THE NERVES OF THE ARMY

No. 8 Signal Company will go under canvas this year on Monday, June 27th for a period of twelve days training.

As in previous years the company will pitch camp in Victoria Park, facing the roadway, and overlooking the harbor, with horse lines in the rear. No more beautiful and convenient camp-site could be found anywhere.

The syllabus of training of this unit offers a particularly varied and interesting list, embracing as it does wireless operating, telephone and telegraph operating, line laying map-reading, equitation, and an elementary study of electricity and magnetism, in addition to visual signalling, and military drill. This wide choice of instruction makes this unit especially popular with the younger militiamen.

The officers and men of the company have spent a great deal of time during the past year in studying the different methods of communication in use in the British Army. Last fall a highly successful visual signalling course was conducted, followed by a highly technical course in Line Telegraphy for the more advanced officers and N. C. O.'s. The value to the company of this course will be particularly apparent during the annual training as it will make available an unusually large number of capable instructors, and should assure the company reaching an especially high degree of efficiency this year.

The company will also, this year, train a mounted cable laying section. This consists of a cable wagon with drivers, mounted linemen operators—in short a complete mobile telegraph, and telephone office, similar in every respect to those used in the late war.

The Corps of Signals—"The Nerves of the Army" requires men of an intelligent type, with a fair education, anxious to learn general signalling, or to specialize in any of the subjects in which instruction is given. There are a few vacancies in No. 8 Company at present, and any young men desirous of training with them this year should report to their headquarters, at the Armouries tonight at 7.00 p. m.

NOW WILL VOTE CONTROL

Sir,—Now that we are nearing the end of the case, "Control vs. Prohibition," I may congratulate the Guardian on its conduct of the campaign. You certainly have had the best of the argument; and the conclusion that our verdict shall be for control. You have demonstrated the fact that Prohibition as we have had it has not eradicated or minimized sufficiently the great evil of intemperance. You have shown, too, that Prohibition is accompanied by other great sins and evils such as perjury and hypocrisy. We have therefore made up our minds to vote for the Government candidates and to lay upon them and the Government Commission and the officers of the Government and the towns, the duty of giving "Control" a fair trial to the end that "greater temperance" and less perjury, hypocrisy, etc., may be the result.

I am, Sir, etc.,
AN ELECTOR
REAL TEMPERANCE

Sir,—According to the policy proclaimed by Premier Stewart the sale of intoxicating liquors is to be only through government vendors stores, controlled and operated by a Commission appointed by the government to persons holding permits issued by the said Commission. To my mind there is nothing very "wet" about that, when it is accompanied by the statement that those who drink liquor without a permit will be equally unwholesome with those who sell it illegally, and that personal profit in the liquor business is to be done away with.

For myself personally, I don't care what kind of a liquor law they have as I am an abstainer. But too much—those who cause the Liquor Evil which is the concern of the public—there is evidently greater control and the prospect of greater temperance than there is under the Prohibitory Liquor Law that is constantly broken.

I am, Sir, etc.,
AN OBSERVER
DR. RAMSAY'S FINE ADDRESS.

Sir,—I was greatly pleased by the address of the Rev. Dr. Ramsay broadcast on Saturday night. Certainly it seemed to me the best thing which has come from the Temperance Alliance in the campaign.

The dominant note of his theme was that whatever the verdict of the people at the polls next Saturday may be all good citizens should unite in the enforcement of whatever temperance proposals shall become the law of the land and that a continuous campaign of education is necessary.

tion be maintained as to the great advantages of temperance—morally, socially, and in other respects.

Unity in the fight against the liquor evil is the keynote of the argument of the temperance worker who supports Government Control as against Prohibition.

For how can we get unity behind Prohibition when we temperance workers will not prosecute our friends who take a glass of beer or wine or those who make a home stock of beer or wine, or when we will not prosecute our judges or our Lieutenant governors or our legislative representatives or those others whom we have elevated to honor and power in our midst so many of whom we know to have a little supply in their cellars for their guests and friends.

