NEUTRALS. "Thou art not either cold nor hot." The Laodiceans were neutral devoid of passion, destitute of any enthusiasm, loafing along in moral indifference. In times of great crisis they were "any way," "either way," altogether tepid regarding the issues. And in times of great laxity they maintained the same tepidity, utterly uninterested with the degenerate. "Thou art neither cold nor hot." Now the subtle temptation for something better, and to call it by a grander name. Luke-warmness is described as tolerance, or moderation, or charity, or largeness of mind, or breadth of temperament. Dispassionateness comes to be thought of as plcity, and moral distinctions lose the sharpness of their outlines. I am not surprised to find that these "neutrals" were unconsciously losing the

A SHARP RETORT. Few members of the British House of Commons have fought more fiercely-contested elections than the present home secretary, Sir William Joynson-Hicks. At one of his meetings—a particularly rowdy one—a certain individual not only gifted with good looks went so far as to accuse Mr. Joynson-Hicks as he then was, of being two-faced. "It is pretty clear," retorted the future home secretary coolly, "that you are not two-faced."

"Why?" asked the man, taken off his guard. "Because," came the answer, "if you were you would have brought the other face here and left that one at home."

LACQ, Household Lacqueroid, is a beautiful, durable finish that gives a solid color coating to floors, furniture and woodwork. It is not a paint. It is not a varnish. It is a newly perfected lacquer that dries in less than one-half hour. Chairs, tables, woodwork, floors, or almost any surface about the home may be finished with Lacq and ready for use again almost immediately.

LACQ is especially well suited as a finish for porch floors and interior wood floors. It can be used with equal success on cement floors that are thoroughly dry. And, Lacq is easy to apply—by carefully reading the directions anyone can apply Lacq with success. Continuous washing and scrubbing or wiping with a dry rag will actually improve the finish and cannot harm it. It will not turn white and even the strongest soaps or hot water will not affect a surface where Lacq has been used.
