CIVIC BORROWING

Sir.—At a recent meeting of the City Council it was decided to ask the Legislature for power to borrow another $100,000 for permanent works. Our interest on debentures is now about $40,000 a year, nearly one fourth of our entire revenue. With this additional issue it will be increased considerably. For a city of our size we have a fair share of permanent streets, and while we would all like to see the whole city finished that way, it cannot be done all at once. Where is the additional money coming from? There is only one solution, an increase in taxes. Before any more borrowing is done it would be a good idea to have an outside audit on the books so our citizens would see exactly how things stand. This is done in almost every city and town in Canada. Why not here? It would be a splendid investment. The City auditors are busy men who are employed during the day and have only a very limited amount of time to give to this work. As far as I know there has never been a complete audit made of the books. The taxpayers are entitled to this information. It should be full and complete and now is the time to have it done. I am, Sir, etc.

A SAFE GUIDE—In all thy ways acknowledge God, and he shall direct thy paths.—Prov. 3:6.

PRAYER—Guide me, O Thou Great Jehovah, Pilgrim through this barren land.

UP AND DOWN THE HILL
Down the broad, grey road of years slowly 'twards a goal we ramble. While the course each mortal steers is beset by thorn and bramble. Fondness, too, for looking back Often finds the chance retarded. And so many things we lack We have missed through words unguarded.

This quest, this life we live, yet we scarce know what were seeking. Thrills which certain pleasures give Turn our minds from thoughtful speaking. Prone are we to take the view That our lives should brim with rapture.

Then—our golden deeds are few, Satisfaction hard to capture. Fain I'd offer good advice On the truly proper measures To ensure the manner nice. And to keep from rust life's treasures.

But, in common with the throng Down the broad, gray road I stumble. Trying hard to raise a song, Often ending in a grumble.

—Aubrey S. Williamson.

Eczema Formed Painful Blisters Cuticura Healed

"Eczema started with a fine rash on my arms. Later it formed blisters about the size of a bean which were full of water and very painful. It burned and was so sore I could not bear to touch it. The weight of a cup in my hand would fairly make me cry out with pain. I had my hands and arms tied up from the ends of my fingers to my shoulders. Sometimes it kept me awake for hours."

"A friend recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment so I sent for a free sample. I purchased more, and in about three weeks I was healed." (Signed) Miss Emily B. Davis, R. R. 3, Northwood, Ont.

GOVERNOR'S PARDONS

Sir.—I see the Temperance Bulletin for March is again spreading its scandalous abuse through out the Province. Its writers go so far as to drag the name of our Lieutenant Governor through the mire.

We are really surprised to know that any fanatics would go so far or at least go forget themselves, to dare interfere with our Governor when he deals with the King's subjects and exercises the authority vested in him by the British Crown. We must recall, however, such audacity existed in the beginning, when Satan stepped up to tempt our Lord and Master on the Mount. One of the Triumvirate after renting his building to the vendor is not yet satisfied he wants control of the whole province. Rev. A. A. McLeod was asked as General Secretary of the Alliance to retract statements which he has not done. Owing to the respect which we have for our clergy as a rule, amongst whom are some of the finest people, this fanatic will be left unnoticed.

There are a great many scriptural phrases contained in the columns of the abusive Bulletin, quite a lot said, denouncing the Guardian as a public newspaper, and all other opponents, in the denouncing all and everything only that which agrees with the Alliance.

We would wish Mr. Bentley would tell us, as we deem he is the most expert on points of law, where in scripture did God give liberty to brake one, or any, of His Commandments, especially the sixth commandment. Must one be a member of the Temperance Alliance, to obtain that special privilege? Must we offer bribes to the lawyers? Must we extend our business to the Morrell River, thence to Georgetown? Must we make a target of our fellowman in the scandalous columns of the Bulletin; lastly must we become a political checker board?

I am, Sir, etc.

CABLE HEAD AND VICINITY

Spring is evidently on its way around these parts, the first Robin having been seen by Mr. Bucher McLaren last week.

