Woman's Realm / Social and Personal / Fashions / Literature

Every Day Styles For The Home Sewer

Here are the new smooth fitting undies....designed to give a high bust, small waist and hips. What a grand surprise for Christmas in black or in the new fall street shade washable crepe silk or crepe satin for the new fullskirted dresses. A tailored effect is accomplished by finishing the edges with selfbias binds. They take so little effort and material to sew them ....are made at a tremendous saving in cost. Of course dainty white and pastel crepe are always welcome. Sheer batiste, voile, chiffon is exquisitely lovely with all the edges rolled by hand .... with an embroidered motif, if you like a little more femininity. All you need is 1 1-4 yards of 39-inch material with 3 yards of lace for the 16 year size.

Style No. 3335 is designed for sizes 12, 14, 16, 18, 20 years, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38 and 40-inches bust.

Send fifteen cents (15) in stamps or coin (coin preferred) wrap coin carefully, address to Charlottetown Guardian giving

Style No. 3335 Size... ... .

Name

Street Address

City Province

Thes best preparation for a life o come is to live now and here.

PROVERB DISPROVED

Mrs.: "Ho, hum .... least said soonest mended!"

Mr.: Huh! I haven't referred to the top button being off my shirt for three months—and it isn't on yet!"

RAIL ROUTE

CORNER BROOK, Nfld. —(CP)—Thirty thousand tons of newsprint will be shipped out of Corner Brook to Port aux Basques by rail during the months navigation is closed on Humber Arm, according to estimates made.

To-Day's Popular Design

By Carol Aimes

EMBROIDERY MOTIFS
DESIGN NO. 703

Miss Aimes receives at least 200 votes for each design before it is accepted for this column. Send us your votes. We print all the popular designs.

Dear Readers: Nothing is more to be desired than the "personal" touch on lingerie or household linens, and surely there is no better way to set them apart as one's own than by dainty touches of hand embroidery. These designs are exquisite forthis purpose and, too, you will find a multitude of uses for them now that the gift season is drawing near.

Pattern includes transfer sheet of assorted designs with two complete alphabets, letters 2¼" high, stitch guides and suggested colors.

Send 20 cents, coins preferred.

Pattern Order Form—To be used when ordering Patterns and Voting for POPULAR DESIGNS.

To The Charlottetown Guardian
Needlework Dept.

DESIGN NO. 703

Name. ——————————

Street Address ——————————

City —————————— State ——————————

I suggest the following as a
POPULAR DESIGN ——————————

All reproduction rights to this Design reserved.

JUST RIGHT FOR THEM!

● Healthy, playful children use up plenty of energy; outdoor workers do, too. They all need lots of BEMA Extra Fancy Table Molasses because it's such a nourishing, energizing food.

Use it as a spread for bread... on pancakes... for cakes, muffins, cookies, etc. It's good all ways.

Sold in bulk AT YOUR GROCER'S

BEMA BRAND BARBADOS MOLASSES

"THE ORIGINAL PRODUCT—NOT A BLEND"

The Housewife and Her Activities

God bless the heart of sunshine
That smiles the clouds away,
And sets a star of fresh-born hope
In someone's sky each day.
God bless all words of kindness
That lift the heart from gloom,
And in life's barren places
Plant flowers of love to bloom.

DO NOT DISDAIN GOOD MANNERS

Lena E. Misener, dean of women, tells Oklahoma City University students how to behave in her new treatise on etiquette, "White and Gold Book."

Among things frowned up by the O.C.U. dean is public spooning. She writes that it is possible for a boy and girl to walk together without stringing their arms around each other's waists

"It is poor taste to show marked affection for one another in public," says the book. "The world is not especially interested in such soulful drama."

Other don'ts:

Don't dance while smoking. You may singe the lady' hair or burn down the house.

Don't ignore the alumnus who has returned for a good time. Help him along.

Don't fail to express "audible thanks' for small favors.

