

DR. WOOD'S NORWAY PINE SYRUP

This wonderful cough and cold medicine contains all the very fine principles which make the pine woods so valuable in the treatment of all lung affections. Combined with this are Wild Cherry bark and the soothing, healing and expectorant properties of other pectoral herbs and oils.

For Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Pain in the Chest, Asthma, Croup, Whooping Cough, Hoarseness or any affection of the Throat or Lungs, you will find a sure cure in

Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup

Mrs. H. A. Misoner, Fort Williams, N.S., says: "My son had a dreadful cough. It started in the fall and lasted all through the winter. At last we became very much alarmed about it and started to use Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup and before he had used one bottle his cough was completely cured." Price 25 cents per bottle. Put up in a yellow wrapper. Three pine trees the trade mark. Refuse substitutes. Dr. Wood's is the genuine.

Peep Into Our Cases

Peep into our cases and see how many tasteful little things in Christmas Jewelry can be had at sums within the reach of the most frugal gift-giver. Ours isn't an expensive store to buy Christmas gifts at quite the contrary. Of course, you could spend a hundred dollars here if you wanted. But where we show one article that sells for $500.00, we show hundreds that sell for a dollar or less.

No matter how little you can spend, come and see our Christmas showing.

E. W. TAYLOR,
South Side Queen Square.

Oysters Raw, Stewed, or On the Half Shell Mills Bros.

CANADIAN PACIFIC

THE WESTERN EXPRESS
Leaves Montreal daily 6.40 a.m.
First and Second Class Coaches and Palace Sleepers through to Calgary.
Tourist Sleepers Sunday Monday and Tuesday Montreal to Vancouver.

THE PACIFIC EXPRESS
Leaves Montreal daily 8.40 p.m.
First and Second Class Coaches and Palace Sleepers through to Vancouver.
Tourist Sleepers Tuesday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday Montreal to Vancouver.

These two services in all parts of Canada. For further information apply to the nearest office for the district in which the land is situated.

One consideration is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:

- (1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.
- (2) If the father or mother, if the father is deceased, if the homestead resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.
- (3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of the homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands, Ottawa, of intention to apply for the land.

W. CORN
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior,
N. B.—Unauthorized publication of this advertisement will not be paid for.

Synopsis of Canadian Northwest Homestead Regulations.

ANY even numbered section of Dominion Lands in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, excepting 8 and 16, not reserved, may be homesteaded by any person who is the sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years of age, in the event of one-quarter section of 16 acres more or less.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situated.

Entry must be made personally at the local land office for the district in which the land is situated.

One consideration is required to perform the conditions connected therewith under one of the following plans:

- (1) At least six months' residence upon and cultivation of the land in each year for three years.
- (2) If the father or mother, if the father is deceased, if the homestead resides upon a farm in the vicinity of the land entered for the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by such person residing with the father or mother.
- (3) If the settler has his permanent residence upon farming land owned by him in the vicinity of the homestead, the requirements as to residence may be satisfied by residence upon the said land.

Six months' notice in writing should be given to the Commissioner of Dominion Lands, Ottawa, of intention to apply for the land.

W. CORN
Deputy of the Minister of the Interior,
N. B.—Unauthorized publication of this advertisement will not be paid for.

BETH'S BUTLER

Continued from page 5.

only here for the day. I almost think I'd marry him to keep him in the family."

"There was a discreet cough, and the two women started apart. Peters had come downstairs again and was standing by the dresser. With a last kiss Della ran off to welcome her guests, and presently Jack came into the kitchen to see that all was well.

"Don't let things fall down," was his parting injunction to Beth. "If this deal goes through you shall have that trip to Europe—unless some one else takes you there first."

"You'd better get ready to write a check if you are thinking of Harvey," she said spiritedly. "I wrote him yesterday that I never wanted to see him again."

