Ex-Kaiser's Son Would Like To See Olympics

(By Louis P. Lochner, Associated Press Staff Correspondent. Copyright 1932 by the Associated Press)
BERLIN, May 4.—Former Crown Prince Frederick Wilhelm appealed today for an understanding of "what is at stake in a Germany driven to despair by economic distress and the humiliating limitations on her sovereign rights." This appeal came in the course of an interview, the first granted by the former heir to the crown since his return to his fatherland from exile in 1923. The occasion was his 50th birthday, Friday.
In the first stages of the 40-minute chat, Frederick Wilhelm sat nonchalantly on a sofa, puffing leisurely on a cigarette, but his face hardened and his voice became vibrant as he led the conversation to the subject nearest his heart—the condition of Germany. Pent up feelings for almost nine years of silence seemed to surge within him.
The interview opened on the subjects of recent technical advances and athletics, in both of which the Crown Prince is strongly interested. "It has long been a pet dream of mine to visit America and now that the Olympic Games are at hand I wish especially that I might see them," he said.

Lone Fisherman Operates On Self

SYDNEY, N. S., May 4. (By the Canadian Press)—Marooned on storm-swept Scataria Island, a fisherman recently performed on himself an operation which doctors pronounced "as good as could have been done in a hospital."
According to the story reaching Sydney, the fisherman, alone in his island cabin was threatened with death by an abdominal condition that came upon him without warning.
Without any previous knowledge or even the simplest surgery, never having seen an operation, and guided by only deductions made from his experience with boats and gasoline engines, he successfully relieved the condition.
His instruments consisted of a sharp jack-knife, a wooden knitting needle, a blunt steel darning needle and a length of galvanized wire taken from an old tin pail. Had he known the operation involved the risk of severing arteries and causing blood-poisoning perhaps his hand might not have been so steady.
He was stricken at night, and the only way he obtained sufficient light for the operation was by lying on his back on the floor in front of a flickering wood fire and working in that position.

Atlantic National Bank Taken Over

BOSTON, May 4. (A.P.)—The first National Bank of Boston has taken over the assets and deposit liabilities of the Atlantic National Bank as of the close of business today, officers of both banks announced tonight.
The action was taken at the request both of the Atlantic Bank and the Boston clearing house banks, the official's statement said.
Harry K. Noyes, chairman of the Board of the Atlantic National, stated it had been deemed wise, after careful consideration of all the circumstances and in order to protect the interests of the depositors and stockholders, to transfer the Bank's business to the First National.
Under the arrangement, the First National guarantees to pay in full all depositors of the Atlantic, in both commercial and savings departments. It also undertakes to convert the assets of the Atlantic in an orderly fashion to conserve the equity and safeguard the Atlantic stockholders.

The Churchill Grain Terminal

OTTAWA, May 4.—(By the Canadian Press)—Every effort is being made to secure insurance rates that will encourage grain shippers to use the new terminal facilities at Churchill on Hudson Bay, Hon. C. H. Cahoon, Secretary of State, answered the House today in answer to questions asked by J. P. Howden, (Lib., St. Boniface). The total cost of the Hudson Bay Railroad and terminals was $49,772,508.11 divided as follows: Railway, $31,904,802.76; Churchill terminals, $11,593,485.47, and Fort Nelson terminals $6,274,211.87.
Since July, 1928, the Imperial Shipping Board in England, which has been endeavoring to secure from the underwriters more equitable insurance rates out of Churchill, has been furnished with regular reports on ice and meteorological conditions, and with complete information as to the aids and protection to navigation placed in Hudson's Strait by the Department of Marine. A reduction in the rate was secured in 1931, Mr. Cahoon said, and there were hopes of further reductions in the near future.