Dean Misener avers that she believes everyone should "enjoy himself to the untmost" as long as he refrains from undignified conduct."

In the preface to the book she reminds: "Do not disdain good manners for in so doing you admit a weakness in your own self."

SLEEP ESSENTIAL TO HEALTH AND BEAUTY

It is important that the health and beauty - conscious woman should get not only a reasonable number of hours of sleep each night, but that the sleep is of the restful vitalizing variety. Your bed ought to be absolutely comfortable, the room well ventilated, the covers light though warm, the sheets smooth and well tucked under the foot of the mattress. There's no better investment for a home than excellent springs and mattresses. Better to economize on rugs or dishes or cutains than on beds, pillows and bed linen.

OLD-FASHIONED PEWTER RETAINS CHARM

Old pewter which has become darkened can usually be cleaned and brightened by polishing carefully with a paste made of whiting and water. Several applications may be necessary to restore its satiny gloss. Pewter is a soft metal and extreme care should be taken never to use a harsh or abrasive cleanser on it. Present day pewter, however, is so compounded that it does not tarnish readily. Ordinary washing, rinsing and thorough drying should keep its lustre glowing.

AFRICA FLIGHT

By VAL GIELGUD

"You are not frightened yourself, Herr Flesch?"

"No, particularly. The War seems a very long time ago now, does it not, Mrs. Manson? People have forgotten. But men like your servant, Saunders, and I, we have not forgotten. We were both in the salient at Ypres in '17—on opposite sides, trying our hardest to kill each other. Which now seems a trifle absurd, nicht wahr? For weeks we lived, and slept, and ate, in mud up to our knees. We lay out at night on patrol and watched the semicircle of fire riving the darkness. We found our clothes sticky with our friends' blood and brains. I was very much afraid then, though I was a young man and strong. That is why I think I am now not afraid—yet."

"I LOATHE THIS SILENCE"

Janet Manson looked away through the window at the horribly brilliant shifting light flickering over the desert.

"I am ashamed of myself," she said briskly. "I feel better already."

Whereupon Otto Flesch surprised her.

"I hoped that might be the result," he said.

At which moment Saunders walked into say that Kerr had calmed down immediately upon Carol's entry into the tent. He was, apparently, now holding one of her hands hard, sleeping, and grinning in his sleep.

But this apparently did not amuse Janet Manson. "I'm not at all sure," she said, "that that young man isn't considerably cleverer than we gave him credit for. If he's asleep he won't notice whose hand he's holding, so he may as well have mine. If he isn't asleep he doesn't deserve a hand to hold at all!"

She left the 'plane hurriedly, leaving the two ex-soldiers to exchange amused glances, that held in them a considerable degree of admiration.

"And what is your opinion of this trouble we're in, Saunders?" asked Flesch at last, in his precise English.

The servant walked to the door of the plane, spat deliberately out on to the sand, turned round, and winked one eye ponderously.

"I try not to think," he said "I found out in the War the best thing to do. Trust your officer, and do what you're told—pretty quick!"

The German observed that was all right if the officer was a good officer.

"Well you can take it from me, this Mr. Larrimore's a good officer," said Saunders stubbornly. "And what he says goes in this outfit!"

"Certainly a fine pilot."

"And that's not all, Mister Flesch. And if you know what Mr. Larrimore isn't just take a look at that Sothern bloke by way of contrast—"

He broke off, for Flesch had made a queer violent gesture. Behind. Saunders, Antony Sothern was standing at the top of the little flight of steps leading to the door of the 'plane. His eyes narrowed, and there was a queer flush on his cheeks.

"Saunders!"

"Yes, sir."

"Go and ask the Professor and Mr. Larrimore if I can have a word with them, please."

"Yes, sir."

Saunders went through into the pilots cockpit, and Sothern swung round on Flesch.

"I don't want to appear fussy," he said, "but I'd be glad if you wouldn't discuss my character with a servant behind my back."