The many friends of Miss Lydia Seymour were sorry to learn of her illness in Arlington, Mass., where she is obliged to enter the hospital for treatment.

Mr. Wilfred McLaren has been confined to his bed for the last few weeks (due to anxiety I guess).

Miss Annie Sanderson and Mrs. Frank McLaren were visitors to Cable Head recently.

Among those who attended the hockey match at St. Peter's Monday night were Mr. Leith Sanderson, Mr. Sutherland Brothers, Raymond Rattary, Leslie and Bruce McLaren accompanied by Miss Katie McKenzie. We trust they all enjoyed the game.

Miss Emma Mobbs spent the week end at her home in Midgell.

Mr. Newton McEwen has installed a new radio set and is enjoying fine results.

Mr. William McLaren, Jr. is busily engaged in constructing a dwelling house, the overseer being Mr. Michael McKenzie, B. A. Mr. Leslie McLaren was a visitor to Midgell recently.

John Smith And His Car

John Smith is a character whom every motorist should welcome. He is not selfish, rather he is a motoring martyr, a chap willing and glad to have exploited, in an interesting way, his experience for the benefit of the other twenty.

Giving The Car A Diet

"I don't know what's wrong with this car," Smith complained as he was about to start out for his regular Sunday afternoon drive. "I think I'll have to send it to a service station and order an operation."

"Maybe you're not giving it the right food," I suggested. "A lot of car troubles are due to faulty diet."

Smith laughed. The idea of talking about diet in connection with an automobile does have its novel side. But, like human beings, an automobile consumes certain kinds of matter which form its basis of existence. It would seem logical that the amount of these substances would play a highly important role in the behavior of the car.

It seems to me that too many drivers stop with gas, oil, water and air when considering the gastric demands of an automobile. It should be remembered that these are only four of the automotive foods, and while they are the most important, nevertheless they do not always play the most significant role in the ailments by which cars are afflicted.

"Your car demands a great variety of foods," I detained Smith long enough to explain. "In addition to the four basic elements which you pick up at the filling station, there are the many varieties of grease, numerous kinds of for hydraulic brakes or hydraulic shock absorbers, acid for the startant-freeze solutions, special fluids and lubricants. There are still others. But if I can impress you with the importance of these car foods I think that you will be in a fair way toward appreciating the value of curing some automotive ailments by proper diet."

"Take the matter of engine fuel, for example. If your engine happens to be slow in starting you can buy a high test fuel. If, on the other hand, its tendency is to buck and skip when it heats up in traffic, usually it will operate to better advantage on a fuel that is less volatile. If it knocks on the hills all you have to do is buy one of the anti-knock fuels."

"But suppose an anti-knock fuel gives me a little trouble in traffic when the engine is idling and running hot and yet I need it to a certain extent in hill climbing?" Smith asked.

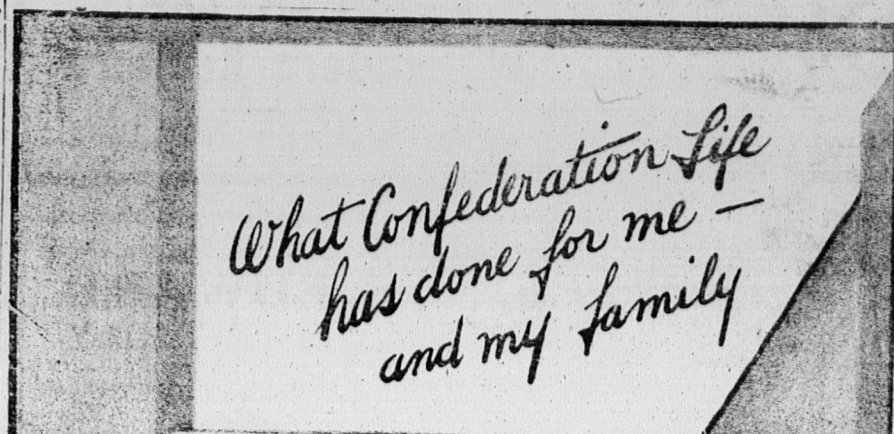

"Then the chances are that the driver who made the joints of his way the food is being served to car last about four months after the engine by the carburetor is replacement seemed necessary by wrong, or that the ignition is using hard pump grease in the need of inspection. A mixed fuel joints instead of the usual soft diet might suggest itself, but this grease. This extremely heavy will do more harm than good by and heat-resisting lubricant stay-cure constant changes in the gas-oil put" with the result that the line used are fruitful in many engine jobs that do not throw grease and give digestive disturbances. "become dry."

