A Trip To Churchill

(By Fred M. Batt)

On May 4th, 1929, we left Charlottetown, P. E. Island, for Churchill, Manitoba, a journey of some four thousand miles, where the Canadian Government have undertaken a huge task of making Fort Churchill into a port of shipping grain, in view of it being a shorter and cheaper route to the old country.

Our first stop-off on our journey was Ottawa, where upon our arrival we were notified that we may have to remain in the Capital for about ten days, owing, as they told us to the severe snow storms and blizzards which were then raging all along the northern route through which we were to pass.

Plans Are Changed

Much to our surprise we received orders to leave for Winnipeg after only a two days' stay in Ottawa. So once again we were starting on our journey, never knowing how far we might get. However, we arrived in Winnipeg on May 9th, leaving very early the following morning for "The Pas", the last outpost in civilization.

"The Pas"

On our arrival in "The Pas", we were met by a gentleman, Captain Pence, who is very well known to a great many up north, having made a number of trips both by land and sea through most of that northern country.

We were taken to a hotel where we had been expected, and where a wonderful dinner had been made ready for us; and to this, as you may suppose, we did full justice. After dinner we were all taken into a room where we were given a sort of railway pass and were informed by Captain Pence that at a Hudson Bay Post along the line, we would be stopped overnight, where a doctor was posted, who would come aboard our train and inoculate everyone against typhoid fever, as he told us that it was spreading all up through

BIRTHDAY PARTY—Miss Wilhemina Gaudet, entertained a number of her friends at an enjoyable birthday party at her home, 108 Prince Street, Thursday evening. The event was really a double celebration as the date was also the anniversary of the birth of her mother, Mrs. J. B. Gaudet, who was also showered with congratulations and three hearty cheers by the guests. Games and music passed the evening very pleasantly after which a delightful lunch was served.

INTERESTING TRAVELOGUE—A very interesting travelogue was given in Trinity Church, last night. The Rev. F. A. Robinson of Toronto, who has crossed the Dominion twenty five times in the interests of Biblical education spoke of his two journeys through Palestine and the Near East. Dr. Robinson paid a glowing tribute to the wisdom Great Britain had manifested in exercise of the mandate, and quoted several outstanding leaders of other nations who claim no other power on earth could have accomplished what Britain had in Palestine. Those attending the travelogue were agreed that no finer views had ever been exhibited in Charlottetown. Miss Grace Robinson of Toronto gave great enjoyment in the singing of two illustrated songs. Dr. Robinson and his daughter are taking part in both services at Trinity Church on Sunday and also in the Y. M. C. A. meetings.

Sports Held on Dominion Day

Ships were all decorated with flags and sports were also held both ashore and on the water.

On shore, jumping, running, boxing and a number of other different ways for making merry were carried out. On the water canoe and dory racing was in full swing, but no one ever mentioned swimming.

A special race was also put on for the Indians, who were more than pleased to know that they were going to take part in the sports. Each of the contenders received a slab of bacon, the Minister, Rev. Mr. Gibson, was the starter of this race, being able to speak the Indian language frequently.

Very Artistic Work

Both the Indian and Eskimo are noted for the artistic beaded work that they put on the moccasins, eld-downs, hand bags and numerous other articles of which they make and decorate, some of which we brought home with us. The clothing which adorns them is mostly trimmed with white fox fur. This fox is very common in the north but lately the blue fox has found its way to that land and, it is claimed, is chasing the white fox farther north.

Seals and walrus are also to be found in large numbers and not forgetting the polar bear, which indeed is widely known in the Northland. One of these bears was shot just outside the harbor, the skin proved to be very beautiful.

Historic Notes

In 1619 King Christian IV of Denmark sent an expedition to discover a northwest passage to East India.

The expedition was led by Captain Jens Munk and Pastor Rasmus Jensen Aathus, chaplain.

There were two ships, the "Enformingen" with 48 men and the "Lamprenen" with 18 men.

The expedition sailed on May 9th, 1619, and entered Hudson Bay in August, and wintered at the mouth of the Churchill River.

Owing to lack of proper food, scurvy broke out and 63 persons, including the chaplain, and the mates of the two ships, who were Englishmen, perished.

Only three persons survived, the Captain and two others. These took the smaller ship and managed to work their way back to Denmark arriving home in September 1620. Pastor Aathus was the first Christian minister to hold service and administer Holy Communion at Churchill.

Fifty years later the Hudson's Bay Company of gentlemen adventurer's was formed and in 1688 Churchill was occupied and a wooden fort was built 240 years ago. This was replaced by a stone fort finished in 1748, 180 years ago, called Fort Prince of Wales, the ruins of which still stand. The Church of England began missionary work at Churchill in 1863 among the Chipewyan Indians and the employees of the Hudson's Bay Company.

Other Interesting Notes

On another large rock is engraved the following name: S. Hearne, July VI, 1677. This gentleman was the discoverer of the famous Copper Mine River.

The only white woman that lives in Churchill is the Rev. Mr. Gibson's wife. Mr. Gibson is a Church of England missionary and they are very fine and interesting people to talk to.

It was about July 3rd before the steamer and dredges were able to leave the wharf to go out into the stream on account of ice, and during the time before that, it was very interesting to see the Eskimos and Indians travelling with their dog teams.

When the harbor was free of ice they used their canoe, which is called a "Kayak", this boat being also famous for them for hunting in.

Much Ground Covered

Two large dredges and two hopper barges along with three tugs were used in taking the mud outside the harbor to the dumping grounds.

The dredges are exceptionally large their spuds each weighing thirty-eight tons with a fifteen ton bucket. Very few mishaps were encountered, although the digging was, at times, very hard, often bringing large boulders up to the surface.

On one occasion, one of the dredges, in making a dip and upon bringing her bucket to the surface, had it split from the teeth to the bottom of the bucket. Some claimed it happened on account of the frost in the ground below the surface. There is no doubt about the great depth of frost, for while a number of men were engaged in digging a foundation for a turn-table for the C. N. R., they were twenty-two feet down and still into the frost. I have a picture of the scene in my possession.

During the summer months we worked night and day, there being only one hour's darkness in the twenty-four. In the winter months it is just the opposite, it being all darkness.

At certain times of the tide we used to get fresh water for the ship's boilers and also to drink, but I remember at one time we had spring tides, and for three or four days we had nothing to drink or cook with but salt water, and it was sure pleasing to us all when the fresh water came again.

On Nov. 4th, we left Churchill for home, arriving back on Nov. 25th better travelling accommodations being experienced than on going in, as the rails had been completed. It is expected that Fort Churchill will be opened for visitors next year and it is claimed that a great number of tourists are anxious to visit this new Port of Adventure.