Flesch spread out his hands apolegetically.

"Not that I care" Sothern went on harshly. "We've other things to talk about. It's about time the superefficient Mr. Larrimore came to a conclusion or two. Perhaps I haven't learned how to look on that kind of efficiency with patience. I don't mind Larrimore being strong—but Gad! How I loathe his not being silent!"

Flesch said nothing. The door into the pilot's cabin opened, and Larrimore peered out.

"What's the trouble?" he asked impatiently.

SOMEONE MUST MARCH

Sothern did not reply directly to Larrimore's question, and both Hubert Manson, looking over the latter's shoulder, and Otto Flesch became suddenly and acutely aware of the intense and personal antagonism between the two men. Sothern straightened his tall figure, stiffening all over. Flesch, with that sensitiveness to atmosphere which is one of the peculiar properties of his race, felt that the younger man was, as it were, tightening every muscle in readiness for a conflict which might easily take physical form at short notice.

But perhaps Sothern altered his mind—perhaps he was daunted by Lorrimore's complete lack of reaction—perhaps he was not yet quite ready . . . "I don't want anything special," said Antony Sothern coolly, "except that I feel that we ought to begin to do something active. I'm pretty sure you feel the same thing, Larrimore. So I'm curious—that's all."

Larrimore smiled with his lips, but not at all with his eyes.

"I was just getting the Professor here to do the necessary preliminary brainwork," he said.

Hubert Manson—like the proverbial Elder Oyster—shook his head, as if implying that when it came to a matter of practical calculation, he had few advantages over Rupert Larrimore.

"Preliminary!" repeated Sothern. "May I ask to what?"

"You may," said Larrimore ironically. "It's simply this. In my view the betting is heavily against our being found where we are. We're miles off the course we were supposed to be flying. The water we have left is more than limited. And young Kerr's injury, leaving other things aside, stops us from making a march of it as a party———"

(To be Continued)

Household Scrapbook

(By ROBERTA LEE)

Making a Hole in Glass

A hole in glass can be made by first covering the area where the hole is to be with putty, and making a hole the size desired in the putty. Then pour into this hole a little melted lead, and if the glass is not exceptionally thick, a perfect hole will result.

Ink-Stained Hands

If the hands are stained with ink, rub the spots thoroughly with a ripe tomato, or with the inside of a banana peel, and see how readily the stains will be removed.

Poached Eggs

When poaching eggs, put a long-handled spoon into the water and hold the egg on it for a moment. This will prevent its sticking to the pan.

THE COOK'S CORNER

PRUNE PUDDING

2 cups whole wheat bread crumbs
1-2 cup milk
1 cup prune pulp
1 tablespoon butter
3-4 cup sugar
1 4 cup prune juice
2 beaten eggs
Juice of 1 2 orange

Mix crumbs with milk and prune juice, add eggs and butter slightly melted, then sugar and fruit. Stir well. Put in a buttered dish and bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve with cream.

Dorothy Dix

What Mothers Should Do For Sons — Teach Them to Be Good Husbands

As a Son is Trained in the Home, so He Will Become as a Husband, so Mothers Need to be Watchful Over the Young Men Before Marriage

"When I think of my mother-in-law," said a woman to me the other day, "I do not know whether to regard her as my greatest benefactor, or look upon her as my dearest enemy. Sometimes I am down on my knees before her for the good man she gave me. Then osmetimes I think she ought to go before a firing squad for not teaching him the technique of being a good husband.

"There is no excuse for her not having done this, for every woman knows the kind of husband every wife craves and what things turn marriage from being a chore into being Paradise. And she also knows that these things have more to do with his manners than with his morals.

