Commerce Minister Reiterates Bennett Policy Against Ry. Amalgamation.

(C. P. by Guardian's Special Wire) MONTREAL, Jan. 9.—Reiteration of the policy of the Bennett administration that the two great Canadian railways will be operated as separate entities was made here tonight by Hon. R. B. Hanson, K. C., Minister of Trade and Commerce. He dealt at length with the transportation problem as it confronts the country and reviewed the existing situation and events leading up to the consolidation of the National Railways. He dealt with the Duff Commission report, its recommendations and the implementations of same, and declared that "the government is concerned we are not promoting the policy of amalgamation or unification. We are hopeful that with the return of prosperity the situation will be clarified. What the future holds for the policy of Canada with respect to the railways is unknown to any of us. If the situation gets worse instead of better, the whole position may have to be reviewed. But at the moment I can say to you with the utmost frankness and candor that the policy of this party is represented by its deeds and acts."

CLAMNAZIS SMUGGLED INTO SAAR

Saar United Front Parties Charge "Brown Terror" Active in Territory.

(By Guardian's Special Wire) SAARBRUECKEN, Jan. 10.—Two thousand Nazis have been smuggled into the Saar territory and are spreading the "Brown Terror" among those opposed to union of their homeland with Germany, leaders of the Saar United Socialist-Communist front charged to-day before members of the International Press.

Max Braun, and P. Fordt, who have been directing the United Front campaign, claimed there were instances of a series of terrorist acts that are being perpetrated on the eve of the plebiscite.

They affirmed that if the Saar international police did not provide the United Front with adequate protection they were ready to "descend into the streets to defend the status quo to the limit of their strength."

Braun said the 2,000 Nazis had been brought into the Saar during the past few days under various disguises and that they were under the command of Hitlerite blackshirt Schultz Staffel groups who were directing the alleged terror.

Streams Sparkle Adventure Calls In Roberts Book

(By Charles Bruce) (Canadian Press Staff Writer) TORONTO, Jan. 10.—Genius of discernment and gift of expression, which they call "the poet's mantle," says Theodore Goodridge Roberts, author of The Leather Bottle.

His full name includes George Edward as heads, but he generally loafs along under the double-barreled forename of the poet, D. Litt. Bestowed on him by University of New Brunswick five years ago, the Leather Bottle is just out, prefaced by an author's note deploring the fact limitations of space "sadly shot" the collection. It is not only a book of poems, but a book of wet pastures grey with rain, amber shallows and the still blue heron is as seen as any in the Saint John River group which grew around the leadership of his brother Charles and included the brilliant William Bliss Carman. To pass the picture on he employs a graceful, light gift of expression. But his discernment is wider than that, and he can strike out sharply with words as in To a Known Soldier, written as a tribute to the thousands of ignorant persons, and many jealous and willfully vicious persons, were doing their worst to besmirch his clear fame.

Poster Causes Speculation

For the first time since Saarlanders began their emulated campaign in connection with Sunday's plebiscite, a huge yellow poster appeared mysteriously tonight in the heart of Saarbruecken, urging the Saar to vote for union with France.

"France is a country of freedom," the poster proclaimed. "She will guarantee all the rights in the Saar."

A startled, curious crowd of spectators, unaccustomed to propaganda from this source, gathered about the sign. No disorders occurred, but conjecture was rife as to the poster's origin, since the pro-French element has hitherto refrained from campaigning of this sort. The yellow "phenomenon" was believed by some to have been put up by the Saar United Front. Others argued that it was a sly manoeuvre by the Nazis in an attempt to divert status quo voters to the side of France and thus split the anti-Hitler vote to a greater degree.

From a reliable source it was learned, however, that the sign might have originated with a French rightist group. But the fact that an ordinary poster of this kind should have created a stir was taken as an indication of the prevailing uncertainty which surrounds the forthcoming vote.

He writes best of cedar shingles, adrift, smoothed by contact with rocks, dried on yellow sandbars, and "stranded clots of white foam whipl from little waves yesterday by a wind that went down with yesterday's sun." His effort is the one he attributed to Bliss Carman in a poem written after Carman's death. "To fix in ink the radiance of a dream."

