Leap Year Week Not Appreciated

EVANSTON, Ill., March 5—Who said the woman always pays? They won't at Northwestern University.

Senior male students proposed a "leap year week." The idea was that the co-eds make their own dates with selected men, entertain them and pay the bills.

When Margaret Frantz, president of the Women's Students Government Association, heard of this she took one deep breath and said: "We'd rather stay home than give way to the unwomanly display of chasing a man."

One School Year And Its Activities

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 5—An astounding record of activities for a year has been kept by F. E. Lurton, Superintendent of Schools, Frazee, Minnesota.

Some of the things Lurton did were: make telephone calls, answer letters, confer with teachers, visit classrooms, confer with parents and students, receive calls from salesmen hold teachers meetings, find jobs for students, attend board meetings, put out circulars to teachers, check report cards, audit bills, attend to sick children, examine texts, make reports.

Lurton in addition to these occupations kept an account of each minute transaction and found out he had performed 17,407 specific duties in the year.

Financial Assistance To Re-establish Unemployed Miners

(Canadian Press) HALIFAX, N. S., Mar. 4.—Financial assistance for the establishment on vacant farms of unemployed coal miners who have had farming experience, and facilities for the placing on the land of miners who wish to gain agricultural experience, are provided for in a bill introduced in the Legislature today by Premier Gordon S. Harrington.

The measure provides that any male person of more than 21 years of age, who is a British subject and head of a household, who has been an employee of the coal company and a resident of Nova Scotia for five years, and who has had satisfactory experience in farming, may have his application for assistance considered by a board to be established. It is proposed also, that the board be granted authority to place men from mining communities with farmers to enable them to obtain practical experience. The board may grant certain allowances to such men during a period of training not to exceed one year. The Premier had enunciated a policy of land settlement some months ago, and the possibility of placing miners on the land was reviewed recently in the report of the Duncan Commission, which declared that too many men were employed in the coal fields, and also recommended endorsement of the re-allocation proposals, involving closure of certain collieries, which would displace about 2,000 workers.

B. C. Dairymen's Five Year Plan

CLOVERDALE, B. C. March 4.—(By the Canadian Press) — British Columbia dairymen have embarked upon a five-year plan for the improvement of their herds. Need for independent, aggressive effort to attain this objective was emphasized at the recent convention, held here, of the dairy industry, representing an annual production worth approximately $13,000,000. The dairymen brought with them reports of unusual conditions in the industry. Notwithstanding difficulties in the form of low prices, high taxes and worries over litigation in connection with the famous British Columbia milk legislation, they prepared to go ahead with a programme of herd improvement to extend over at least five years. "Something more than co-operation is needed to pull the industry through," declared President R. U. Hurford of Courtenay. "Co-operation has been held out so long as the cure-all of all farmers' troubles that I am tiring of the mere mention of the word. "I have every sympathy with the views of the dairy man who has rent, heavy interest charges and taxes to meet, and who breaks away from his co-operative association under the sheer difficulty of making ends meet at the moment. "Calm reflection, however, should point the way towards working together effectively to better and strengthen your organization. The officers of the big sales organizations deserve a lot of credit, and their burden is lightened when they know they have the dairymen behind them."

Want New Name For Municipal Building

LEEDS, England, Mar. 4.—The Corporation of this great Yorkshire town are seeking for a name for their new block of municipal buildings. Leeds Town Hall, opened 80 years ago, has long proved inadequate. The Assize Courts are in the present Town Hall, and in future it will be concerned principally with the administration of justice. On sentimental grounds the citizens dislike the idea of transferring the name Town Hall to the new municipal block.

It is a curious circumstance that no city in England ever described its municipal headquarters as a City Hall, or its chief legal officer as a City Clerk. The term is always Town Hall or Town Clerk. There are no cut-and-dried qualifications under which a modern municipality reaches the status of a city. Any place where a Bishop of the English Church has his seat is a city. Ely, in Cambridgeshire, for instance, with a population of only 8,000, is a city, although its municipal affairs are controlled merely by a district council. Such huge centres as Leeds and Sheffield were raised to the dignity of "cities" only within the last 50 years.

HOCKEY

LINDY'S 2—HORNETS 5 On Wednesday Feb. 17 these two teams met on the Milton Arena. This hard checking North River squad and those buzzing Hornets. This being their third encounter this season Lindy's having won both previous contests 7-1 and 3-2. But on this trip the Lindy's were compelled to return home on the short end of a five to two score. This being quite a sudden change of the tide to the 300 fans that attended, after seeing what the River team did to the Granite a week before, having just given the latter team a neat whitewash 2-0. The game started away fast there was only one score in this period, Len Phillips accepting A. Sherrill's pass from wing. This goal seemed to have upset the Lindy's as it made them carry the play in the second canto. E. Coles then coasted through to make the score 2-0. But this was short lived as Warren and Hyde place two well aimed shots at McKenzie that tied the game and