"Why, then, knowing that Charlie would some day marry, didn't she teach him to make paying his wife a daily compliment as much a part of his ritual as brushing his teeth? It would set me up for the whole day to be told that he still considered me a Lady Love and not just a useful household convenience. I would spring with joy from my couch and leap to the kitchen to get breakfast for a man who would rave over my coffee and praise the toast and eggs and tell me that I was the greatest wife ever. But it makes me feel like a driven slave to have to do it for a husband who gobbles down his food and never gives me a pat on the head, or says, 'Well done thou good and faithful servant.'

"And why didn't she teach him while love is enough for courtship it takes money to underwrite a home? It would save many a man a shock from which he never recovers if his mother had made him devour the monthly bills along with his spinach. Then even in the cradle he would have known that wives don't grow their own fine feathers as birds do. He would know that wives can't make a few passes with their hands over a cookstove and conjure up steaks and chops and pies out of the air and he would know that having a baby costs just about as much as it does to set up a yacht.

"Why didn't she impress it so deeply upon Charlie's infantile mind that it would have stuck that a wife is entitled to some of the money she earns by her services in the house, even if she can't give notice and quit when her husband doles out chicken feed to her and makes her come like a beggar to him for every penny? It would have saved us a million fights on the money question and kept me from seeing red when he talks about supporting me after I have put in a fourteen-hour day cooking and baby-tending and doing the innumerable odd jobs that must be done to keep a home running on oiled bearings.

"Why didn't she teach him along with the catechism that little things bulk larger than big things with women, that they put more stress on words than deeds, and that they would rather have their perquisites than their rights? Why didn't she teach him that the way to get along with a wife is to use the salve-spreader instead of the hammer?

"Charlie thinks he pays me a compliment and that I am tickled to death when he tells me how sensible I am; that he doesn't always have to be honeying me up and telling me how beautiful and wonderful I am because I just take it for granted that he loves me, or else he wouldn't work himself to death to keep me soft and easy. Why didn't she wise him up to fact that being practical about love is always a bluff with a woman; that I am dying to be petted and made much of, and to be given a few white hyacinths instead of being fed on the filet mignon?

"And oh, how I wish she had taught Charlie to be neat and orderly, to hang up his clothes on hooks instead of the floor and not to leave the bathroom looking as if it had been wrecked by a cyclone. How many backaches that would save me!

"For, you see we daughters-in-law are absolutely at the mercy of our mothers-in-law. We have to take what they give us because they fashion the men we marry. They form their little boys' manners and habits and points of view. By the time little Johnny and Charlies are 6 year old Mother has settled whether they are going to be God's gift to some lucky girl, or a pain in the neck to some patient wife. And there is nothing that the wife can do about it. Mother has got in her work first.

"I know nothing else so tragic as that virtually every mother prays that her own daughter won't get the kind of a husband she is rearing for some other woman's daughter."

DOROTHY DIX.

Modern Etiquette

(By ROBERTA LEE)

Q. Is it good manners for a guest to comment on the food served in a friend's home?

A. Yes, provided she can say how delicious it is, or praise some particular dish that she knows her hostess takes pride in. It is of course very rude for a guest to say, "I have never cared for salads." or, "I do not like lemon pie."

Q. What does it indicate when a young man talks continuously about himself, his accomplishments, his business success, and his experiences?

A. It indicates that he is very vain and conceited. This type of young man is soon considered a bore, and seldom has but few friends.

How Can I ? ?

(By ANNE ASHLEY)

Q. How can I treat candles so that they will last much longer?

A. Give them a coat of white varnish. Let them dry for a day or two before using. Besides burning longer, this will prevent the wax from dripping down on the holder.

Q. How can I furnish coffee to my guests at a party if they outnumber the cups I can obtain from my percolator?

A. Make the coffee doubly strong and when pouring, add boiling water to each cup. This will prove very satisfactory in an emergency.

Q. How can I exterminate roaches?

A. Use one part of borax to three parts of finely pulverized chocolate. Sprinkle this freely about the places infested by the roaches.