They're All Necessary Foods—But All Acid-Forming. Hence Most of Us Have "Acid Stomach" at Times. Easy Now to Relieve

Medical authorities now tell us that much of the so-called "indigestion" from which so many of us suffer is really acid indigestion. A condition brought on by the acid-forming part of our diet.

Starches, meats, sweets, too much of such necessary foods form excess acids—felt in annoying pain, "gas" after eating.

But there is now a simple way to relieve this, as your doctor will tell you... often in minutes!

All you do is take a little Phillips' Milk of Magnesia after meals. This acts almost at once to neutralize the stomach acidity that brings on the trouble. You have fewer headaches, upsets, and pain. You "forget you have a stomach!"

BRITISH PROPOSAL REJECTED

Germany Unable To Accept Invitation To Discuss Saar Plebiscite With League Council.

(C. P. by Guardian's Special Wire) BERLIN, Jan. 10.—The German Government today bluntly declined Great Britain's invitation to return to the League of Nations Council for discussion of the Saar plebiscite results, declaring "the Reich having already withdrawn from the League, it cannot, on principle, accept the British suggestion."

An official communique, issued through the German news bureau, charged that the League Council would not take final decisions on the Saar's destiny at this session anyway. (The Council opens tomorrow to remain in session until after Sunday's plebiscite, when the Saar votes either in return to Germany, become French or remain under League of Nations rule.)

German View

The communique added that Germany considered such a delay as "gravely prejudicial to the economic welfare of the Saar," intimating that once the Reich votes for return to Germany the question should be considered settled.

Sir Eric Phipps, the British Ambassador, made the representation to the Foreign Ministry in Berlin today. After stating that Britain believed Germany ought to be represented at the present session of the Council, since it will discuss results of the plebiscite, he was told that Germany was compelled to refuse the invitation.

The official news bureau communique, making the German position clear, stated that the Council had been informed that the Council would not take a final decision relative to the Saar's destiny until a later session of the Council.

Deplore Fact

It added that the Reich Government had been advised that "serious inconveniences stood in the way of this decision" and deplored the fact that after the plebiscite the Saar territory should be "in a state of economic warfare."

In any case, the communique intimated, Germany will not go back on her withdrawal from the League of Nations.

It was this statement, that "since Germany has withdrawn from the League of Nations, it cannot, on principle, accept the British suggestion," which caused greatest diplomatic circles, where it was believed that in recent months the Reich has been given increasing reasons to return to Geneva.

Great Britain, in particular, advocated Germany's return as a natural result of the Franco-Italian agreement reached at Rome last week-end, which envisaged a peace understanding embracing all of central Europe. France and the Soviet Union, it was being pressed the proposed "Eastern Locarno" treaty which would bring all nations of Eastern Europe into a non-aggression agreement.

VIENNA—Reinforcements were sent to the Austro-German frontier, toward which Austrian troops have been moving for several days, to parry the alleged threat of a Nazi push on the night of the plebiscite. Student bodies of soldiers were being mobilized throughout Austria and many Nazis were arrested.

ROME—Government spokesmen denied reports widely published abroad that Italian soldiers were being moved to the Austrian frontier.

COLLAPSES AS SENTENCE IS PASSED

Michael Bradley Sentenced To Die April 5th For Quintuple Slaying.

(By Guardian's Special Wire) QUEBEC, Jan. 10.—While in the prisoner's dock in a semi-collapsed condition, Michael Bradley, 48-year-old Demers Centre farmer, charged with the quintuple slaying of his family, today heard the death sentence pronounced by Mr. Justice Louis Gauthier. The sentence was passed five minutes after a jury, deliberating for only 35 minutes, unanimously returned a verdict of guilty of murder. Date for the hanging was set for Friday, April 5, at Campbell's Bay, Que. Jail, in County of Pontiac.

Tragic Scene

It was a tragic scene as the last chapter to the Allumette Island slaying was being written. As His Lordship was nearing the end of his address to the jury, large beads of sweat were seen to appear on the forehead of the prisoner. He took out his handkerchief, and as he reached up to wipe perspiration from the shoulder of one of the guards.