"I heard of one owner of the other I did not go on to explain to day who was having trouble with Smith that proper exercise is an leakage at the wheel cylinders of other feature in prolonging the his hydraulic brake cast. He had life of a car and curing its many one of the older models of the high ailments because I thought that pressure type and had experienced with the diet idea firmly planted excellent service from the equip- in his mind the other would occur ment on it. Rather than go to the expense of having new pistons in the wheel cylinders and the lines all checked over, he hit upon the idea of increasing the proportion of castor oil in the brake fluid. Ordinarily this is a fifty-fifty combination of alcohol and castor oil. Alcohol leaks out very readily, as you probably know from the way it gets out of the cooling system when used as an anti-freeze.

Castor oil has more body, so that by changing the brake fluid characteristics he has been able to stop an aggravating trouble. "Don't forget that the water you put in the radiator, and which passes through the cooling system, may be either hard or soft, depending upon the locality in which you are motoring. Some hard water contains minerals which deposit in the cooling system and which eventually affect the efficiency of the engine."

"There is a matter of different air temperatures to be considered. All that can be attended to by suitable means of regulating the air flow over the engine and by increasing the moisture of the mixture entering the cylinders. This can be accomplished by the addition of certain equipment, and is somewhat like using certain devices in rendering a human diet more effective."

"You can get different results from a car by changing the quantity, as well as the consistency, of the various lubricants in the major units of the car, such as the transmission, the rear end and the universal joints. I know one

Policy No. 117865 & 139502.
Life Insurance has been of more value to my brother and myself than any other factor in our lives.
Always having much in common, my brother and I, both young fellows, born from four years at the front, each took out a policy in your company of $3,500 each. At the last minute we decided to pay a little extra and add a Total and Permanent Disability Clause to our policies.
Things went well with us for a year or two, my brother and I being partners in a farm. Like a bolt from the blue, my brother contracted the deadly sleepy sickness, which lasted nearly four years. His Disability Clause immediately came into effect. Instead of being a burden to those dear to him, he received regularly $35.00 per month and he did not have to pay the premium on his policy, a saving of over one hundred dollars a year.
In the meantime I was struggling along, keeping up payments on the farm and nursing my wife who had contracted consumption. In order to tide over a hard winter, I borrowed $200. on my policy, which saved us from losing the farm.
After lingering on for four years, my poor brother died. I at once received a cheque for $3,500, which enabled me to pay my wife's hospital bills, doctor bills and give my sister who was in difficulties a substantial help. There was enough left to give myself a good start in business.
That is the financial side of our benefits, but there is another side. My brother's Disability Clause enabled him for four years to feel that he was not a burden to his family and although he knew recovery was impossible, he was happy to think that his death would mean that I would receive $3,500. I know that thought helped him during his long illness. I also know that if death should overtake me that my wife and child would not suffer from want.
How terrible to be dying and realize too late that your loved ones are unprotected for.

Turn Hair Dark With Sage Tea

By JEAN MAGON
The old-time mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur for darkening gray streaked and faded hair is grandmother's recipe, and folks are again using it to keep their hair a good, even color, which is quite desirable, as we are living in an age when a youthful appearance is one of the greatest advantages.
Nowadays, though, we don't have the troublesome task of gathering the sage and the mussy mixing at home. All drug stores sell the ready-to-use product for only 75 cents, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." It is very popular because nobody can discover it has been applied. Simply moisten your comb or a soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also produces that soft lustre and appearance of abundance which is so attractive.