"He's an awfully good chap," urged Jack, who seemed to find food for much laughter in her speech. "I'll bet you change your mind before long."

"Never!" she called after him as he turned back to his guests, and it was with a high head that she entered the kitchen. Even now she was not altogether sure that she was glad that she had sent that letter, but Harvey was so irritating. But this was no time to worry about Harvey, and she turned to her work.

"Things look splendid, Peters," she smiled as she entered the dining room and saw how perfectly the table was appointed. "I think we shall have to get you to stay on with us."

"I think it could be done, ma'am," was the respectful reply, "but my price is pretty high, ma'am."

"We paid Hawkins sixty," she said.

"Have you been getting more than that?"

"No, ma'am, but I should want more here."

"Possibly my brother might make it seventy-five," she suggested. "If you think that will do I will speak to him before you go."

"It's not money I'm looking for," he explained. "It's something else. You see, I'm a single man, ma'am."

"I don't see what that has to do with it," she said coldly, "unless you have fallen in love with Maggie. I believe she is engaged to a policeman in town."

"It was yourself, ma'am," was the even response. "I heard you say as how you'd marry me to keep me here."

Beth went white with anger, and for a moment she wished impatiently that she was a man that she might strike this fellow. She turned as if to call Jack, then she thought of the dinner and all that depended upon it and with an effort collected herself.

"You forget yourself, Peters," she said coldly. "You had better announce dinner."

Peters never stirred. "I'm not going to do anything unless you promise to marry me," he said doggedly. "You know what this dinner means to your brother. Now you may take your choice."

She looked at the man curiously. He was not intoxicated, nor did he seem to be crazy, yet he stood there coolly making a proposal of marriage to her.

"Let me hear no more of this," she said severely. "Either announce dinner or get out of here."

"I'll do neither," he said determinedly. "Unless you say 'Yes.' Won't you, dear?" he added, with a changed voice.

Beth gave a little shriek. "Harvey!" she gasped.

"Precisely," he agreed. "Jack told me his trouble, and I told him that I would come out. Prescott knows me, so I had to disguise myself, and I thought I'd pay you back for that letter, too."

"Are you going to spoil it all now?" she pleaded.

"Not if you say 'Yes.' Won't you, announce dinner, please."

"On those terms?"

"You brute!" said Beth, but somehow it did not sound as if she meant it, and Harvey kissed her before he went to summon the guests.

"He's an awfully good chap," urged Jack, who seemed to find food for much laughter in her speech. "I'll bet you change your mind before long."

"Never!" she called after him as he turned back to his guests, and it was with a high head that she entered the kitchen. Even now she was not altogether sure that she was glad that she had sent that letter, but Harvey was so irritating. But this was no time to worry about Harvey, and she turned to her work.

"Things look splendid, Peters," she smiled as she entered the dining room and saw how perfectly the table was appointed. "I think we shall have to get you to stay on with us."

"I think it could be done, ma'am," was the respectful reply, "but my price is pretty high, ma'am."

"We paid Hawkins sixty," she said.

"Have you been getting more than that?"

"No, ma'am, but I should want more here."

"Possibly my brother might make it seventy-five," she suggested. "If you think that will do I will speak to him before you go."

"It's not money I'm looking for," he explained. "It's something else. You see, I'm a single man, ma'am."

"I don't see what that has to do with it," she said coldly, "unless you have fallen in love with Maggie. I believe she is engaged to a policeman in town."

"It was yourself, ma'am," was the even response. "I heard you say as how you'd marry me to keep me here."

Beth went white with anger, and for a moment she wished impatiently that she was a man that she might strike this fellow. She turned as if to call Jack, then she thought of the dinner and all that depended upon it and with an effort collected herself.

"You forget yourself, Peters," she said coldly. "You had better announce dinner."

Peters never stirred. "I'm not going to do anything unless you promise to marry me," he said doggedly. "You know what this dinner means to your brother. Now you may take your choice."

