the dead "phantoma" of the deep" was proceeding along the southern "lane" frequented by transatlantic liners, but travelling even along in latitude 46 north and longitude 46 west, did not render navigation free from the possibility of the accident as is evidenced by the fact that she was compelled to steam on a line thirty-five miles to the southward.

OFF STEAMSHIP TRACK

WASHINGTON, May 12--The British freighter Chiltern Range, which collided with an iceberg to the east of the Newfoundland banks on her voyage from Hull to Montreal, was fully 200 miles out of the steamship track, according to a report by the naval hydrographic office to-day. Officials said the freighter was in a field which her captain must have known was full of ice.