Government Control is the only temperance policy behind which we can get unity. For united enforcement we must elect Premier Stewart and those temperance workers who oppose him now can unite with those temperance workers who support him now and unite to demand full enforcement of the law which he himself proposed and will prepare.

I am, Sir, etc.,
TEMPERANCE WORKER.
UNDOUBTED IMPROVEMENTS

Sir,—The more I study the Platform issued by Premier Stewart at the beginning of the present electoral campaign, the more strongly I am convinced that the plank referring to the control of the liquor traffic and the promotion of greater temperance, with less false swearing and other evils, is a strong one, and that it may be carried out. It certainly is more in accord with public opinion and will therefore be more effectively enforced than Prohibition.

There is, I notice, to be a "rigid enforcement of the law" and "greatly increased penalties for all violations of the law;" and "in the case of illegal selling, the person purchasing liquor illegally is to be prosecuted as well as the person illegally selling."

These are all improvements in the present law. How anyone can see in it any "Promise of free rum" as the Patriot does, I can't for the life of me, imagine. But I suppose it is on the principle set forth by the poet Pope, that
"All seems infected that the infected spy,
As all seems yellow to the jaundiced eye."

I am, Sir, etc.,
COMMENTATOR
THE YOUNG VOTERS

Sir,—There will be a considerable number of men and women who will mark their first ballot on the 25th, and to them I would offer some advice by way of showing up some of the members of the various Temperance Societies I have known during the past half century. It will give them an idea of what reliance may be placed in some of those who have come over to help the Liberals in their need.

Sample No. 1: Some years ago there lived, not far from Charlottetown a country merchant who possessed a great reformer and a burning and a shining light to all the temperance advocates. He harangued his customers on the evils of drinking anything but water until they got tired of his preaching and dealt elsewhere. When his creditors became insistent he borrowed from his friends and relatives and also from his old mother the little she had laid aside for the proverbial stormy day. When his financial crash came, among the many who pleaded earnestly for a return of even a part of what they gave, was his mother, who, when she besought him with tears, to save her from the poorhouse, he turned to her and in a deep solemn voice cried: "Think not of the things of this world; Think of your SOUL mother, think of your SOUL."

The hypocrite was deaf to the pleading of the mother who bore him, but stood high in all the temperance societies, was an ardent Grafton and a firm believer in all the politics of the Patriot. If he were with us today would he be haranguing the multitude on the evils of Government Control and would be as well qualified as some of those who are at it now.

Sample No. 2 is on the way.
I am, Sir, etc.,
IAN DHU

ELECTORS, BEWARE!

Sir,—In his speech at Summerside, which was reported in full in The Patriot, the Opposition Leader, Mr. C. Saunders, made two distinct promises which will have an important bearing on the taxation question if, by any chance, he should be entrusted with power. He declared that if he was successful at the polls HE WOULD GIVE FORTY THOUSAND DOLLARS ANNUALLY RECEIVED FROM THE CANADIAN NATIONAL RAILWAYS FOR TAXES TO CHARLOTTETOWN, SUMMERSIDE AND THE OTHER INCORPORATED TOWNS THROUGHOUT THE PROVINCE; and that HE WOULD USE THE TOTAL PROCEEDS FROM THE SALE OF LIQUOR, UNDER THE PROHIBITION ACT, FOR THE ENFORCEMENT OF SAID ACT.

If this were done it would reduce our Provincial revenue by approximately ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS annually. How does Mr. Saunders propose to make up this loss? There is only one way that I can be made up and that is by re-imposing the taxes which Premier Stewart has taken off including the Poll Tax.

We all know that every time Mr. Saunders and The Patriot have referred to the repeal of the Poll Tax, they have done so with tears in their eyes. In one of his issues, since the present campaign began, the Liberal organ, in referring to the alleged increase in liquor sales since the Stewart government came into power, said: "The Prohibition Act was never intended as a revenue producing Act. The whole trouble was that Premier Stewart failed to repeal the Poll Tax, unless he was forced to obtain revenue from other sources."