She looked at the man curiously. He was not intoxicated, nor did he seem to be crazy, yet he stood there coolly making a proposal of marriage to her.

"Let me hear no more of this," she said severely. "Either announce dinner or get out of here."

"I'll do neither," he said determinedly. "Unless you say 'Yes.' Won't you, dear?" he added, with a changed voice.

Beth gave a little shriek. "Harvey!" she gasped.

"Precisely," he agreed. "Jack told me his trouble, and I told him that I would come out. Prescott knows me, so I had to disguise myself, and I thought I'd pay you back for that letter, too."

"Are you going to spoil it all now?" she pleaded.

"Not if you say 'Yes.' Won't you, announce dinner, please."

"On those terms?"

"You brute!" said Beth, but somehow it did not sound as if she meant it, and Harvey kissed her before he went to summon the guests.

"He's an awfully good chap," urged Jack, who seemed to find food for much laughter in her speech. "I'll bet you change your mind before long."

"Never!" she called after him as he turned back to his guests, and it was with a high head that she entered the kitchen. Even now she was not altogether sure that she was glad that she had sent that letter, but Harvey was so irritating. But this was no time to worry about Harvey, and she turned to her work.

"Things look splendid, Peters," she smiled as she entered the dining room and saw how perfectly the table was appointed. "I think we shall have to get you to stay on with us."

"I think it could be done, ma'am," was the respectful reply, "but my price is pretty high, ma'am."

"We paid Hawkins sixty," she said.

"Have you been getting more than that?"

"No, ma'am, but I should want more here."

"Possibly my brother might make it seventy-five," she suggested. "If you think that will do I will speak to him before you go."

"It's not money I'm looking for," he explained. "It's something else. You see, I'm a single man, ma'am."

"I don't see what that has to do with it," she said coldly, "unless you have fallen in love with Maggie. I believe she is engaged to a policeman in town."

"It was yourself, ma'am," was the even response. "I heard you say as how you'd marry me to keep me here."

Beth went white with anger, and for a moment she wished impatiently that she was a man that she might strike this fellow. She turned as if to call Jack, then she thought of the dinner and all that depended upon it and with an effort collected herself.

"You forget yourself, Peters," she said coldly. "You had better announce dinner."

Peters never stirred. "I'm not going to do anything unless you promise to marry me," he said doggedly. "You know what this dinner means to your brother. Now you may take your choice."

She looked at the man curiously. He was not intoxicated, nor did he seem to be crazy, yet he stood there coolly making a proposal of marriage to her.

"Let me hear no more of this," she said severely. "Either announce dinner or get out of here."

"I'll do neither," he said determinedly. "Unless you say 'Yes.' Won't you, dear?" he added, with a changed voice.

Beth gave a little shriek. "Harvey!" she gasped.

"Precisely," he agreed. "Jack told me his trouble, and I told him that I would come out. Prescott knows me, so I had to disguise myself, and I thought I'd pay you back for that letter, too."

"Are you going to spoil it all now?" she pleaded.

"Not if you say 'Yes.' Won't you, announce dinner, please."

"On those terms?"

"You brute!" said Beth, but somehow it did not sound as if she meant it, and Harvey kissed her before he went to summon the guests.

"He's an awfully good chap," urged Jack, who seemed to find food for much laughter in her speech. "I'll bet you change your mind before long."

"Never!" she called after him as he turned back to his guests, and it was with a high head that she entered the kitchen. Even now she was not altogether sure that she was glad that she had sent that letter, but Harvey was so irritating. But this was no time to worry about Harvey, and she turned to her work.

"Things look splendid, Peters," she smiled as she entered the dining room and saw how perfectly the table was appointed. "I think we shall have to get you to stay on with us."

"I think it could be done, ma'am," was the respectful reply, "but my price is pretty high, ma'am."

"We paid Hawkins sixty," she said.

"Have you been getting more than that?"