A murmur broke over the hushed courtroom and Mr. Justice Gauthier stopped his address in the middle of a sentence. Doctors who were present in court rushed to the side of the man. His Lordship announced an adjournment of court and left the room. Guards quickly took the tie from around the neck of the accused and opened his shirt collar. He was stretched out on the long prisoner's bench and a glass of water was brought. A cold cloth was applied to his head and the prisoner lay motionless on the bench.

Resumes Charge

When Bradley revived somewhat from his collapse, Mr. Justice Gauthier continued his charge to the jury, the prisoner lying on the bench with his head supported by a white pillow.

Following the death sentence, Bradley was assisted from the courtroom to a cell in the jail at the feet. Shortly after arriving in a special cell on the third floor of the jail, Bradley asked for orange juice, toast and coffee, which was promptly brought to him. He ate it all and said he felt better.

Referee (excitedly): "I've got a good start!"

Islanders at Jobat Mission

TRANSLATION OF ADDRESS OF DR. JOHN ROWIE ON THE OCCASION OF THE TURNING OF THE FIRST SOD IN THE NEW BUILDING PROGRAM OF THE MISSION AT JOBAT, C.I., INDIANA, 4 P.M., DECEMBER 30, 1934.

The following address was of particular interest to P. E. Islanders as Dr. Rowie labored very successfully in the Belfast district before going to India with his bride, Miss Jean Henderson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Henderson.

Ladies and gentlemen—This is a very happy day not only for the hospital staff and the people of Jobat, but it is a happy day for me. I do not refer merely to the fact that it is my birthday. It is more than that, it is the birthday of the Mission's Maternity Hospital, of the Nurses Home and of the McCannochy Hospital, the ground plan of which you can see marked out in line upon the compound.

In India, unlike the country from which I come, you have a birthday custom which is well-warranted. It is to hear gifts to his friends. Today I stand in that position, not personally, (for all I can afford are the sweets which you see on yonder table) but on behalf of the Presbyterian Church in Canada. I stand especially desirous to have made it possible for the Church to permit us today to begin the work of erection of these buildings, namely:

The Maternity Ward, Mrs. Jos. Henderson, Toronto.

The Nurses Home, Legacy through Duart Auxiliary, Chatham Presbyterian, Ont.

The McCannochy Hospital, Legacy of the late Miss A. McCannochy.

A year ago, at Christmas, I addressed the members and children before the side of our Church, to give texts from the Bible on the subject of giving. Many responded, but the one which I remember today was repeated by Violet Mangtaya, the six-year old daughter of my popular assistant. The Bible text says, "Dime as lensa soccha hi," that is, "it is better to give than to receive." Everyone laughed and applauded when Violet rendered it, in error, thus, "Lene sa dema soccha hi," it is better to receive than to give. Really, after all, it is very pleasant to receive. And today, the hospital staff and the people of Jobat are the recipients of these gifts of the people of Canada, your partners in the great British Commonwealth and your brothers in Jesus Christ.

We ask no safeguard or guarantee from the Government upon the erection of the buildings except that which we now have in good measure, your continued good will. Really, after all, it is very pleasant personally, on this my birthday, but that is not quite true. Associating with my other members of the staff and mission, let me say that we shall continue to give you something which is beyond price, the gift of unselfish service. In this we follow our Lord and Saviour, Jesus Christ, who came

The Duke and Duchess of Kent passing the offices of J. C. ENO Limited in Piccadilly, whilst returning from Westminster Abbey after their wedding.

This excellent view of the Bridal procession was made possible through the kindness of the Proprietors of Eno's "Fruit Salt," whose London Offices in Piccadilly made an excellent grand stand.

A band of Scotch pipers were playing in the street when one of the mounted police horses, not being musically minded, backed suddenly into the crowd. Luckily, no damage was done, but a sweet little girl, aged about four, charmingly dressed in bright red, who was standing behind one of the policemen, burst into tears with fright. Whereupon four stalwart policemen all knelt down and proceeded to comfort the child.

In a few moments there were smiles all round; and one little lady saw the procession in blissful happiness.
