NO POLITICS IN CORONATION CONTINGENT

OTTAWA, March 6—Replying to Mr. Blain (Peel), Sir Frederick Borden denounced as a tissue of falsehoods the report that the militia contingent for the coronation was being selected by the patronage committees of Toronto and other places. He said that the private and non-commissioned officers would be selected by the officers commanding the various units. As to the officers, there were about thirty to be appointed and four thousand to choose from. Each province would be represented and no officer would be detailed for this trip who had attended the late King's coronation or similar functions in England.

Spring Medicine

There is no other season when medicine is so much needed as in the spring. LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY DEBATES THE ADDRESS

brought to the notice of the Government the necessity for cheap school books. The answer of the Premier had been, "We have heard all this before." Premier Hazen was in power less than three months in New Brunswick when a reduction of 40 per cent was made in the readers. When our Premier wanted to do something he went to a Conservative Premier, Sir James Whitney, New Brunswick the reduction now applied to all school books. The Government here had shelved the question, appointed a commission which cost $4,000 on which they had not acted, and now there is no reference in the learn how to raise rates? Surely there was gross incompetence somewhere here. The Provincial Exam cost to run it $14.32 and made $21, including what was collected from the previous year's sales, and after selling three-fourths of the stock. What had been done to get our farmers better transportation, to get rid of the three short haul rates? He hoped something had been done. Let the Commissioner tell what had been done to get cold storage for produce while in transit, and what the cold storage in this city had accomplished.

He (Mr. Matheson) spoke highly of the class of immigrants who had arrived during the year. The success achieved by Rev. Mr. Winford served to show how great had been the loss in ten years past under a do-nothing policy. No doubt some immigrants had a brighter picture in their minds than the reality would warrant. speech to education.

As to another important matter, our fisheries, not a word had been spoken of in Parliament as being in good shape and said the dual control should be done away. Mr. Warburton had spoken of it also and favored the Dominion Government taking over the fisheries. He (Mr. Matheson) said we should conserve our oyster fisheries and not hand them over to Canada. Again nothing is said in the speech about our claims against the Dominion. These claims had figured in previous speeches in 1899, 1902, 1904, and down to 1909. Then we were told our claims were to be pressed and would be paid and enable better provision to be made for the public service without increase of taxation. The Premier had totalled these claims at $7,600,000. And now they were not thought worthy of mention. We are asked to accept the gospel of sweet content that "we are doing fine," as the Government organ editor said, when he was drawing his salary from the Dominion Government.

Nothing was said about the consolidation of the statutes, a most necessary thing; nothing about those magnificent permanent public works, on which much money had been wasted for election purposes. Nothing about any of the most important matters outside of agriculture with which the House and country are concerned. And why, contrary to the custom, was no reference made to the death of the late Mr. Laird? Surely it was a barren speech.

THE PREMIER delivered a message from the Governor that when the House adjourns today it shall stand adjourned till Friday next at three o'clock.

Coming to the subject of debate he warmly congratulated the mover and seconder of the address on the ability with which they had discharged that duty. Especially did he compliment the new member of the Second District as a distinct acquisition to the House. The leader of the Opposition had criticised the speech, as it was usual to do. As to the omission of reference to the coronation, it was the same in this and in other Legislatures before King Edward's coronation. Next year, when the coronation is over the matter will receive attention. As to the representation in the Senate he thought it very unfortunate that only Senator Yeo was able to fill his seat and one seat is vacant by death. But this Government has no control in this or other federal appointments. Senator Ferguson was a very able man, and Senator Robertson is ill. Another seat in the Senate has been practically vacant for three years. There were also Senate vacancies for other Provinces. He looked to the time when the Senate