"No, ma'am, but I should want more here."

"Possibly my brother might make it seventy-five," she suggested. "If you think that will do I will speak to him before you go."

"It's not money I'm looking for," he explained. "It's something else. You see, I'm a single man, ma'am."

"I don't see what that has to do with it," she said coldly, "unless you have fallen in love with Maggie. I believe she is engaged to a policeman in town."

"It was yourself, ma'am," was the even response. "I heard you say as how you'd marry me to keep me here."

Beth went white with anger, and for a moment she wished impatiently that she was a man that she might strike this fellow. She turned as if to call Jack, then she thought of the dinner and all that depended upon it and with an effort collected herself.

"You forget yourself, Peters," she said coldly. "You had better announce dinner."

Peters never stirred. "I'm not going to do anything unless you promise to marry me," he said doggedly. "You know what this dinner means to your brother. Now you may take your choice."

She looked at the man curiously. He was not intoxicated, nor did he seem to be crazy, yet he stood there coolly making a proposal of marriage to her.

"Let me hear no more of this," she said severely. "Either announce dinner or get out of here."

"I'll do neither," he said determinedly. "Unless you say 'Yes.' Won't you, dear?" he added, with a changed voice.

Beth gave a little shriek. "Harvey!" she gasped.

"Precisely," he agreed. "Jack told me his trouble, and I told him that I would come out. Prescott knows me, so I had to disguise myself, and I thought I'd pay you back for that letter, too."

"Are you going to spoil it all now?" she pleaded.

"Not if you say 'Yes.' Won't you, announce dinner, please."

"On those terms?"

"You brute!" said Beth, but somehow it did not sound as if she meant it, and Harvey kissed her before he went to summon the guests.

"He's an awfully good chap," urged Jack, who seemed to find food for much laughter in her speech. "I'll bet you change your mind before long."

"Never!" she called after him as he turned back to his guests, and it was with a high head that she entered the kitchen. Even now she was not altogether sure that she was glad that she had sent that letter, but Harvey was so irritating. But this was no time to worry about Harvey, and she turned to her work.

SURPRISING KNOWLEDGE

A certain English baronet who had a dense and absolute ignorance of books and past events took a notion to be presented to his king, George III. The baronet lived near a spot where one of the most celebrated battles had been fought during the wars of the roses, but of that fact he had never chanced to hear. His mind was set upon more tangible things. He had no use for information which was not up to date. When he was presented to his sovereign, the king, who had looked him up and was prepared with the right thing to say, remarked, graciously, "You come from the scene of a very celebrated battle, I understand, Sir William?"

"Well, your majesty," was the answer, "I did have a round or two with the Smiths, but I'm very much surprised that your majesty should have heard of it."

YOU NEED STRENGTH.

Vitality is Lacking and You Must Have a Bracing Tonic at Once.

You're sick and need medicine. Not an emulsion to stoke the stomach, not a "dope" cure nor blitters,—but a nourishing tonic that will increase weight, strength and spirits.

Try Ferruzone and watch the result. Because it gives instant effect and steadily builds up new flesh, it is used by thousands in ill-health.

No other medicine contains more nutriment, supplies better building material, makes you feel well and strong as quickly as it did Mrs. Charles Benny, of Clonry, Ont.

HER STATEMENT.

"I was sick. I was broken down, had no strength, couldn't eat. I was sleepless. My nerves were irritable. I was thin-blooded and continually unhappy. I tried Ferruzone. It gave me new energy, force, vim. It brought me comfort, strength—it made me well.

It's by making the appetite good, by instilling iron and ozone in the blood, by fortifying the system with reserve strength, that Ferruzone accomplishes so much.

You'll have new life in a week, in a month you'll be like a new being. Try Ferruzone, it always justifies itself. 50c. per box or six for $2.50, at all dealers.

ADVERTISING IS BROAD.

