"ADVENTURE" TEAMS GABLE AND GARSON IN A PICTURE PACKED WITH EXCITEMENT

That eagerly-awaited event, the return of Clark Gable to the screen after three and a half years in the Air Corps, takes place to-day at the Prince Edward Theatre in "Adventure", in which the popular Gable is seen for the first time with Green Garson, and it can be immediately surmised that the picture is a triumph for all concerned with its making. Whether they are scrapping, romancing, or merely wisecracking, the combination of Gable and Miss Garson is at all times exciting and electric, and it is obvious that the M-G-M has found a team that the movie-going public will want to see again and again. Gable fits perfectly into his role of the tough, carefree Merchant Marine bosun with a love in every port until he meets Miss Garson, enacting a San Francisco librettian and a model of deportment. At first repulsed by the bosun's down-to-earth exterior, she soon falls victim to his charms and before she quite realizes what is happening, has married him. She is disillusioned about any dreams of domestic bliss, however, when she learns that Gable does not intend to give up his sea-roving life. In an unexpected climax, Miss Garson finds a way of winning her husband back for good, but we won't give the surprise away.

Substitution of vegetables for some of the heavier foods is recommended by the Department of National Health and Welfare. The Department's nutrition experts say that bread consumption may be cut down in favour of vegetables at this time of year, and children will still get all the essential minerals and vitamins. This too, will fall in with the international effort to curtail use of bread in order to provide life-giving foods for undernourished people in lands less favoured than our own.

ingenuity within its walls and they pay personal property charge a flat rate, $4.00 on all cars, and own and operate the electric light plant. All profits from the plant go to the Town treasury.

In Montague, as facts remain, there certainly will be little improvement. Council our Town leaders make a decision in the proper direction and improve these embarrassing conditions?

This column believes that the Town is sufficiently progressive to make the changes so evidently necessary. In time our citizens will demand such improvements, so now let us watch our Council buckle down to business.

Mr. Stirling Lane has arrived home from Vancouver B.C. on six weeks vacation.

Mrs. Ann Martin, U.S.A. is visiting her brother, C. A. Shaw, Montague.

There being no further business the meeting was adjourned.