Now, if, as the organ says, Premier Stewart found it necessary to sell more liquor in order to make up for the loss of the Poll Tax, how is Mr. Saunders going to give away all the liquor receipts annually, and the $40,000 C. N. R. taxes additional, unless he re-imposes the Poll Tax? The electors had better be aware if Mr. Saunders wins they will surely get another big dose of taxes—a repetition of the "Great Betrayal" of 1920.

I am, Sir, etc.,
One Who Was Stung Before.
IGNORANT LECTURERS

Sir,—I am pleased to see where some of our most true temperance men come out independent for something better than the present temperance act, seeing the condition in which we are. For some I have become more political machine to others something of a selfish appearance.

Liquor we know the evil of it—but as much needed in a home as many other kinds of medicines for the comfort and health of the family. This Temperance Alliance act, has become unpopular with many who hoped for better results—towards stamping out the use of liquor, by many who have learned of the many evil effects which have been brought about under it—and mean to vote for Government Control, who, if they know of those evils will be met with by strong temperance men who supported this act.

I met an old temperance worker the other day who worked with myself to run down the liquor traffic. He thought there was little selling now—he did not know where he could go and buy one glass, unless at the vendors—and thought this act was working good, I told him I neither drank nor bought liquor, but could find thirty places in the city where it was sold—bootlegging, smuggling by ship and car loads at two o'clock at night making up the supply. Now I cannot learn from my friend anything about what is going on under this act for he does not know—nor do those lecturers who are now going about, recommending this present Act—for too many it only seems like them thrashing over the old Temperance straw, which is about what they know of what is going on under this act this leaves little to learn from them of the real issue, what we heard them state we heard long ago and knew the evil well.

What we need in the country now, is a lecturer who knows about all going on, and what has been brought about since Prohibition became the law of this Province. Those who know are not satisfied and will vote for Government Control, but many have little means of knowing all that is going on to decide how to vote to best in the interest of temperance, which is the most important issue for our Province at present.

RETURNED SOLDIERS, ETC.

Sir,—The legal luminary who at present tours this island in a vain endeavor to stem the tide against Prohibition is quoted as being responsible for remarks absurd if not worse.

In his short trip to England he tells us of the harrowing scenes he saw in the slums of London. What look him those slums is of course questionable, but in a city of seven or eight millions he could hardly expect to find the public houses run on Sunday School lines. It reports by right this agitator is responsible for the statement that no found English men a drunken, worthless lot; of which a dozen were not worth one American.

Such language in this country is hard to believe.

I advise the gentlemen to try Chicago. There he may, if he escapes being robbed and murdered, not find many public houses, only "speakeasies" and low dens, and dives, but no real liquor, only poison and Prohibition "dead eye."

Among the remarks which I have heard has been some which I consider a reflection on our returned soldiers. This should be resented. The facts are, in short, that our boys were sent to the trenches. There submerged in filth and vile conditions for years they fought and died, to preserve Canada as well as the rest of civilization. While engaged in helping to prevent our boats being cut; nothing was too good for them. Did the W.C.T.U. and the rest of the Prohibition hypocrites object to the serving to them of rum and cigarettes?

On the contrary—they cheerfully accepted anything that would preserve their own miserable hides. Then to reward those who offered their lives, what did they do?

In the absence of the best bone and sinew of Canada they wheedled the government into passing, without asking their consent, what they called war time Prohibition.

When the boys, or what was left of them, came back; they came to find that a grateful country had taken their rights away.

No more rum for the boys, and if the W. C. T. U. had their way no cigarettes either.

In the name of common sense, why do they put up with it; or do they intend to submit to all and every restriction, until finally their diet and hours, and every phase of life, is ordered and restricted by fanaticism.

It is to be hoped that no petty politics will prevent returned soldiers from repudiating such unfair and ungrateful treatment as the infliction of Prohibition.

If they do not do so they may rest well assured that our lovely little island will be put back on the map into a state of isolation.