New Ways to Tell Thrilling Fortunes

Every Domino Has Its Meaning

Clever Lucy! Always some exciting stunt for entertaining friends. This time she's reading the three dominoes which Bert turned up after she shuffled them.

"Dear me," Lucy begins, reading the five-blank and six-four. "I see your sweetheart, but sure as fate you're going to have a quarrel with her." Glancing at the four-three she reassures him, "Don't worry. It will come out all right—a happy ending."

What do the other dominoes mean? The six-blank says "a scandal!" The one-one means "reunion."

Another exciting way to tell fortunes is to draw a circle with chalk on a table and learn the fate of fortune seekers by casting dice into the mystic circle.

Or as you sit in front of the fire some stormy night, throw salt into the flame and look for prophecies in the weird shapes that appear.

Our 32-page booklet gives meanings of all the dominoes. Tells how to read fortunes with cards, tea leaves, horoscopes.

Send 20c in coins for your copy of Fun With Fortunetelling to the Guardian Home Service, Address. Be sure to write plainly your Name, Address, and the Name of booklet.

Name

Street Address

Town Province

IT'S FATAL FOR ANY JOB-HUNTER TO TAKE CHANCES OF OFFENDING WITH "B.O."

...says Detroit Personnel Counsellor

Carol B. Dearvang tells why she always recommends Lifebuoy for lasting freshness

"AS PERSONNEL COUNSELLOR, I KNOW PERSONAL NEATNESS COUNTS A GREAT DEAL IN JOB-HUNTING...IT IS FATAL FOR ANY JOB-HUNTER TO TAKE CHANCES WITH 'B.O.'...

"I ALWAYS RECOMMEND LIFEBUOY FOR LASTING FRESHNESS. WE'VE FOUND NO ORDINARY SOAP STOPS 'B.O.' AS LIFEBUOY DOES....

"PERSONALLY, NOTHING RELAXES ME AS MUCH AS A LIFEBUOY BATH...I LIKE LIFEBUOY'S CREAMY LATHER AND IT'S FRESH, CLEAN SMELL"

Here's why no ordinary soap stops "B.O." as Lifebuoy does...

MILLIONS know that Lifebuoy is different. Its lather is rich, lively and abundant—makes you look and feel extra clean. And a daily Lifebuoy bath stops "B.O." as no ordinary soap does. For Lifebuoy contains an exclusive purifying ingredient not found in any other popular toilet soap! This ingredient makes it milder; grand for the complexion, too. Better put it on your shopping list — the whole family will like Lifebuoy!

LIFEBUOY HEALTH SOAP

Approved by Good Housekeeping Bureau

Christmas Gifts Made At Home

SEW THESE CUNNING CHRISTMAS GIFTS

Pattern No. E-854. Tiny girls will love these stuffed toys. They are made from just scraps of material from the rag bag. Turkish toweling is especially nice for the lamb and cotton terry cloth for the duck and ducklings. The features are embroidered or painted with textile paints. Price 15 cents.

Pattern No. 2610. The Empire period inspired this darling high waisted dress that buttons down the back. The skirt allows plenty of freedom for activities or romping youngsters with its double boxplait at the front and soft gathers at the back. Besides cottons, wool crepe and velveteen are ever so lovely for this easy dress. It is designed for sizes 2, 4, and 6 years. Size 4 requires 2 yards of 39-inch material with 1-2 yard of 35 inch contrasting.

Send fifteen cents (15) in stamps or coin (coin preferred) wrap coin carefully address to Charlottetown Guardian giving

Style No. E-854 and 2610. Size ..

Name

Street Address

City Province

A Morning Smile

YOUR MORNING SMILE

Choir Boy: What made you resign from the choir?

Ex-Choir Boy: I was absent one Sunday, and some one asked if the organ had been mended.

TILLIE THE TOILER — FAR FROM "DEAD" SILENCE

By Westover

Copr 1938, King Features Syndicate, Inc., World rights reserved.