Advertising in itself means publicity and publicity is a very broad and comprehensive term. It does not mean simply a word whispered to a favored few. It is, rather, synonymous with a general, broadcast declaration, and the broader the scope of the announcement, the better the advertising. No occupier of space that directs attention along given and desired lines can be reasonably regarded as wasted; nor can any funds expended to this end be adjudged extravagance.—American Medical Journal

UMBRELLAS FOR XMAS.

The surplus of a manufacturer enables us to make an umbrella sale that will be the greatest we have had during the past season. At these prices you can afford to own two or three umbrellas and have them at your home and at your place of business when the rainy day weather comes.—75c to $2.50. Jas. Paton & Co. 12-8d11.

Another case umbrella just opened at Stanley Bros. 12 8d31.

SNOWSHOES, just opened in sizes for LADIES and GENTLEMEN also in CHILDREN'S sizes. All at lowest prices. Lots of Snow now, you can enjoy a good tramp. Fit yourself out with a pair, you can get the size you want here and at the price you expect to pay.—GARTER & CO., Limited. 12-8d1w.

We will mail to any responsible out of town customer, any assortment of articles to select from, on approval. G. F. Hutchison, Jeweler—Optician. 12 8d11.

Elegant cream lace scarfs and a splendid assortment newest veillings, just received from London, England, at Stanley Bros. 12-8d31.

A Tip. This is a Smith Premier year. All the other makers compare their machines with the Smith Premier. Why? And why not with the other machines? Because the Smith Premier is the Standard. A Milne Fraser, 137 Hollis St., Halifax. 12-10d31.

New side combs, new back combs, and sets of side and back combs—the very latest styles, just received at Stanley Bros. 12-8d31.

Average Length of Sentences.

"The English sentence grows shorter and shorter," says an essayist. "Spencer, Sir Thomas Moore, Lytton and Sydney used sentences of the average of fifty-five words. Nowadays the sentences of the average journalist are only fifteen words long. Bacon introduced the short sentence. At a time when everybody else was using fifty words he took to twenty-two. Praise be to Bacon. Macaulay used a very short sentence. Its average length was twenty-three words. Dickens' average was twenty-eight. Thackeray's was thirty-one. Matthew Arnold's sentences are long, but beautifully balanced. They are thirty-sevens. Henry James' are longer and, though intricate, are well worth puzzling out, for in each of them a wonderful meaning is concealed. They are thirty-nines. Kipling's sentences are twenty-ones. George Moore's are twenty-fovers and H. G. Wells' are twenty-twos.

W. N. TANION.

No Better
for more accurate pattern for any member or friend of the family than Waterman's Ideal Fountain Pen
Each pen, wherever the price, is based on an extensive Holly account, thus making a complete gift.

From $2.50 upward.

JAMES PATON & CO.

PATON'S Overcoats and Furs

$5.50, $8.50, $13.50, $3.50, $3.75, $3.00

EASTERN MINKS

$8.50, $9.50, $12.50, $16.50, $8.50, $12.50

JAMES PATON & Co.

$8.50, $2.50, $12.00, $8.25, $9.50

JAMES PATON & Co.

Lath Machine

We are building a power feed Lath Machine—Strong, simple and cheap, which is giving excellent results. Prompt attention to all inquiries.

CASTINGS - REPAIRS

Founders, Machinists, Boiler Makers

Charlottetown Foundry and Machine Co., NEW FOUNDRY

IF YOU ONLY KNOW

When your well stocked store was going to burn down, you would wait to insure until the week before, but

When It is Destroyed

You are too late. Remember the old adage, "There is no time like the present," and no insurance like ours.

E. H. BERR,
Representing Phoenix of Hartford, Canadian Quebec.

KNIPP MALT COFFEE

Makes rosy cheeks, is a delicious drink for young and old, is more economical and has more health giving properties than any other beverage. In 15 and 20c packages.

JAS. KELLY & CO.