GRADE X WIN PRINCE STREET SCHOOL HOOP TITLE
Snappy passing, coupled with excellent shooting, gave Grade IX the necessary scoring punch to win from Grade X by the score of 29-19. Led by Francis Ayers who scored 14 points, Grade IX controlled the play three quarters of the game, and were only pressed in the first ten minutes of the second period, when Grade X came up on even terms, when Mary Owen sank four baskets in quick succession. This lead was short-lived however, when Ayers, Gay and Dodds got going. This trio outscored Grade X during the last ten minutes 13 to 3. For Grade X Mary Owen was the star. "Emmy" collected 13 of grade ten's points. Grade X were handicapped through the absence of Margaret Large, their star guard. For the newly crowned champs Ayers, Dodds and Gay provided the scoring punch. These three collected 14, 7 and 8 points respectively. While on the defence Marianne Rogers stopped many a Grade X attack that was labelled for the draperies.

Corn Growing

(BY R. C. PARENT SUPERVISOR CHARLOTTETOWN EXPERIMENTAL STATION)

Corn as a fodder crop and as a supplement to fall pastures is valuable in P. E. I. During the past four years on the P. E. I. Illustration Stations the average yield has been about 15 tons per acre of fairly mature corn and under favorable weather conditions should do well on most farms. The farmer growing corn for the first time, however, would do well to grow a small area, not more than one half acre and look after the crop well.

Soil and Weather Conditions.

For optimum growth corn requires a well drained soil fairly rich in humus and fertility. Corn also requires considerable heat and, therefore, will not do well in cold damp years. For this reason it should not be sown until the soil is well warmed up.

Varieties.

For forage production a variety of corn which develops a fair ear is preferred and we have found the variety Longfield very satisfactory. As corn is often on sale which is low in germination it is very desirable to have it tested before planting.

Preparing the Seed Bed

Corn is a vigorous grower and it is, therefore, very essential that the seed bed be well prepared. Two months of preparation are commonly adopted.
(a) A sod field is plowed early in autumn and rolled and harrowed periodically to destroy weeds. It is plowed—then manured and re-plowed before freeze up.
(b) Manure is spread in the spring on a sod and the grass allowed to grow up through it. It is then plowed flat, rolled and harrowed thoroughly on top. The rotting sod and manure will quickly give a desirable heat.

Corn is planted in rows or in hills, and the seed may be sown either by hand or by machine. From 35 to 40 pounds is usually required per acre. Plant the seed from one to one and a half inches deep. Three or four days after planting a spike harrow

Fertilization.

Under P. E. Island conditions where we have a very short season everything should be done to ensure rapid growth. Commercial fertilizer will promote rapid growth, more uniform stand and earlier maturity. We have found that 1000 pounds of a 3-10-4 fertilizer mixture in addition to manure is ample on most soils and may be expected to increase the yield on the average 5 tons per acre. This mixture may be composed of the following chemicals:—100 pounds nitrate of soda, 80 pounds sulphate of ammonia, 600 pounds superphosphates, and 80 pounds muriate of potash. On good soils with a heavy dressing of barnyard manure this amount may be somewhat reduced.

Summer Cultivation.

The heaviest crop will be obtained only if the field is thoroughly cultivated and kept free of weeds. At first the cultivator or scouffer may be run quite closely to the stalks but with the development of the plants the cultivator must be narrowed, else many of the feeder roots will be cut off.

Harvesting, Storing, Use.

One should commence feeding corn (if it is not to be ensiled) before it is too coarse, and if pastures are short, cows, horses and hogs will eat it up clean. Any corn which will not be fed before injury by frost should be cut and stooked. To simply stooking a simple "horse" is used and the stook tied and stooked snugly around the top with binder twine. If properly tied and stooked there is little danger of its blowing over or spoiling by rain. Later in the fall the corn may be stored around the barn floor or in the hay loft or left in the field until required. Frozen corn should not be fed to livestock, but may be thawed by leaving in a warm stable for a few days.

When making a fruit cake, to prevent the raisins and currants from settling at the bottom of the cake, rinse the fruit first in boiling water, dry thoroughly, then roll it in flour.
